KING OF THE CATS

This large tortoise shell feline, shown trying to ignore the tempting creature next to him, may be the biggest cat the Marin County Humane Society has ever come across. "I've been here 10 years and I've never seen a cat as huge as this one," said Madelon Tormanen of the society. The gentle, friendly animal weighs about 25 pounds, while the average cat weighs between eight and 10, according to society officials. He was found this week wandering around near Hamilton Air Force Base. Society employees believe he may have strayed from his home and are hoping to find either his owner or a new home for him.

Fund Crunch Hits Mental Health Units

Bureaucratic Bumbling Blamed For The Foulup

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A new financial crisis has hit Marin County's two major mental health facilities, one of which has responded by laying off 20 employees and closing its doors to indigent psychiatric patients.

Cause of the crisis at Ross and Marin General hospitals can be traced primarily to a bureaucratic foulup at civic center, not unlike that which rocked the mental health department last May.

In Ross General's case, it boils down to the hospital unknowingly having spent nearly all its $350,000 annual allocation of state psychiatric Medi-Cal funds during the first five months of this fiscal year.

Marin General officials, meanwhile, said they do not know how much of their $350,000 allocation of state funds has been spent but said the situation is not as bleak as at Ross.

L. C. Johnson, Ross Hospital administrator, said yesterday that besides the 20 employees who have been released another 10 are working reduced hours in the 54-bed psychiatric ward.

He said no new Medi-Cal patients will be admitted to the ward until the funding situation is resolved with the county. The seven state-supported patients there now will not be forced out, he said.

According to Johnson, his facility and others offering inpatient mental health care were told in June by county health officials their allocation of state funds this fiscal year would equal the amount spent last year.

While no contract was signed between his hospital and the county, Johnson said, Ross proceeded "on good faith" to accept indigent patients, submitting bills each month to the county.

This continued until November, he said, when the county finally submitted a contract showing an annual allocation of $350,000 — only half that originally promised.

Additionally, the contract said payments would be made on a monthly basis from the total, or about $29,000 per month.

Through November, based on the original assumption that $650,000 would be allocated, Ross used about $300,000 — only $50,000 short of its actual allocation.

"We proceeded on good faith and the county has pulled the

Advisers Favor Mix Of Housing

By NELS JOHNSON

Many members of San Rafael's citizens advisory committee on the general plan support a controversial proposal for balanced housing mixes in city neighborhoods, despite rejection of the proposal by city staff.

The discrepancy in viewpoint between the staff and the committee on the key proposal contained in an initial draft of the general plan came to light today as city planners released results of a recent vote taken by the committee on varying aspects of the emerging plan.

The balloting shows that 16 committee members support a "policy of improvement of the heterogeneous mix of housing" throughout city neighborhoods, while six disagree. Five members abstained on the issue.

About half of the 60-member committee was present for balloting Saturday in city hall, according to senior planner Stanley Ott.

In addition, 24 committee members said they support a "policy of undertaking positive programs to maintain and improve the existing community mix of low and moderate income housing" in the city, the poll shows.

The city administration on Tuesday released a staff analysis of the plan that blasts the proposal for balanced socio-economic housing mixes in city neighborhoods, since a potpourri of housing types and densities in each area is "undesirable".

The staff said flatly that changes in housing densities from single to multiple, as recommended by the emerging plan, "should not take place for sociological purposes in resi-

Butcher Strike Negotiations Break Off With No Agreement

By PAT ANGLE

Negotiations in the 10-day-old butchers strike and lockout broke off yesterday without a settlement between the union and most major chains.

But Cala Foods, threatened with more picketing, last night signed an agreement with the butchers' union and reopened meat departments at all its stores, including six in Marin.

A spokesman for Cala said the chain settled with the butchers by promising to abide by the terms of the labor contract which ultimately results from negotiations.

The agreement came after a truce between 50 Bay Area stores and the union broke down yesterday and the union promised that pickets would return to the markets.

The union had removed its pickets from the stores yesterday so members of other unions could return to work. Some stores, including Cala, which had been closed in the labor dispute, reopened yesterday as a result of the truce.

But the plan called for keeping meat departments closed and the union called off the agreement because the stores involved had started selling turkeys and other products usually in the butchers' jurisdiction.

Faced with the prospect of losing all its union employees once again and being forced to close its stores, Cala signed with the butchers, a spokesman said.

The butchers struck Safeway Stores and Lucky Stores last Monday in a dispute over automated meat handling and wages. Ten other grocery chains retaliated with a lockout of butchers union members.

Butchers' union leaders were in Washington, D.C. today to attend talks aimed at settling a strike by four unions against the food industry in Southern California. There was no indication when negotiations would resume in the Northern California labor dispute.

French Will Again Bid For Demo Slot

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A 27-year-old San Francisco carpenter, Alan D. French, announced today he will run again for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District.

French sought the nomination last year, but lost 3-to-1 to Roger Boas, who then lost to the incumbent, Republican William S. Mailliard.

French is the third Democrat to announce his candidacy, joining Alan F. Reeves of San Francisco and Lloyd F. Harolds of Novato in the race for the nomination next June. Mailliard is expected to announce soon whether he will seek reelection despite redistricting that gave him far more voters who ballot consistently for Democrats.

French's candidacy was announced in letters to Democrats in the district, which includes northern San Francisco, all of Marin and a sliver of Southern Sonoma.

Noting that he had been able to spend only $3,000 for his last race, French said he has saved $4,000 this time for the campaign.

If elected, he said, he will "work harder to write the kinds of laws the Congress should be writing for our country."

A 1969 graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, where he majored in history, French served in the Army before running for Congress last year.

He has described himself as "economically fairly conservative, though I am a strong civil libertarian and a vigorous defender of labor."

White House Tape Hum Not Typewriter's Fault

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Electronics experts reported today they believe the lamp and typewriter in the office of President Nixon's secretary could not have caused the hum on a tape recording of a Nixon conversation with H. R. Haldeman.

The experts said there were "some indications" Rose Mary Woods could have erased some of the conversation by pushing a wrong button on a tape recorder or that her tape recorder could have cause the hum on its own.

They also indicated they did not think it would be possible to restore the missing conversation, which took place three days after the Watergate break-in.

The experts gave a preliminary report to Judge John J. Sirica on their examination of the tape of a June 20, 1972, meeting, which now has an 18 ¼ minute hum in place of a conversation.

The experts said they concluded that electrical equipment in the office of Miss Woods, Nixon's personal secretary, would not have caused the hum.

Sirica was handed a preliminary report based on tests by six technicians of the tape. They said they would need more time—until the first of the year—to complete their tests.

Sirica had hoped that the experts could determine whether the conversation could somehow be restored, whether Miss Woods accidentally caused any or all of the gap either because of the close proximity of electrical equipment or by improper use of the recorder on which she was playing it, or whether the gap could have been a result of deliberate tampering.

The technicians said the entire conversation —which Haldeman said pertained to Watergate —"is probably not retrievable."

The report made public by Sirica, dealt chiefly with whether the high intensity lamp or electric typewriter could have caused the hum. They said neither was "the likely cause."

They said they needed more

Larkspur Ferry Terminal Cost Over $10 Million

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The cost of the Larkspur ferry terminal has climbed to almost $10.4 million, new estimates by Golden Gate Bridge consultants showed yesterday. (Another bridge district story, page 7.)

Anthony A. Braccia of San Francisco, head of the team of design and engineering consultants, reluctantly conceded $882,500 could be cut from the cost estimate if the roof of the terminal were eliminated. He insisted, however, that cuts in plans for the terminal "would be unsatisfactory solutions."

(Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring later told the Independent-Journal that covered walkways and the close proximity of bus service to the ferries could provide adequate shelter until something like a restaurant were built above the terminal platform to protect waiting passengers from the weather.)

Braccia told the bridge district's building and operating

Truckers Who Roll Are Shotgun Targets

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Shotgun blasts today riddled a number of trucks in Ohio whose drivers chose to ignore a call for a nationwide trucking shutdown. The drivers escaped injury.

At least seven trucks came under fire as they rolled along Ohio highways.

Bottles and rocks were thrown at more than a dozen other truckers who continued to operate rigs in Ohio and Pennsylvania during the first few hours of the scheduled work stoppage. Several windshields were smashed, and at least one person suffered minor injuries, police said.

Some truckers told police they were forced off the road by men in cars. Others said they were flagged off the road.

The two-day "park-in" by dissident independent truckers was called too protest high diesel fuel prices and low speed limits—the same complaints that caused many truck drivers to block highways in at least a dozen states last week.

"Seven trucks were fired upon on Interstate 76 in Mahoning and Trumbull County," said a highway patrol spokesman in Canfield, Ohio, near Youngstown. "All seven were hit, but there were no injuries. The shots were fired into the rig."

The movement to stay off the roads was reported gaining momentum among truckers in Illinois, Maryland, Nebraska and parts of California, as well as in Ohio and Pennsylvania. But in Michigan, some truckers tried to block highways west of Detroit early today.

In Reno, Nev., truckers blocked all four lanes of Interstate 80, the main road through the central Sierra Nevada today for 2½ hours.

A state patrol spokeswoman said there was no incident and that shortly after 6 a.m. the truckers obeyed an ultimatum from patrolmen and started to move.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Argentina Cancels Vesco Visa

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government yesterday canceled a residence visa issued to fugitive financier Robert Vesco three months ago and said the chief of Argentina's immigration service — the man who issued it — was fired.

Vesco

Vesco and his business associate, Ulrich J. Strickler, were issued permanent immigrant visas Sept. 6 along with a guarantee they would be immune from extradition from Argentina.

The government announced yesterday following an investigation that Edmundo Gnavi, head of the National Immigration Office, was responsible for issuing the visas and was fired.

In effect, the announcement reversed an earlier denial by the government that visas and guarantees had been offered to the two men.

An Argentine federal judge, who has since retired, ruled in a closed court session Oct. 22 that since pending U.S. charges against Vesco had "political overtones," he could not be deported from Argentina.

New Cuban Policy Is Urged

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says now that the United States has taken a somewhat friendly stance toward Russia and China it would be a good idea to improve relations with the Communist regime in Cuba.

Bentsen

In a speech before the Philadelphia World Affairs Council last night, the freshman senator said Latin America has been left out of the new phase of American policy.

"Improving relations with Cuba would be symbolic of a new political maturity in the United States . . . of a new willingness to respect differences among peoples, and of a new realization that Latin America is seeking to fulfill its own destiny in its own way," Bentsen said.

He said the experience with China has taught the United States that "we cannot afford to close our eyes and our minds to the existence of any nation simply because we do not fully support its policies . . ."

Arab Boycott

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Thomas W. (Teddy) Gleason, president of the International Longshoreman's Association, said yesterday members of his union will refuse to load cargo on ships bound for Arab countries during the oil boycott.

In a speech to the Buffalo Community Friends of Israel, Gleason claimed that representatives of Arab countries are in the United States buying up food, oil and well drilling equipment in order to continue their boycott.

"We're prepared," said Gleason, whose union has 118,000 members. "Any ship that comes for the cargo we're going to stop. We're going to stop the cargo, not the ships."

Bombing Charge

SAIGON (UPI) — The Communists accused the South Vietnamese government today of bombing residential areas of the Viet Cong's capital of Loc Ninh in a pair of afternoon air strikes.

In Cambodia, field reports said the Phnom Penh government sent fresh troops today into the battle for the strategic "rice road" linking the capital and the paddy fields of Battambang Province.

The Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government said two government warplanes roared over Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, yesterday and dropped "dozens of bombs on populous areas" of the town.

Layoffs Slated

DETROIT (UPI) — The Chrysler Corp. yesterday said 2,100 workers at two large assembly plants will be laid off beginning in early January, in part because of the energy shortage.

A spokesman said workers at the Jefferson Avenue assembly plant in Detroit and the Belvidere, Ill., assembly plant will be out of work because of the lessening demand for big cars, which appears to be pushing the nation's automakers into a slow transition period before they can begin turning out more smaller cars.

Chrysler also announced that extended furloughs would be given to 10,400 more workers at the two plants so as to "balance inventories."

TAX COMMITTEE — Cochairmen Sen. Russell Long (left), D-La., and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., conferred briefly as they ended a session of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation at which it was decided yesterday to examine every aspect of President Nixon's federal income taxes from 1969 through 1972.

Mills Thinks Nixon Not Wise In Claiming Papers Deduction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House-Senate committee which will examine President Nixon's tax returns, says he thinks Nixon was unwise to deduct $576,000 for the gift of his vice presidential papers to the nation.

"I think that any public official who files a tax return has to be holier than thou," Mills said.

"Very frankly, had I been the President's attorney I would have advised him not to take the deduction."

Mills talked to reporters after the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation — composed of the senior five members of the Senate Finance Committee and the senior five members of Mills' Ways and Means Committee—decided to go beyond Nixon's request and conduct an unlimited inquiry into Nixon's federal tax payments of 1969-72. The President had asked in a Dec. 8 letter for a ruling only on two tax procedures which saved him about $300,000.

Mills said the joint committee would not investigate whether Nixon should have paid California state income taxes. That is up to state officials to investigate, he said.

A White House spokesman expressed no dismay over the committee decision to expand its investigation.

Nixon had asked the committee to examine the legality of the deduction for his papers in light of allegations the gift was made in an illegal manner or was made after the July 25, 1969 cutoff. Nixon also asked for a judgment on the savings he realized by not paying capital gains taxes on the profits from the sale of some of his San Clemente property.

In both instances, Nixon said he would abide by the committee judgments and pay back taxes, if he owes them. They could amount to $300,000, including interest at 6 per cent.

Parties Planned At White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon has announced a series of Yule parties and said the White House will be closed to visitors for decorating until Friday.

She said the decorating of the White House and the trimming of the 18-foot Fraser fir Christmas tree in the Blue Room will be done under the supervision of J.C. Pennock of Philadelphia, who also handled the wedding of the Nixons' daughter, Tricia Cox.

The Nixons plan to spend Christmas Day in the White House.

Mrs. Nixon said she will be hostess at the diplomatic children's Christmas party, Monday; reception for White House residents and staff, Duesday; wives' tea, Dec. 20, and White House staff party, Dec. 26.

But Bork said yesterday he would leave the study, which he described as an analysis of FBI policies and programs, to his probable successor, Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio.

One phase of the review concerns what the FBI actually did during a three year counterintelligence program which the late Director J. Edgar Hoover set up to combat alleged violent activities of new left organizations.

The FBI last Dec. 6 made public a memo by Hoover setting up the program in 1968 and calling it off without explanation, in another 1971 memo. Nothing that occurred during the program's operation has been made public.

The FBI made the Hoover memos public after Bork decided not to appeal a U.S. District Court decision in a suit filed by NBC newsman Carl Stern under the 1966 Freedom of Information Act for access to the FBI memorandums.

Beating The Ban

ROME (UPI) — A number of wealthy Italians have found a way around the government's Sunday driving ban. They bought taxis, which are exempt from the ban, for their personal use.

Egypt Skeptical Of Peace Chance

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Egypt's state-controlled press criticized American Middle East policy today and warned of the dangers of a new war only hours before the arrival of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to discuss arrangements for the Dec. 18 Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

Kissinger, under unusually heavy security guard because of reported threats against his life during his tour of eight Middle East countries, flew from London to Algiers today and conferred with Algerian President Houari Boumedienne. He flew on to Cairo after a four-hour visit.

Kissinger flies on to Saudi Arabia Saturday and then Syria —the first U.S. Secretary of State to do so since 1967 —and on to Jordan and Israel. He will go to Geneva Dec. 18 to lead the U.S. delegation at the opening sessions of the conference sponsored by the United States and the Soviet Union.

Eight non-aligned members of the U.N. Security Council demanded yesterday that Secretary General Kurt Waldheim preside over the conference, but an official U.N. spokesman said he had no plans to go. Israel opposes any U.N. sponsorship on grounds the conference would be heavily loaded against Israel.

UPI correspondent Ray Wilkinson in Cairo said the tone of the Egyptian newspaper articles reflected the government's skepticism that Kissinger will achieve anything constructive. They came as confusion remained whether Israel would actually attend the Geneva meeting and as Syria expressed doubt about and demanded clarification of U.S. intentions in the Mideast.

A U.N. spokesman in Cairo said violations along the cease-fire lines continued at a near record level but that the truce was still holding. Israel reported the battlefield death of another of its soldiers in a skirmish with Egyptian troops near Ismailia.

The Israeli cabinet scheduled a special session Friday with Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and Foreign Minister Abba Eban reported split on whether to attend the Geneva conference. Dayan has said Israel will not go unless Syria releases the names of 102 Israeli POWS. Eban is more conciliatory.

The Jerusalem Post, quoting informed sources, said the government will wait until the last moment, possibly Monday night, to decide what its peace delegation will do if the Syrians attend the talks without having met the Israeli precondition.

"One possibility is that if the Syrians enter the conference chamber the Israeli delegation will leave," the Post said.

Cairo's semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Kissinger's first personal venture into Middle East diplomacy last month has "not been fulfilled in a perfectly satisfactory manner. Israel was the one who benefited from the way the sixpoint agreement was applied."

The continuing deadlock over troop disengagement has resulted "in clashes all along the frontline, which could well lead to another war," Al Ahram said.

(UPI Telephoto)

Saxbe Says He'll Never Fire Special Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William B. Saxbe says he will force President Nixon to fire him as attorney general rather than resign if any attempt is made to remove Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski from office.

With Jaworski by his side, Saxbe told the Senate Judiciary Committee that he will fight for the special prosecutor's "right to proceed as he sees fit" in the Watergate investigation and will "resist" any White House pressure to curtail the ongoing probe.

Jaworski assured the committee that he has been given "complete independence" in his work, and both men pledged to pursue the investigation even if it leads directly to President Nixon.

"The chips are going to have to fall where they may, no matter who's involved," Saxbe, an Ohio Republican, declared at his confirmation hearing.

Acting Attorney General Robert Bork was scheduled to testify today in an attempt to clarify the agreement under which a "consensus" of eight congressional leaders would be needed to restrict Jaworski's jurisdiction.

Chairman James O. Eastland said he thought Saxbe's nomination could be reported to the Senate by afternoon.

Asked what he would do if the President told him to fire Jaworski, Saxbe said: "I would not attempt to fire Mr. Jaworski nor would I resign."

"Would you resign if you were asked to carry out an order you opposed to fire Jaworski?" asked Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

"No," Saxbe replied. "But I wouldn't carry out the order either."

"So, you'd make him fire you first," Byrd said.

"Absolutely," Saxbe answered.

Peace Skipper Picks Up Boat

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — David McTaggart, skipper and owner of the Canadian protest yacht Greenpeace III, has returned to pick up his boat, seized by the French navy last Aug. 15 during French nuclear tests.

The French navy confiscated the vessel and arrested McTaggart when he sailed to the Mururoa atoll area to protest the atmospheric tests.

A spokesman for the Pacific Experiment Center said Greenpeace III was brought to Papeete by the navy after being detained at Mururoa military port.

Platforms Hurting The Wine Industry

Edy Willm, an Alsatian vintner, said in an interview the footwear industry is using so much cork for the towering shoe soles that there's not enough of good quality to cork wine bottles.

More Help Is Sought In Bicyclist's Death

San Anselmo Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani would like more "Secret Witness" help toward solving the hit-run traffic death of Harmen Evers on Nov. 23.

Since a $2,000 "Secret Witness" reward for anonymous information leading to arrest and conviction of the driver was offered by Independent-Journal publishers, a dozen tips have been sent to "Secret Witness." The information in them was passed on to San Anselmo police, and they have investigated each one.

But, said Chief Buchignani, they have been unable to gather evidence that would place any of the suspected automobiles or persons at the scene of the accident, in which Evers was knocked from his bicycle and dragged to death by the hit-run auto.

Chief Buchignani hopes that some of the "Secret Witness" writers have more information. If they have, he'd like to talk with them.

"I will meet anyone anyplace, in plain clothes and without asking for their identification," said Buchignani. "Anyone who knows anything that may solve this case may call me personally and set up an appointment anywhere he says. We want to solve this. As far as I am concerned, it is the same as a murder case."

The chief said he will accept calls either at the San Anselmo police station or at his home, at any time. He emphasized that he will respect the confidence of any caller and will not press for identification if the informant prefers to remain anonymous.

The $2,000 reward offer still stands.

SHUTDOWN TALK — Some 200 trucks were lined up this morning at the American Truck Stop on Interstate 70 in Bentleyville, Pa., where truckers were trying to talk drivers into participating in a "voluntary" park-in. Later, a number of trucks in Ohio were riddled with shotgun blasts when the drivers ignored the call for a shutdown. (UPI Telephoto) said there was no incident and that shortly after 6 a.m. the truckers obeyed an ultimatum from patrolmen and started to move.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said seven trucks were hit by shotgun blasts in the Youngstown area, two more trucks were shot at—but not hit—in southwestern Ohio, and there were at least 12 incidents of bricks and bottles thrown at trucks. Police also reported several trucks were forced off the road.

Michael Shipp, 28, of Ravenna, Ohio, suffered cuts Wednesday night when the windshield of his truck was smashed with a brick northwest of Akron on Interstate 76. He was treated and released at a Barberton, Ohio, hospital.

In Pennsylvania, state police said the windshields of three trucks traveling on the western half of the Pennsylvania Turnpike were smashed by two bricks and beer bottles dropped from overhead bridges. Police also said at least 25 truck drivers who drove during the park-in reported they were threatened by other truckers wanting them to park their rigs.

In Columbiana, Ohio, truck drivers stood in the middle of several junctions flagging down oncoming truckers and asking them to pull thir rigs over. The highway patrol said apparently no force was used and the stopped truckers were willingly cooperating.

No trucks were reported blocking roadways in Ohio, but in Michigan, angry truckers blocked traffic by parking on expressways in two locations, west and south of Detroit. In both cases police cleared the highways within an hour.

Man Exempted From Slope Law

A Larkspur property owner, who purchased land in the city before a slope ordinance was passed, can build three homes on the property even though only one is allowed under the ordinance, the city's planning commission has decided.

John E. Roberto, city planning director, said the case of Kurt Hagen's property on Cedar Avenue near Hawthrone Avenue is unique in slope and no other property owners will benefit from the commission's decision.

The ordinance, passed in September, limits the number of buildings on a piece of land in relation to its slope.

Commissioners approved Hagen's request on a 3-1 vote with Earl J. O'Grady opposing without comment and Otto Hoefler absent.

rug out from under us," Johnson said. "Until November, we were given no official notice of our allocation and no guidelines."

Others at the hospital said the county should have been aware of the spending patterns since bills were submitted each month.

(Last May, when a similar financial mess developed, county health officials told supervisors a close watch would be kept on billings in the future.)

Dr. Robert Taylor, head of county mental health services, told the county mental health advisory board last night he accepts much of the blame for the latest foulup.

According to Taylor, the county was not informed of the state allocation of Medi-Cal psychiatric funds until late August but then failed —for several reasons —to notify the hospitals until November.

The state allocation — totaling $1.2 million — equals the amount spent by mental health facilities (including the hospitals) last year but instead of apportioning it on the basis of last year's spending several new facilities were given a piece of the pie.

Why Ross and Marin General were not informed until November was not clearly explained by Taylor last night, who said department administration was complicated by its reorganization under the new health and human services superagency headed by Betty L. Presley.

Miss Presley, meanwhile, could not be reached for comment yesterday, even though all questions were referred to her by the county administrator's office and the mental health department.

Attending last night's session of the mental health advisory board were more than 50 persons who urged an inquiry into the foulup. The board responded by appointing a special committee.

Benjamin S. Westheimer, an employee of Ross General and spokesman for a group called Concerned Citizens for Mental Health in Marin County, said his investigation showed "a large number" of out-of-county residents have been treated and billed against Marin's allocation.

Unless new funds are found, he said, large numbers of emotionally disturbed persons will go uncared for and unsupervised in Marin.

Dr. Taylor said meetings are planned with state officials to request additional funds and an audit will be conducted by the state in the next week. Under similar circumstances last year, such funds were obtained.

He said he also will discuss the matter with county supervisors Tuesday and request actions necessary to provide inpatient care.

Driver Follows Auto Off Road

Highway patrol officers said a car driven by Jack Watson Jr., 35, of 411 A Street, Petaluma, ran off Cleveland Avenue and hit a pole at 7:30 p.m. A second car, operated by Tommy Ray Johnson, 21, of 317 Fourth Street, Petaluma, then also left the road and hit the back of Watson's vehicle, officers said.

A passenger in Watson's car, Delbert Hanson, 34, of 624 Eastman Lane, Petaluma, was the only person injured. He was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for facial scrapes.

The conflicting staff and citizen's committee views will be forwarded to city consultants Duncan and Jones for use in drafting a second version of the plan.

It was uncertain today how the consultants will weigh the discrepant recommendations.

The bulk of committee members voting indicated support for proposals to set a quota of 500 units annually for the San Rafael planning area, encourage increased residential, retail, and office development in the downtown and in the Northgate areas, promote tourism in the city and set a building height limit downtown.

Citizens also said the city should aggressively attract "desirable enterprises," study alternatives to a revised east-west traffic corridor downtown, and restrict additional lanes on Highway 101 for mass transit use only.

Committee members overwhelmingly supported a proposal that the city not bear the burden of additional traffic destined for West Marin, and unanimously endorsed a proposal that the city consider stricter criteria to judge residential development proposals.

Citizens opposed designation of northern portions of San Rafael as an industrial preserve, saying the area should be an agricultural and recreational preserve instead.

Citizens also supported a connector road linking Lincoln Avenue to Los Ranchitos or Merrydale roads, and narrowly rejected a proposal to link Freitas Parkway and Butterfield Road.

TAPES

time to ascertain whether the gap could have been a result of improper use of the recorder.

"Yet to be confirmed are some indications" that the hum could have been caused by Miss Woods' pushing the "record" button while listening to the tape, the report said.

The experts said they would use "sophisticated equipment" including computers for continued tests of the tape.

Miss Woods has testified that she may have caused part of the gap in the tape by pushing the record button accidentally while she was transcribing the tapes. White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt said the noise in the gap could have been caused by an electric typewriter and a high intensity lamp.

But the technical experts told Sirica that the preliminary report showed "neither the Tensor lamp nor the typewriter was the likely cause of the 18-minute buzz."

Miss Woods testified that when she was transcribing the recording of the Nixon-Haldeman meeting, she was distracted by a telephone call and may have accidentally pushed the record button.

But she said her "accident" could only account for about five minutes of the 18 minute gap.

Buzhardt testified that by using the same tape recorder and Miss Woods' typewriter and lamp, he was able to produce a similar sound to the buzz on the tape.

But White House lawyers acknowledged they were unable to come up with a satisfactory explanation for the full 18-minute gap.

The part of the tape that was obliterated was played in Sirica's open court a couple of weeks ago. The first part of the gap contained a hum of one tone and the second part a similar noise but at a different level.

Sirica has seven Watergate tapes in his custody and has been listening to them privately to determine whether they contained material needed in the Watergate grand jury's investigation.

The judge's clerk said Sirica planned to start listening today to recordings of two more 1972 presidential conversations with aides which were said to have included discussion of Watergate.

Jaworski and the White House meantime complimented each other on their new-found cooperation on tapes and other White House documents.

COST

committee his staff had worked for more than two months to cut the construction cost of the terminal from $8.8 million to $6.9 million. He did not detail what was cut to lower the cost, beyond noting several hundred thousand dollars was saved by simplifying berthing facilities.

(Braccia told the I-J in late October the terminal would cost $4.5 million to build, then two weeks later came out with the $8.8 million estimate.)

Other major costs besides the $6,906,700 — if the roof is included — are: $1,250,000 for the 25-acre site; $490,000 for the Muzzi property for disposal of dredged spoitsl; $1,532,290 for consultants, including design, engineering and supervision of construction, and $200,000 estimated for road and utility improvements. The total: $10,378,990.

Braccia assured the committee his new estimates should not change much if construction contracts are let by June. The first new ferry is due to start service then, but the terminal will not be ready for even temporary use until next December, he said. "Substantial completion" of the terminal should come by June, 1975, he added.

The committee postponed action on Braccia's report to 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in toll plaza offices.

Defending his plan for a huge flat plexiglass roof atop a cantilevered steel honeycomb, Braccia said it was designed "to excite the people of Marin County" and thus encourage use of the ferries. "The cost of everything has gone up unbelievably," he lamented, but added that to roof the terminal later "would magnify costs."

Another district consultant, Richard Smart, who handles its applications for federal grants that now cover 80 per cent of capital cost for transit facilities, said the government "will put up whatever funds are necessary to put this (terminal) through," but he was uncertain extra grants would be made for more than the minimum needed.

The federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration already has contributed about $15 million toward the cost of the ferry system. The cost originally was figured at $21.2 million, but largely because of inflation has gone to about $27 million.

Another $2,861,000 grant, combined with a $2.5 million contingency budget in the original grant, should be enough to finance completion of the Larkspur terminal, the staff said.

In related business, the committee recommended the district file a claim of eminent domain for the Muzzi property. Condemning the property could take six months, the staff estimated.

It also endorsed a change order increasing the cost of the three new ferryboats by $103,800. The cost, spread over all three vessels, includes $83,000 to modify side doors to match automated boarding ramps mounted on the floats, and $20,800 for automatic control switches.

Ferry transit manager Stanley M. Kowleski said the ferries will dock at Larkspur by pushbuttons controlling the boarding ramps and lights ashore.

Meeting as the public information and governmental affairs committee, directors postponed to Jan. 4 a San Francisco designer's plan to shine a rainbow across the Golden Gate Bridge.

LABOR DISPUTE — Striking hospital workers, picketing at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael, block a construction road at the hospital today to prevent a dozen carpenters from going to work. Striking carpenters threatened to have 200 men on hand to stop the carpenters from working, but only two pickets were at the construction site by midmorning.

Carpenters Kept Off Jobs By Picket Line

By BILL ROBERTS

A threatened confrontation between striking carpenters and working union members did not materialize today but a handful of pickets from the striking hospital workers union turned the carpenters away from their jobs.

Carpenters union members yesterday threatened to bring 200 men to the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center job to prevent Local 35 carpenters from going to work today, but only two pickets showed up.

Geoffrey Sackett, spokesman for the striking hospital workers, said the pickets moved to the construction site to put added pressure on Kaiser in their own strike.

"This sure beats getting your xxx kicked by 200 guys," said one carpenter as seven women pickets and one man marched across the carpenters' access road to the construction.

"It's a way out," said another.

Working carpenters were threatened yesterday by two dozen striking union members but all of the men remained on the job.

Extra Kaiser security officers were on duty this morning and three San Rafael police cars patroled the hospital area as everyone expected trouble.

Nobody at the scene or Local 35 headquarters could say what happened to the threatened mass turnout by striking carpenters.

Carpenters who worked yesterday agreed that if the two carpenters union pickets were alone the working carpenters would have been on the job today. "But I won't ask my men to walk through that," a spokesman for the carpenters said of the hospital picket line.

Sackett said the hospital workers would continue to march at the construction site until their strike is resolved.

Carpenters said they would return tomorrow to see if they can go back to work.

Dan Maglione, project superintendent for F. P. Lathrop Co., general contractor of the hospital addition, said all other crafts had crossed the hospital workers line. "It's an independent road that belongs to the project," he said of the pickets' new location. He said other crafts could work for a month without the carpenters.

Carpenters remained off the job at the Courthouse Square office-parking complex and Firemen's Fund Insurance building in San Rafael and the Highway 101 project in Novato.

One union picket said other striking carpenters might again try to shut down other construction projects but no information was available on which projects they might hit.

Carpenters began picketing the jobs last week over a wage dispute. They were due a 65-cent raise in June but it was limited to 15 cents by the federal government's price control administration.

Hospital workers from Local 250 of the Hospital and Institutional Workers Union left their jobs Friday after demanding an 8.2 per cent pay increase and being offered only 6.5 per cent by Kaiser.

Both sides in the dispute were compiling new information on wages and fringe benefits today before negotiations resume.

Imaginary Earthquake Drill Held

Marin County disaster officials dealt today with an imaginary earthquake that caused massive damage to Marin, similar to the real earthquake in the San Fernando Valley in February 1971.

Based on what federal earthquake studies said could happen in the county, the disaster workers had to cope with collapse of Stafford and Phoenix dams, massive gas and sewer main breaks, loss of telephone service, collapsed school buildings and severe damage to Highway 101 at Greenbrae, Puerto Suello and other points.

For the first time, Marin's schools cooperated in the training. County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis dispatched school buses to evacuate portions of the Ross Valley, Terra Linda and West Novato. In the schools themselves students went through earthquake drill.

Frank E. Kirby, county emergency services coordinator, said less stress was placed on how many people would be killed or hurt in a serious quake than in how to handle damage to buildings, highways and utilities.

Earlier drills tested emergency plans prepared by medical services.

The theoretical quake was based on a heavy shock along a 50-mile fault line through Marin. As simulated disaster reports poured into the operating center in the Marin County Civic Center, Kirby flashed onto a screen slides of actual damage in the San Fernando quake and the earlier Crescent City tidal wave.

Participants in the training drill included county, city and district officials, and representatives of the California Highway Patrol, Pacific Telephone, Pacific Gas and Electric, Red Cross, Volunteer Radiomen and others. Several Marin County Grand Jury members watched.

Corona Quiet On Attackers

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Juan Corona's attorney says the mass murderer won't identify the convicts who stabbed him 32 times, causing him to lose an eye.

The prison "can't gaurantee his safety and he's not going to stick his neck out," attorney Louis Garcia said yesterday.

Michael Nail, deputy district attorney for Solano County, said evidence had been collected connecting five convicts with the Dec. 1 attack but that he hadn't decided whether to file charges.

Corona, convicted of hacking to death 25 field hands near Yuba City, is confined at the California Medical Facility.

U.N. Secretary General Will Preside At Geneva

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed with other members of the Security Council that Secretary General Kurt Waldheim will preside at the opening session of the Middle East peace conference in Geneva Tuesday, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said the 15 council members met secretly late Wednesday and reached the unanimous decision that Waldheim should be the presiding officer at the opening round, which is expected to be brief.

The diplomatic sources said council members still were awaiting a formal invitation for U.N. participation from the Soviet Union and the United States, which organized the conference. They said they also had not received approval from all parties to the peace talks, notably Israel.

The sources said the council members met in a small basement conference room late yesterday with Ambassador Huang Hua of China, the December council president whose government opposes U.N. involvement in the Middle East.

Afterward, the sources said, 14 members met without Huang to draft a resolution to go before the council, probably at an informal meeting, before Waldheim leaves for Geneva Saturday.

The eight non-aligned members of the council prepared one resolution Wednesday calling on Waldheim to preside.

Diplomats had understood that Moscow and Washington wished to share co-chairmanship of the Mideast conference but the eight non-aligned members of the Council have been agitating for weeks to get the Geneva talks under the wing of the United Nations.

Bayh Attacks Oil Blackmail

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said yesterday the United States should not "begin the awful process of knuckling under to the international blackmail of the Arab oil states."

Bayh keynoted a tribute dinner sponsored by the AntiDefamation League of B'nai B'rith in honor of Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, who received the group's national Humanitarian Award.

ROSS TRADITION SKIRTS ENERGY CRISIS

The huge tree at Katharine Branson School in Ross glows as it has done each Christmas for 52 years. To compensate for the hour or two display each evening, students and school officials said yesterday, they've turned off other campus lights using twice as much energy while the tree is lit. The traditional tree's lights use 4,000 watts, about as much as two or three portable electric heaters. It will be lighted only through Wednesday, when the students' Christmas vacation starts.

Rain Falls Heavily In Marin

A blustery storm hit Marin and Southern Sonoma Counties last night, dumping more than an inch of rain in parts of Marin and lesser amounts elsewhere.

Woodacre reported the most rain with 1.31 inches and San Anselmo had one inch up to 8 a.m. San Rafael recorded 1.11 inch up to noon today.

Other rainfall readings were: Marinwood, .80; Fairfax, .70; Novato, .37 and Petaluma, .14

The wind had died down by morning and the skies were clearing.

The weather forecast was for 40 per cent chance of rain tonight; fair tomorrow with decreasing winds.

No Discussion On Waterfront

A new plan for development of Sausalito's central waterfront will not be considered tonight by the city council, as previously scheduled, according to City Clerk Miriam Ansell.

Steve Siskind of Environmental Systems Inc., who was to present the waterfront proposal, has been called out of town. Discussion of the plan will be on a date to be announced.

Councilmen will consider granting two hours free parking for downtown shoppers during the Christmas season when it meets at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

A Holiday Feast For Stray Dogs

PLYMOUTH, England (UPI) — Animal lovers, annoyed by criticism of a $500 Christmas dinner of turkey and rabbit planned for stray dogs, sent in more money. Now rice pudding has been added to the feast.

"Many animal lovers are so disgusted by the criticism of the dinner," said superintendent Ken Taylor, "they have said they will not contribute to appeals for human beings.

Marin Over Crusade Goal, Bay Area Short

The 1973 United Bay Area Crusade collected $198,810 in Marin County, more than the county's $151,500 goal and about 16 per cent more than was collected last year, UBAC officials said today.

Yesterday was the final day for the 1973 campaign, although donations will continue to arrive, they said.

Despite Marin's strong showing, the total collected in the Bay Area is $16,209,897, less than the crusade's areawide goal of $17.5 million.

"Although the campaign is closing, volunteer leaders will continue through the first of the year to bring in every dollar possible," Bay Area campaign chairman Stuart Menist said. "We fully expect another $300 thousand."

Menist called the drive "a good campaign." Nonetheless, officials at the campaign's San Francisco headquarters said collections were hindered to some extent by less money from some business donors. The campaign was extended an extra three weeks this year, officials said.

Slayer Is Given Prison Sentence

OAKLAND (UPI) — An Oakland man was sentenced to 10 years to life in prison yesterday for the murder of a policeman who was shot to death with his own gun.

Robert E. Simmons, 28, was sentenced by Alameda County Superior Court Judge Harold B. Hobe, who called the shooting "vicious, nonsensical and useless."

The police officer, Robert Blan, was shot last May 23 after stopping a car driven by Simmons because it had outstanding traffic warrants against it. Simmons claimed during his jury trial that he blacked out because he had taken narcotics and alcohol and did not remember shooting Blan.

Rifle Range Plan Wins Endorsement

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission last night took an enthusiastic look at plans presented by the Police Athletic League for an indoor rifle range building at Schollenberger River Park.

Capt. Henry Eslick, representing PAL, showed the commission architectural drawings of the building proposed by his group. He said that through donated labor, materials and money, the league would be able to finance the building, estimated to cost $55,000, although it might take two years to raise the funds.

The building would be used not only for league activities, he said, but also for other youth groups, the police and the public. The commission asked Eslick to come back to the Jan. 9 meeting with final plans for the range, which they heartily endorsed, since the city now has no such facility.

If approved by the commission, the plans would go before the city council.

Mosquito District Eyes Sonoma Annex

The Marin Mosquito Abatement District may annex portions of Southern Sonoma County which now have no mosquito control.

The district board last night agreed to pursue annexation of Rohnert Park, Cotati, Sebastopol and their environs if the consolidation does not result in higher taxes for current district residents, said Allan D. Telford, district manager.

Petaluma is already a part of the Marin district, but other Southern Sonoma areas have no mosquito abatement program, according to the manager.

He said requests for the annexation have come from the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors and Health Department and the State Department of Public Health.

The district's current tax rate is two cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The board plans to study the financial impact of the annexation, Telford said.

Planner Won't Take New Term

Novato planning commissioner Beverly Ehreth, whose term expires this month, has notified the city she won't accept reappointment.

With Mrs. Ehreth declining, two seats will be open on the seven-member commission, since Leroy J. Syrop resigned last month.

Eight applicants for the planning commission posts are scheduled to be interviewed by the city Council Saturday.

City Clerk Peggy Lehigh reported the city also is seeking applicants for an opening on the plan review committee and interested persons can apply at the Novato City Hall.

Ban Sought On Asbestos Pipe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Further production of asbestos cement waterpipe for drinking water should be banned because the 200,000 miles of it that already exist in this country may be exposing Americans to a needless cancer risk, according to a group of researchers.

The request for a ban has been lodged with the Environmental Protection Agency by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, brought an immediate counter attack from the asbestros industry which says there is no evidence to link watercarried asbestros to cancer or any other health problem.

Living Costs Up

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Prices in Holland rose by an average of more than 5 per cent in the first eight months of 1973. By summer the price index for family consumption stood at 130.1, compared to the 1969 index of 100.

Another Clash Over Bus Charges

Marin and Golden Gate Bridge District officials clashed again yesterday over sharing the cost of bus service and got nowhere. (Another bridge district story, page 1.)

Negotiations have been going on for two years over the issue of who pays the cost of passengers who board and get off transbay buses within the county.

With the subsidy pegged at 34.5 cents for each rider, the bridge district figures the county should pay $295,656 this year. State law requires the county to pay for such purely local benefits of the bus system, according to the bridge district.

Officials of the county's transit district counter that local passengers are riding transbay buses that operate anyway, so their fares are "gravy" to the bridge district.

In any event, the county transit district can't afford the bill because it already pays $600,000 for local bus service. The two figures come to some $200,000 more than the district raises with its maximum property tax rate of a nickel per $100 assessed valuation.

Marin County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. urged the bridge district to bill the county only $85,000 next fiscal year — as it did this year — to help win voter approval in June of hiking the tax rate to 25 cents.

He and Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini argued county voters will approve the increase only if it will finance improved local transit, and will turn it down if most of the money simply goes to the bridge district for existing service.

Bridge director Lowell Edington of Napa County insisted state law required the county to pay the cost of moving local riders, regardless of whether they rode local or transbay buses.

Ray W. Foreaker, general manager of the county transit district, retorted that the bridge district is "as hard-nosed as any public agency I've ever seen," and suggested it might be best for the county to pull its tax funds out of the bridge district and run its own local bus system.

Edington, however, rebutted that "what stands out like a sore thumb is that 65 per cent of our (bus) mileage is in Marin, while you pay for 22.4 per cent of the benefit."

Citing Marin as "the most affluent financial county in the United States," Edington insisted that "someway you're going to have to get more money out of Marin County." Even with a 75-cent toll, the bridge district's transit system will be pressed hard by inflating operating deficits, he said.

Another "negotiating" session will be held sometime during the last week of January.

Holiday Bonus

FILEY, England (UPI) — The non-smoking boss at an electronic firm here has promised non-smokers working for him Christmas bonuses of up to $37.50 each. He says the scheme will cost him more than $5,000.

Adult Classes To Be Offered

Adult education classes will be offered to canal area residents at Bahia Vista School next month.

Evening classes scheduled include family communication, English and crafts, according to Pauline Haro, president of the Canal Area Neighborhood Action League.

She said residents wanting to enroll may contact the San Rafael schools administration.

HUGE DOGS GO TO SCHOOL

Brenda, a 140-pound St. Bernard, gets an assist in her cart-hauling visit to the Cedars School in Ross from Breakaway, a mere 70-pound youngster of 6 months. Members of the St. Bernard Club of the Pacific Coast, headed by Douglas and Penny Mahon of Sleepy Hollow, staged an obedience demonstration and let Cedars youngsters take cart rides yesterday. Onlookers described the affair as a tumultuous love-in between dogs and children, with the big creatures enjoying hugs and pats by the hundreds. The dog owners paid a similar visit to Marindale School earlier, and will be visiting other schools for handicapped youngsters next week.

Racial Fighting Closes School

CITRONELLE, Ala. (UPI) — Classes were dismissed at Citronelle High School yesterday following an outbreak of fighting between white and black students which led to two minor injuries and 11 arrests.

Mayor Clay Bassett said only "15 to 20 students" were involved in the fighting which began in a restroom of the 1,148-student school.

Bassett said the incident stemmed from a fight between some of the students the previous Friday at a local drive-in.

1968 Draft Case Is Retried With Victory For Defendant

By ERNEST MURPHY

Rather than being kangaroo court justice, it was a rhetoric class's reenactment of a civil liberties case. It differed from the original in that the defendant was found innocent.

Jean Hartley, speech department chairman and rhetoric teacher, explained how the class project came about.

"One of the purposes of the course was to study the three presidential candidates of '72, and from this we got involved in studying forms of protest. We read about this case toward the end of the semester and decided to use it because it was such a clear cut, simple case of constitutional rights," she said.

The class project was closer to a debate tournament than a play, though, because students playing roles ad-libbed their performances. A 12-person volunteer jury of students and faculty members reached a verdict based on the arguments.

Yesterday's mock trial was based on the case of Paul Robert Cohen who was tried in the Los Angeles Municipal Court in 1971 on a charge of disturbing the peace by wearing a jacket emblazoned with "xxxx the Draft" in the corridor of a courthouse in 1968.

As the Dominican version of the trial was called to order by Judd Iversen, a law instructor playing judge, prosecuting attorneys Jody Bertolucci and Lou Buxton argued that the defendant, played by Kathy Kastner, was in clear violation of a California Penal Code section on public conduct.

Defense attorneys Marc Gartman and Yvonne Wright said the defendant was merely expressing a personal belief, a right guaranteed by the Constitution.

The defendant himself took the stand to say that the slogan was not meant to incite violence but was "the most appropriate way for me to express myself."

"If there is any doubt in your minds that he committed a crime you must not convict him," Gartman admonished the jurors. "This defendant is charged with a violation of Section 415 of the penal code — a law which is over-broad and outdated. It encompasses acts ranging from speaking loudly to holding horse races.

But prosecutor Bertolucci instructed the jury differently. "The law has established that freedom of speech is not absolute, but must be balanced against other elements of the public interest," she said.

After the trial was over, Judd discussed the performances with the students.

"The thing to remember is that you're playing to an audience of 12 people who know nothing about the case but what you tell them," he said.

"It's a dramatic situation and you have to play it strongly. Watch Billy Graham — he'll move people's emotions and then calm them down a little bit. But he's always moving them in a certain direction."

Reagan Defends Nixon On Taxes

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, who paid no California income taxes in 1970, says President Nixon is justified in not paying California income taxes.

And he disagrees with California congressmen who contend the President should pay a state income tax because they do.

"They're not supposed to move their residences to Washington. They're supposed to maintain residences here. They're supposed to represent an area. The president is the one man who represents 50 states, all the people."

Survey Marker May Settle Canal Battle

San Rafael city workmen yesterday unearthed a long lost 1869 survey monument on Ritter Avenue, discovery that state officials sought to verify a survey of original property lines along San Rafael Canal.

Donald J. Brittnacher, associate boundary determination officer of the State Lands Commission, told the Independent-Journal the find should assure completion of the survey in time for the commission's Jan. 31 meeting.

The monument, a six-inch square, two-foot-long block of marble, was found only about a foot from where it was noted in 1892 survey notes found last month.

The three-foot-deep hole was quickly filled in again, however, since it was in a private parking lot at 24 Ritter Avenue. A brass marker was placed on the surface above the marker.

Holiday Project

Members of the San Rafael Moose Lodge will distribute toys, food, candy and nuts the day of Christmas Eve to the children in the Center Medical Group and Marin County Juvenile Hall.

A Freight Truck Plan Developed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State University researchers have developed a program which could cut the number of trucks making small freight deliveries in large cities by about 90 per cent and which would result in less traffic congestion, fuel savings and cleaner air, officials said today.

The program proposed establishment of consolidated freight terminals to receive, sort and send shipments in fewer trucks than currently used.

Researchers said shipments of a thousand pounds or less represent most of the deliveries and pickups in a city.

Where do you want the freezer in your new Amana refrigerator...

on the side? on the bottom? on the top?

Amana gives you a choice

If you want your zero degree freezer on the side, there's the Amana Side-by-Side. Or you can have it on the top or the bottom. They're all Free-O'-Frost in both the refrigerator and freezer.

And every Amana has two independent temperature controls, one for the freezer, one for the refrigerator. There's a "refrigerator-within-a-refrigerator" that keeps meat fresh up to twice as long as an ordinary meat keeper. And a high-humidity compartment that keeps vegetables fresh up to three weeks.

Come and look at the choices Amana has for you. Then choose the one you want from gold, avocado, coppertone or white.

The Last Drink of 1973.

We promise this will be the very last Smirnoff drink suggestion we'll make this year. It's called the Smirnoff Holiday Sour.

The reason we call it the Holiday Sour is that it can be made a few hours before you have friends over and refrigerated till they arrive. So when they do, you can relax and enjoy the time with them.

Below you'll find recipes for an individual Smirnoff Holiday Sour, a quart size, a half-gallon size, a two-gallon punch bowl size and if you're really having a bash, a fifteen-gallon bathtub size.

Whether or not you take our suggestion, we hope you'll have a happy holiday.

The One Drink-Three-Ounce Size.

Mix together in a shaker or empty jar the following: 1/2 ounce of lemon juice—1 teaspoon of sugar—1 ounce of water—1-1/2 ounces of Smirnoff.

The Ten-Drink Size.

Mix together in an empty quart juice bottle the following: 5 ounces of lemon juice—3 tablespoons of sugar—10 ounces of water—1 pint or 2 cups of Smirnoff.

The Forty-Drink Size.

Mix together in a gallon jug the following: 20 ounces of lemon juice—7/8 cup of sugar—5 cups water—2 quarts of Smirnoff.

The Eighty-Drink Size.

Mix together in a two-gallon punch bowl the following: 5 cups of lemon juice—1-3/4 cups of sugar—2-2/3 quarts of water—4 quarts of Smirnoff.

The Six-Hundred-Drink Size.

Mix together in a tub: 9-1/2 quarts of lemon juice—12 cups of sugar—5 gallons of water—28 quarts of Smirnoff.

If you want a sweeter sour, just add more sugar. Or if you want a more tart sour, just add more lemon juice.

However, we do think it's wise to serve it in a short glass over a generous quantity of ice.

And for the final touch, you may use the traditional garnish of sliced oranges and maraschino cherries.

Smirnoff
leaves you breathless.®

Rohnert Park Mayor To Seek Reelection

ARMANDO FLORES
Seeks reelection

Armando Flores, mayor of Rohnert Park, has announced his candidacy for another term on the city council in the election to be held March 5.

Flores, 32-year-old educator, was appointed to fill a vacancy on the council in December, 1971. He was elected mayor by his fellow councilmen last April.

In addition to his service on the city council, Flores has served on the Sonoma County Grand Jury, the Rohnert Park Cultural Arts Corporation and as a coach for boys baseball in the community and also has worked with the cub scouts.

Flores is an administrator-teacher in the Sausalito School District. He holds a bachelor's degree from the University of San Francisco and a teaching credential from San Francisco State College. He has served as president of the Sausalito Teachers Association.

In announcing his candidacy, Flores said he planned to work toward two major projects in Rohnert Park, a permanent library and a fire substation, if elected in March.

In a campaign statement, he said "controlled residential development has enabled commercial enterprises to expand and become competitive" in Rohnert Park. He said he hopes that "continued growth of commercial and light industrial businesses will alleviate the tax burden on homeowners."

He cited a 12-cent per $100 of assessed valuation tax rate drop this year in the city.

His fellow councilman, Arthur N. Roberts, whose term also expires this spring, has indicated he, too, plans to run in the March election.

No other candidate for the two vacancies has filed papers yet.

Plea Is Planned To Little League

The Mill Valley Human Rights Commission will write to national, regional and local Little League offices to ask them to start a pilot boy-girl baseball program in Marin County next summer.

Chairman Edith Freeman said the commission decided Tuesday that besides writing the letters it will go to the county human rights commission in January to ask for help in getting the Little League to integrate girls and boys.

The actions came one week after the city council decided to allow the boys-only Little League to play in Mill Valley parks for one more year in hopes that the national office of the baseball group will begin allowing girls to play in its games soon.

Birth Defects Blamed On Spray

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A suburban Philadelphia couple has filed a $7.2 million damage suit against the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. (3M) of St. Paul, charging its spray adhesive caused birth deformities to their son last year.

Ralph and Susan Hill, of West Chester, Pa., claimed that the spray they used in their hooe caused genetic damage to their son during the mother's pregnancy. Their son, Christopher, was born Sept. 2, 1972.

The suit said the child was born without a lower left leg and had defects of the nervous system and five sensory functions.

Detective Stinson Is Top Officer

Detective Barxdal W. (Bart) Stinson of the San Rafael Police Department is Marin County's "Peace Officer of the Year," chosen by the Marin County Peace Officers Association.

H. Eric Newlin, 17-year-old Larkspur youth who trailed a pair of robbery suspects and was shot twice in the pursuit, is the association's "Citizen of the Year."

The awards were presented at a dinner meeting of the association Tuesday at San Quentin Prison.

The meeting also included election of officers for next year. Sgt. Henry W. Ingwersen of the San Rafael Police Department was elected president, succeeding Arthur S. Olson of the California Highway Patrol. Detective William G. Palmini Jr. of the Sausalito Police Department was elected first vice president, and Sgt. Charles Newman of the Corte Madera Police Department, second vice president. Arthur H. Fellows, retired San Rafael police sergeant, was reelected secretary-treasurer.

Detective Stinson was named "Peace Officer of the Year" for "sustained superior performance." The association's nominating committee for the award reported that within the last three years, Stinson has cleared 100 burglaries, numerous forgeries, and a robbery for other jurisdictions, in addition to those solved for the San Rafael department, of which there were 19 this year alone.

"A specific example of the tireless manner in which Detective Stinson pursues all assigned tasks," said the award letter, "is demonstrated in his recent clearance of a series of residential robber-rape-burglaries occurring in Marinwood, Terra Linda, and the Dominican area of San Rafael. This case is particularly noteworthy since there were little or no investigative leads upon which to initiate the investigation; however, through perseverance and thoroughness, Detective Stinson successfully concluded the investigation and ultimately relieved the tension which existed within the community."

Young Newlin performed the act for which he was honored on Oct. 27, when he went to Swensen's Ice Cream Parlor in Greenbrae to pick up a friend and saw two men behaving suspiciously. When the pair drove off, he pursued. Near the Hutchinson Quarry, he was shot twice and seriously wounded. But he returned with the license number of the car and gave it to police and only then learned that the pair had held up and robbed the ice cream parlor.

A runner-up for "Peace Officer of the Year" was detective Donald Luther of the Novato Police Department for his role during a holdup of the Central Bank in Novato last June 12, in which he disarmed a robber at risk of his life.

Runner-up for "Citizen of the Year" was Jami R. Allen of Sausalito, whose calmness during an attempt to hold up the Sausalito branch of Bank of America, where she was a teller, was credited with leading to capture of the robber without violence.

The 1974 officers of the association will be installed at a dinner meeting Jan. 19 at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club.

SLOWDOWN SIGNED — Gov. Ronald Reagan signed "energy crisis" legislation to roll back the California speed limit from 65 to 55 miles an hour effective Jan. 1. Reagan signed the bill immediately after returning to the Capitol from a two-and-a-half week absence, during which he visited Australia.

Governor Signs Bill To Cut Speed Limit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday signed "energy crisis" legislation to roll back the California speed limit from 65 miles an hour to 55 m.p.h. effective Jan. 1.

"I don't think it is too much of a hardship on people," Reagan said of the speed reduction. "I think they're willing. If we don't take action, we are going to wind up with things that are far more restrictive than we don't like."

Reagan signed the bill (AB1969) by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, at a hastily called mini-ceremony immediately after returning to the Capitol following a two-and-a-half week absence.

The bill, passed last week by the legislature while Reagan was on a tour of Australia, Singapore and Indonesia, is aimed at easing the fuel shortage by reducing total annual gasoline consumption in California by 300 million gallons, or 3 per cent.

Reagan, in response to newsmen's questions, declined to comment directly on a pending Democratic-sponsored bill that would establish state Resources Secretary Norman B. Livermore Jr. as a powerful state energy "czar" with vast authority to allocate fuel, administer car pools, and impose gasoline rationing.

Reagan said he opposed creating a new state agency to deal with the energy crisis because "new government programs have a way of becoming permanent." The bill would use existing governmental structure.

Speed Cut Said Unlikely To Reduce Crash Rate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski today warned motorists not to be "lulled into a false sense of security" when the state's maximum speed limit becomes 55 miles per hour.

Forecasts that traffic accidents and deaths will fall dramatically when the limit becomes 55 m.p.h. could prove false, Pudinski said.

"Several factors indicate the accident decline could be slight or even non-existent — but the most damaging aspect may be that drivers hearing these optimistic statements will be lulled into a false sense of security," Pudinski said.

"On freeways, the potential for more severe rear-end accidents may be increased," Pudinski said. "The speed differential between the willful violator — the driver who operates far above the legal limit — and the 55 m.p.h. traffic flow will be that much greater, meaning rear-end and side-swipe accidents could be more serious."

Pudinski also cited the following:

"The vehicle mix is shifting. The small car population is increasing and accidents involving small cars tend to be more severe."

"The expected trend toward car pooling, putting more people in each vehicle, can result in more injuries when a car is involved in an accident."

"Fatigue, a major cause of single vehicle crashes, will be increased on longer trips because the lowered maximum speed will extend travel times. And single vehicle accidents already represent nearly 40 per cent of California's accident problem."

Pudinski said the patrol was "not distributing gloom — simply realism."

Nixon, Ford Ask Businessmen For Support On Energy Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With President Nixon leading the way, Vice President Gerald R. Ford went before many of the nation's most influential businessmen last night to personally and privately appeal for their support in the face of the energy crisis.

Nixon spent about 20 minutes visiting with about 100 members of the prestigious Business Council, a private group of corporate executives, to enlist their backing in the fight to cut down on energy consumption. Ford made his plea later and came away saying he thought he got "a reasonably good" reception.

Reporters were barred from all the proceedings, on grounds that the Business Council has a long tradition of prohibiting press coverage of its meetings. White House officials provided no advance notice of Nixon's plans to drop in at the session in a downtown Washington hotel.

Also on hand to present the administration's position were Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent, Budget Director Roy Ash and top White House officials, including presidential counselor Melvin R. Laird and chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Ford, in a brief news conference afterward, said his remarks "were primarily aimed at asking the business community to continue their sacrifice and cooperation" in the energy crisis.

"I indicated that all the evidence I had seen was persuasive that business had done a fine job in this area, but we were only starting down the road and we had a lot more to do," he said.

The vice president said that he did not think the executives showed any strong fears of an economic recession despite widespread forecasts of a downturn because of the fuel shortage.

Beyond that, Ford said "I saw no evidence" that the business leaders had lost any confidence in Nixon's ability to deal with the energy situation as a result of problems with Watergate or other allegations of scandal within the administration.

David Packard, chairman of the council and a former deputy secretary of defense under Nixon, appeared to share Ford's impressions and said he was certain the government could count on continued cooperation from the major corporations.

"The business community is concerned and we want to do our part," said the founder of the Hewlett-Packard Co., a West Coast electronics firm with many defense contracts.

Two Arrested At Construction Site

A Berkeley policeman and a San Francisco fireman were arrested on suspicion of burglary last night following the pillage of a Ross construction site.

Booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court were officer Christopher John Panagotacos, 28, of 266 Flagstone Terrace, San Rafael, and fireman Robert Louis Vergano, 28, of 32 Geary Avenue, Fairfax.

Panagotacos, booked on suspicion of burglary, joined the Berkeley department in 1968, took disability leave last February and went off the force's payroll on Aug. 3 while awaiting disability retirement, according to Berkeley Capt. Darrell Hickman.

Hickman said he views Panagotacos as a former member of the department since he is "in limbo."

Vergano, booked on suspicion of burglary and conspiracy, joined the San Francisco Fire Department in 1967.

Ross police said the two were arrested after an officer heard noises behind a home under construction at 110 Laurel Avenue, saw three men flee and discovered a pickup truck loaded with four glass doors, four ladders, boards and construction insulation.

Police said Vergano was arrested after he emerged from a nearby bush, and said Panagotacos was arrested on Laurel Avenue after he ran down the roadway ringing doorbells and telling residents his truck had been stolen.

Panagotacos told officers he was visiting a friend next door to the home under construction, police said.

Panagotacos and another man, Bruce K. Knoles of San Rafael, were charged with battery in October 1972, following an Aug. 26 brawl at a San Anselmo tavern.

Panagotacos, charged with battery against Knoles, was acquitted after a nine-day jury trial last May in Marin Municipal Court.

Knoles was convicted of battery against a woman involved in the fray, and acquitted of charges of battery against Panagotacos. He was fined $315 and sentenced to three years probation.

Tiburon Has First Council Candidate

E. BRUCE ROSS
Will run for council

Tiburon Planning Commissioner E. Bruce Ross today became the first to announce that he will run for the Tiburon City Council next spring.

Three council seats will be open in that election. Mayor Branwell D. Fanning and councilman M.Carlisle Becker have said that they will not run again. Councilman Albert H. Sennett has not stated his plans.

The 37-year-old Ross, who has been on the commission for 18 months, is a past president of the Tiburon Peninsula Advisory Committee.

A partner in the firm of Backen, Arrigoni and Ross Inc. in San Francisco, he earned his degree in architecture at the University of Oregon.

He, his wife and three children reside at 1807 Centro West Street in Tiburon. He also has coached Little League.

Ross acknowledged that the extensive downtown development project proposed by Sequoia Pacific of Santa Ana probably will be a major campaign issue in Tiburon.

Recently, he urged the city to review and update its downtown plan adopted in 1969 which serves as the basis for Sequoia Pacific's proposal. He is one of the leaders of a series of planning commission workshops at which the public is being asked to respond to the downtown plan and the Sequoia Pacific project.

"Once those 36 acres downtown are developed, it will change forever the nature and quality of life in Tiburon," he said. "I want people to feel good about it afterwards."

Ross had belonged to a group of residents who submitted a downtown plan to the city a few years ago which was turned down in favor of a plan done by architect Philip K. Buskirk, who subsequently participated in preparing the railroad development plan.

Marin Open Space Group Purchases Fairfax Land

Officials of the Marin County Open Space District have signed an agreement to buy the 481-acre Elliott property in the Cascade Canyon area of Fairfax.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said the purchase will be ratified by the open space district board Tuesday.

The property cost $405,000. Of that, $372,182 came from the district and $32,818 was donated by the property owner Floyd Elliott, according to Arrigoni.

He said the district board plans to ask the Fairfax City Council to contribute toward the acquisition.

The property is the largest parcel of land yet purchased by the district, he said.

FREEDOM GRANTED — George Metesky (center), the man initially dubbed "the mad bomber" smiles as he leaves a New York court after charges against him were dismissed, paving the way for his release from a mental institution. The judge told him yesterday "not to do it again" before dismissing charges.

(UPI Telephoto)

New York's 'Mad Bomber' Gets Freedom From Mental Hospital

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Metesky, an aggrieved expower company employee who planted a series of bombs that injured 22 people and terrorized New York during the 1940s and '50s, was declared a free man yesterday after nearly 17 years in a mental institution.

"Sixteen years ago, you caused a great deal of turmoil in this city," Acting Supreme Court Justice Joseph Martinis told George Metesky, 70. "I remember it well. Many of us had sleepless nights because of the terror you were causing. I expect there'll be no repetition."

Metesky said, "I think the judge is right. There won't be any repetition."

The forty-seven criminal charges against Metesky were dropped under the provisions of a law that calls for prisoners who have been locked up in mental hospitals to be released after they have been held longer than they would have been had they been convicted on criminal charges.

After the court hearing Metesky was sent back to Creedmoor State Hospital, where doctors have ruled him harmless and officials said he would go home today.

Metesky was accused of placing more than 20 homemade bombs in buildings and phone booths in New York City for 16 years until he was caught in 1957.

He was charged with multiple counts of attempted murder, damaging a building by explosion, possession of a bomb and related offenses, but found mentally incompetent to stand trial.

He spent 16 years in Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminally Insane. Seven months ago he was transferred to Creedmoor.

Metesky said he started planting bombs because of an industrial accident in 1935 which caused him to develop tuberculosis.

He tried to collect compensation from his employer, United Electric and Power Co., which was later taken over by Consolidated Edison, but failed, and decided to plant the bombs to dramatize his case.

A psychiatrist on the Creedmoor release committee said Matesky's formal release could come as early as Thursday. The committee recently decided Metesky "was able to function in society without danger to himself or others."

Metesky said he planned to go to Waterbury, Conn., to care for his crippled sister Mae, 77, the only surviving member of his family.

Dam Swap Proposal Made To Bolinas Utility Board

An exchange of dams owned by Point Reyes National Seashore and the Bolinas Community Public Utility District was proposed last night as a means of easing the town's water shortage and cutting back on high maintenance costs.

Director Paul D. Kayfetz told the utility board that officials from the U.S. Department of the Interior and the seashore had agreed at a meeting held Tuesday that swapping its Pepper Dam for the district's Arroyo Honda Dam would serve the interests of both.

Directors voted unanimously to hire a consulting engineer to evaluate Pepper Dam, located approximately 200 yards from the seashore's southern access road.

Pepper Dam could add more than 2 million gallons to district reserve capacity, according to Mark Ireland, engineer and former director.

Point Reyes Superintendent John L. Sansing said the exchange could be worked out quickly under a special use permit.

The directors, however, indicated they want a permanent trade.

Appraisals of the two sites must be made to determine the dollar values involved. Both lie on an Arroyo Honda creek.

Director Lewis P. MacAdams Jr., was absent.

The Bolinas Public Utility Board also:

SEWAGE — Heard that engineering plans for the proposed sewage treatment project were sent that day to the state Water Quality Control Board for preliminary approval.

ENVIRONMENTAL — Received a letter from Kirker, Chapman and Associates, design engineers, replying to a complaint by Stephen A. Warkentin that a 1972 environmental impact report on the sewage project was inadequate. The engineers said seven alternate sites were investigated and that criteria for the project were established "with the high probability of a major earthquake in mind."

PERSONNEL — Agreed at a closed session to grant a three-month leave of absence to Charles A. Alexander, assistant maintenance man, with the promise of a comparable job when he returns; to advertise for a permanent maintenance assistant; and to hire Lucy Rose as temporary replacement for Patricia Tassa, assistant secretary, who will go on leave for two months.

WATER — Heard that the district is losing about 20 per cent of its water in leaking pipes against an average loss in other districts of about 6 per cent.

Emission Rules Power Granted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an intramural battle, the Atomic Energy Commission has won sole power to set preliminary radiation emission standards for nuclear power plants.

The Environmental Protection Agency said yesterday they have been told by the Office of Management and Budget not to set leakage standards on a plant-by-plant basis. The EPA will still have authority over environmental impact statements when power plants are built and will still be able to set general standards governing radiation emissions from such plants, a spokesman said.

Malvino Will Seek Council Reelection

ALFRED J. MALVINO
Seeks third term

Alfred J. Malvino, Larkspur city councilman since 1966, today said he will seek reelection in municipal elections in March, relying heavily on his past record.

"We have accomplished a lot in the last eight years and there is room for improvement in the future," he said.

Malvino said he will continue to judge each issue before the council without prejudice if he is reelected.

The 57-year-old Malvino served as mayor in 1968 and was renamed mayor earlier this year.

He is the owner of Malvino Furniture Co. in San Francisco and has lived in Larkspur 18 years.

He was a member of the Corte Madera Flood Control Advisory Board, represented the council at the Association of Bay Area Governments. He has also been involved with several projects for youngsters in Larkspur.

Malvino and his wife, Rose, live at 87 Dartmouth Drive. They have two children.

Council seats of Malvino and Neil R. Brixon will be available in the municipal election March 5. Brixon has announced that he will not seek reelection.

College Chorus Slates Concert

The Dominican College Chorus will present a free concert of Christmas and Chanukah music at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Marin County Library at Civic Center.

The program will include daVittoria's "Jesu Dulcis Memoria," Bach's "Uns Ist Ein Kind Geboren," Mozart's "Gloria" from the "Twelfth Mass", Brahm's "Liebeslieder" and traditional Christmas carols.

Soloists will be sopranos Rebecca Olivia Jones, Toni Mehocich and Eileen Schiller; Mezzo soprano Wendy Evans; baritone Patrick Loomis; guitarist Christi Worrall and violinist Mark Jordan. Anthony Barbera is the student conductor. The concert is under the direction of Winifred Baker.

Commuter Telethon Will Close Tonight

Tonight is the last chance for commuters to register for car pools by telephone, according to Marin Sierra Club chairman Gilbert Deane.

Last night, he said, the club registered another 150 commuters in its telethon effort which ends tonight. About 150 registered on Tuesday night.

"Besides the ones we've counted, we have found that a large number of registration forms are coming from the 39 businesses which are distributing them, as well as from our post office box address," Deane said this morning.

"We'll contact everyone who registers within the next several weeks, regardless of whether we can match them up with a pool," he said.

Tonight commuters can register by calling either 461-3000 or 456-7830 between 5 and 11 p.m., Deane said.

Nixon Physical

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will undergo his annual medical checkup Saturday morning at Bethesda Naval Medical Center where he spent several days last July while recovering from a bout with viral pneumonia.

Dance Shooting Sentence Given

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A computer technician has been sentenced to from five years to life for the fatal shooting of a teen-ager during a Philippine-American Teachers Association dance in the Palace Hotel.

The sentence was imposed yesterday on Phillip Becker, 23, for the Aug. 21 slaying of Virgilio Tajada, 19, San Francisco. Police said the shooting occurred during an argument.

Becker's brother, Joseph, 24, and Nicasio P. Fernando, 21, were also arrested but later acquitted of charges. Becker was charged with second-degree murder.

Armando Aniel, 23, and Sam Parizal, 19, were wounded in the gunplay.

Operation Candor Said Helping Nixon's Image

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — President Nixon's popularity climbed four points during the past month and "Operation Candor" was a contributing factor, according to the latest Gallup Poll.

The poll released yesterday showed that between Nov. 2 and Dec. 3, the number of persons approving of the way the President is handling his job rose from 27 per cent to 31 per cent. In contrast Nixon enjoyed a solid majority approval of 68 per cent last January, before disclosure about Watergate and his personal finances.

The Gallup Organization said one factor in November's upswing was believed to be Operation Candor in which Nixon made several public appearances to bolster his image. Several of Nixon's appearances were in the south where his percentage of popularity increased seven points, three above the national average.

In conducting the nationwide poll, the Gallup Organization asked 1,550 adults "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling the job as President?"

Special Holiday Masses Tomorrow

The choir of the Portuguese Cultural Center and two Portuguese missionaries of Turlock will present a series of Portuguese Christmas programs tomorrow at St. Raphael's Church.

Revs. Jvo Rocha and Jose Carlos will hear confessions from 6 to 8 p.m. and hold high masses at 8:30 and 9:30 p.m. Portuguese Christmas carols, recitations and a live nativity scene will be presented after the second mass.

Error Blamed On Oil Group

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — An official of the Central Ohio Gasoline Dealers Association claims pressure from the oil industry forced the federal government to suddenly announce it made an error in calculating the ordered cutback in gasoline production.

"I think the government actually did want a 25 per cent reduction," said David Pickney, vice president of the association, "But I think the oil companies told (the government) it would get a 5 per cent and that's all."

Officials in Washington announced Wednesday a 25 per cent cutback effective Dec. 27, but then hours later said an error had been made in calculation and only a 5 per cent curtailment was necessary.

Water District May Not Cut Service To Outside Customers

Marin Municipal Water District customers outside the district may not lose their water service after all.

The district board yesterday voted 3-to-2 to give users of surplus water formal notice that their water service will be terminated next July. But, at the same time, directors asked the district staff to meet with the customers to try and find a way to make the shutoffs unnecessary.

Last spring the board declared that a potential water shortage exists in the district and imposed a moratorium on new water connections. At that time its attorney, Tom Thorner, said the district would find it difficult to defend its connection ban in court if it continued to provide "surplus water" to users outside the district.

In July, the board voted to cut off water to almost all customers outside the district, including the Muir Woods National Monument, Forts Barry, Baker and Cronkhite and about 20 homes on Sausalito's Wolfback Ridge.

Now this may be unnecessary, since the North Marin County Water District has offered to serve these users "on a surplus basis" until the connection ban is lifted.

The northern water district is willing to provide Marin Municipal with 320 acre feet of water a year through an intertie near Hamilton Air Force Base.

Yesterday the board asked representatives from the monument, forts and Wolfback Ridge Homeowners Association to see if some agreement could be worked out so that they can continue to be served using North Marin water.

Not all the outside customers are now willing to go along with that arrangement. "We do not want to get surplus water from North Marin, because they might cut off our water at any time, as you are trying to do," said Helen Vander Male of the Wolfback Homeowners group. She said ridge property owners are also unwilling to annex to the district at this time.

The group presented the board with a letter from its attorney, Richard H. Breiner, threatening legal action if Marin Municipal moves to stop water service to their homes. Breiner said there is no other source of water on the ridge and added: "Should service be discontinued . . . all 25 homes in the area would have to be abandoned and destroyed."

"We're extremely upset about this," Mrs. Vander Male told the board. (Representatives from the forts and monument also said they would go to court to fight any attempt to shut off their water.)

Board member John M. MacPhail Jr., who has consistently voted against halting service to outside customers, urged Mrs. Vander Male to adopt a more conciliatory attitude in her dealings with the district.

"You are throwing down the gauntlet and issuing a challenge to the board. You are saying 'we won't do this and we won't do that'," MacPhail said. "That is no way to reach a solution. The board intends to do everything possible to see that you continue to get water," the director added.

"I feel that we're morally, if not legally bound, to continue to serve them," said board president Jordan L. Martinelli Jr.

Attorney Thorner recommended that the board still send notices of termination, while the district works out a way to continue the service.

MacPhail and Martinelli voted against Thorner's suggestion. "It would be against the best interest of the district and the community," MacPhail said. "There must be other solutions."

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

RECYCLING — Agreed to let Survival Inc. include a pamphlet on recycling in district water bills.

PAYMENT — Paid Nathan Rowley, bond counsel, $1,950 for his work in the recent bond election.

DENIAL — Denied requests for variances to the connection ban from Gary Weaver for seven single-family homes in Sausalito and from J.A. Rider for a home in Mill Valley.

EXTENSION — Granted a request for a variance to obtain a pipeline extension to L. Bodian for seven homes in the Ville Moderne subdivision, Tiburon.

ANNEXATION — Voted to proceed with annexation of property around Santa Margarita School in Terra Linda and the Nunes Ranch in Lucas Valley and set a hearing on the annexations for Jan. 23.

WARM SPRINGS — Asked for a copy of the environmental impact report on the controversial Warm Springs Dam in Sonoma County and decided to request that the Environmental Protection Agency not act on the report until there has been adequate time for review by local persons and agencies. The EPA is to consider the impact statement early next month.

COMMENDATION — Commended Paul Grimes, district senior engineer, for a recent article he wrote about the district's computer program to monitor its water system. The article, "What to do Before the Computer Arrives," was published in the American Water Works Association Journal.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to Dec. 21 at 11 a.m. in the district office.

Three Face Charge Of Bus Theft

Three Petaluma teen-agers found in a big red, white and blue bus in Vallejo early yesterday were returned by police to their hometown later in the day on suspicion of stealing the vehicle.

Booked into county jail in Santa Rosa were: Daniel Paul Hollingsworth, 19, of 116 Maria Drive; David Arthur Peacock, 18, of 1252 Glenwood Drive, and Richard James Lehnherr, 18, of 2260 Ely Road.

Vallejo police said they became suspicious when they saw the big bus parked behind a gas station at 2:30 a.m. The three youths were inside, officers said.

A telephone check with Arthur Norton of Petaluma, the bus's regular driver, showed that Norton had parked the bus outside his home at 711 McDowell Boulevard in the evening and did not know it was missing.

The three youths were to appear in municipal court today.

Long-Sought Burglary Suspect Is Captured

A Santa Cruz man on the loose more than three months while Marin authorities mistakenly hunted his brother in connection with a $20,000 burglary was arrested yesterday.

Santa Cruz police took into custody Larry Lee Weaver, 29, of that city, and he was brought to Marin County Jail, where he was held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Following the June 21 burglary at the home of William Ambrose, two Oakland men were arrested and a warrant was issued for a third man.

But it wasn't until October that the Marin District Attorney's office discovered an error had been made.

Ambrose mistakenly identified the third burglar from photographs as Earl Francis Weaver, but authorities found out the man they actually wanted was his brother, Larry Weaver.

A third Weaver brother, Richard Anthony Weaver, 20, and another Oakland man, John Robert Prater, were convicted in separate trials in Marin Superior Court.

Larry Weaver was to be arraigned today in Marin Municipal Court.

BART To Buy Safety System

NEW YORK AT NIGHT

Energy crisis or no, New York, as seen from the Empire State Building, is still a strong challenger for Paris's title of "City of Light."

(UPI Telephoto)

Nixon Bares Tough Energy Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced today tough, new energy conservation measures ranging from cutting down office building lights to an edict requiring government officials to give up their limousines.

Making an appearance at a White House news conference held by his new energy adviser, William E. Simon, Nixon said he was encouraged by initial reports on the effect of energy conservation measures now in effect.

Gasoline consumption has dropped 15 per cent over the last three weeks, Nixon said.

Simon called the news conference to elaborate on the fuel allocation program he announced yesterday — including a morning announcement that gasoline production would be cut 25 per cent and a correction 10 hours later revising the reduction to 5 per cent.

The government expressed "total embarrassment" over what it said was a typographical error that went uncorrected throughout the day while stocks plummeted.

Nixon told reporters during his appearance in the White House press room —during which he did not submit to questions —that if cooperation among Americans continues, the nation will be able to deal with the energy crisis. These were among new conservation measures he announced:

Cutbacks in lighting for all commercial and industrial buildings including retail stores, factories and offices.

Highway lighting will be cut by half except for ramps and freeways.

Establish an industry energy audit committee to find ways to cut consumption.

By Jan. 1 use of limousines will be halted by all government officials, except for Nixon and Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

Federal agencies will be required to use "fuel efficient" cars and cut by 20 per cent the number of miles driven in connection with government work.

Thermostats in government buildings will be set at 65 to 68 during working hours and cut back to 55 degrees when the buildings are closed.

Simon said that the federal government reduced its energy consumption by 20 per cent during July, August and September and gasoline use by 27 per cent. Fuel oil use was trimmed by 15 per cent.

According to Simon the nation in the three weeks ending Nov. 30 was able to cut its use of crude oil by 1.1 million barrels a day. The latest figures on gasoline consumption showed a 15 per cent drop. The overall three week total for gasoline, heating oil, diesel fuel and jet fuel reached 29 per cent, Simon said.

"Everyone will sacrifice something but none will have to suffer," Nixon said. After appearing with Simon, Nixon met with a delegation of governors to push his energy program.

Nixon said he was optimistic about chances of approval shortly by Congress of emergency energy legislation. He predicted the bill would be passed before Congress recesses, possibly one week from today, until Jan. 21.

In other energy-related matters:

Shotgun blasts in Ohio and rock throwing in Pennsylvania punctuated an attempt by truckers in those states to stop work in protest of rising diesel fuel prices. The incidents involved truckers who continued to roll while others were involved in a "park-in."

British industry was placed on a three-day work week by the government in a bid to save dwindling fuel stocks in one of the gravest economic crises to hit England since the depression of the 1930s.

Some airline pilots were reported considering a protest strike during the heavily traveled weekend before Christmas to protest reduced fuel allocations which have caused layoffs that the airlines say will go over 25,000.

The airlines asked the government to reconsider its cut in jet fuel, saying the administration had "overstated" the shortage and in any event had shortchanged them.

Chrysler Corp said. 2,100 workers at two large assembly plants would be laid off beginning in early January, partly because of the energy shortage.

Thomas W. Gleason, president of the International Longshoreman's Association, said members of his union would refuse to load cargo on ships bound for Arab countries during the oil boycott.

Federal employes will be given four-day weekends over the Christmas and New Year holidays, making it possible to conserve some energy in federal buildings.

Ford asked American businessmen to "continue their sacrifice and cooperation" with the administration's fuel saving program.

William T. Slick, vice president of Exxon, told the resources committee of the National Governors' Conference in Washington that conservation and controls were fine to meet the temporary energy crisis but in the long run the United States had no choice but to boost production in its "oil and gas economy."

Belgian government sources said the European Common Market would discuss Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's call for a transatlantic crash program to ease the oil shortage when the market's leaders meet in a summit conference tomorrow and Saturday.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) authorized five Consolidated Edison power plants in New York and New Jersey to start burning heating oil and coal with higher sulphur content to meet temporary energy needs.

Closed Session

A closed meeting to discuss picking a new principal for Old Mill School will be held by the Mill Valley School District board tomorrow at 7 a.m. at Howard Johnson's restaurant on Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

Kissinger, Tho To Meet In Paris Week From Now

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, who negotiated the cease-fire that led to U. S. withdrawal from Vietnam, will meet in Paris Dec. 20, presumably to discuss the greatly increased military activity in Indochina.

A White House announcement this morning of the meeting between the U. S. secretary of state and North Vietnam's chief negotiator said only that the meeting was for a discussion of "matters of mutual interest in the present situation."

Gerald L. Warren, deputy presidential press secretary, declined to be more specific on the reason for the meeting but it apparently was arranged because of widespread violations of the cease-fire and stepped up fighting in Vietnam and Cambodia.

Warren said that the meeting was arranged by mutual agreement. He declined to say whether it was initiated by Washington or Hanoi.

The meeting will be the 28th between Kissinger and Tho, who negotiated the fragile cease-fire agreement that went into effect last Jan. 27 and was followed by the total withdrawal of U. S. combat forces from Vietnam.

The United States fulfilled its pledge to pull out within 60 days but the agreement between Kissinger and Tho did not require North Vietnam to withdraw its troops. Hanoi never publicly acknowledged it had any men in South Vietnam.

In recent weeks, there have been increased clashes in South Vietnam between government forces and the Viet Cong. Tank and large-scale infantry warfare has been raging in the Central Highlands 100 miles northeast of Saigon.

Scores of casualties have occurred in the Mekong Delta, and South Vietnamese warplanes have been bombing regularly.

White House and Pentagon officials have privately expressed growing concern of a renewed full outbreak of fighting, and Saigon reports of a possible major offensive by the Communists.

Kissinger and Tho last met June 11-13 when cease-fire violations were also rampant. As for the Dec. 20 meeting, Warren said:

"I am unable to be more specific at this time. The meeting was arranged by mutual consultations through mutual channels."

Kissinger is expected to fly to Paris after his current swing through the Mideast in an attempt to get peace talks going between the Arabs and Israelis and to solidify the cease-fire there.

Firefly Sought As Official Insect

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A bill designating the firefly as Pennsylvania's official insect was introduced yesterday.

The proposal originally came from third-grade students at the Highland Park Elementary School in State Rep. Frank Lynch's district. Lynch, who introduced the bill, also had supporting petitions signed by more than 2,000 voters.

Police Warned To Be Alert

BELFAST (UPI) — Authorities warned police today to stay on guard during off-duty hours because of a recent rash of attacks against officers across Northern Ireland.

In the latest attack against security forces, extremists set off a bomb last night in front of a police station in the town of Omagh, 25 miles southwest of Belfast.

Authorities said nobody was injured, but the police station was badly damaged and a block of office buildings and homes was set on fire.

$3.4 Million Ransom Payment To Getty Kidnapers Completed

ROME (UPI) — A $3.4 million ransom has been paid to the alleged kidnapers of J. Paul Getty III, grandson of the American oil billionaire, police sources said today.

"All of the money has now been paid," the sources close to the investigation said. "They are waiting from one moment to the next for him to be freed."

The ransom was paid in several installments to the alleged kidnapers who have kept young Getty more than five months and at one point sent a human ear to a Rome newspaper saying it would be followed by other parts of his body unless the ransom was paid.

Gail Harris, mother of young Getty, refused to comment on the report of the payment, insisting: "Nothing has changed. Everything is just as it was before."

Official police spokesmen refused to confirm or deny the final payment.

"I simply can't comment," Flying Squad Chief Fernando Masone said.

However, sources close to the investigation said that both the family and police were now awaiting word when and where young Getty would be released.

"The family has done its part," the sources said. "They have paid all the money and followed all the instructions. They are just waiting."

Mrs. Harris, the first wife of J. Paul Getty II, was described as confident that her son would be released soon.

The ransom is the highest ever paid for an individual, surpassing by more than $1 million the ransom paid almost exactly two years ago for West German supermarket owner Thomas Albrecht.

It was paid in installments since the very bulk of so large an amount of money in small notes would have taken a small truck to deliver.

The payment brought to the final stages one of the most bizarre kidnapings in modern memory and came just five months and four days after the 17-year-old J. Paul Getty III disappeared from a Rome piazza after arguing with three of his hippy friends.

The alleged kidnapers first asked for $17 million but later reduced the figure, first to $5.1 million and finally to $3.4 million.

Getty Sr., one of the world's wealthiest men, said throughout he would "not pay one cent" toward the ransom of his grandson. He said yielding to kidnapers would open his other 14 grandchildren to the danger of abduction.

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — High winds in Western Nevada, with gusts up to 60 miles per hour last night and early today uprooted trees, broke windows and damaged roofs.

Strike Fund Voted Down By Miners

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Delegates to the United Mine Workers (UMW) union 46th constitutional convention yesterday voted down a plan to establish a strike fund and allow $50 per year emergency assessments to rank and file members.

Rejection of the dual fund raising tactic, which was engineered by the reform administration of union president Arnold Miller, left the membership dependent on the union's $64.5 million general fund for benefits in the event of a strike when the current coal industry contract expires next November.

Miller's administration suffered another serious setback Wednesday night when the convention demanded a change in the constitutional clause which disbands locals containing less than 10 active miners.

Under that clause, Miller has already ordered disbandment of pensioner or "dead" locals, many of which supported incumbent W. A. (Tony) Boyle in the union's international elections last December.

The resolution to form an eventual $100 million strike fund was defeated after two attempts to make it more palatable to the money conscious convention, which had approved Tuesday a dues increase of over 100 per cent to $12.

The $50 assessment measure was intended to allow the international to raise emergency funds without a secret ballot. The ballot is required by provisions of the Landrum-Griffin Labor Act unless waived by the membership.

Neither measure would have provided sufficient funds to weather the six-month strike Miller has predicted, but their defeats raised serious questions about support for Miller's administration.

However, many delegates indicated they rejected both economic resolutions because they feared their constituents, already stung by the dues hike, would rebel openly at any further assessments.

Berkeley Man Takes Fifth On Park Ranger's Slayer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Berkeley man on trial charged with bank robbery took the Fifth Amendment yesterday rather than tell jurors the name of the person who killed a park ranger.

Alan W. Veale, 24, had testified previously that he was present Aug. 5 when Kenneth Patrick, a National Forest Service park ranger, was slain at Point Reyes National Seashore.

Paul Harris, defense attorney, had told the jury in an opening statement that his client became so upset by the slaying that he robbed the Bank of America branch in Berkeley and gave away most of the money.

Judge William T. Sweigert, in U.S. District Court, had told Veale that constitutionally he didn't have to answer questions that might incriminate him in charges beyond the robbery.

Veale and Veronza Bowers, Jr., 27, are scheduled to go on trial Jan. 7 in the Patrick slaying.

LIGHTWEIGHT FIGHTER READY

General Dynamics in Fort Worth was to roll out the first of two YF-16 lightweight fighter prototype aircraft today. The aircraft, shown in a file photo, is scheduled to make its initial flight in early 1974 at Edwards Air Force Base in California with the second to enter testing later in the year.

Anderson Linked To Boys' Home

Kenneth A. Anderson, suspended Tamalpais High School teacher fighting in Marin courts for reinstatement, helped run a controversial home in Corte Madera for delinquent boys, it was learned yesterday.

The youth program, operating without a permit in Anderson's residence at 122 Willow Avenue, was stopped late last month by William McBride, town zoning administrator, when he learned of the operation, latest in series of controversial activities at that address.

In 1971, neighbors had complained to the city administration that the house on Willow Avenue was being used as a commune and headquarters for the revolutionary White Panther Party and later a distribution center for the Food Conspiracy, a marketing operation intended to get food to the poor at lower-than-market cost.

The program for delinquent youths operated by Anderson and his brother, Bruce, came under fire Monday, when Bruce Anderson went before the town planning commission to get the required permit. Met by neighborhood protest that the program amounted to importing problems and McBride's expression of doubt as to any benefit to the community, the permit application hearing was continued to Jan. 14.

The planning commission declared it wanted more information as to the purposes, staffing and background of the operation, known as the Fern Hill Group Home.

Bruce Anderson told the planning commission the Corte Madera operation was an adjunct to Fern Hill School he operates at Booneville, Mendocino County, a state licensed rehabilitation center for boys. Only youngsters who have successfully completed their stay there would move on to Corte Madera, he said.

McBride told the commission he had "grave doubts" as to the Andersons' "capacities, based on their histories." He said they "have not furnished recommendations or records of success with the delinquents.

The Tamalpais High School District has been trying for more than two years to fire Kenneth Anderson, an English teacher, and that effort is now under way in Marin Superior Court.

Testimony — categorically denied by Anderson — has been given that the teacher played a significant role in a series of bombings perpetrated by a student of his in the spring of 1971.

The student, Bruce P. Lohmann, in a deposition read in court this week, said Anderson knew he had bombed three buildings, including Tamalpais High School, and set two fires. According to Lohmann, the teacher merely cautioned him not to get caught.

Other testimony referred to alleged improprieties with a female student and detailed his sharing a cabin in Yosemite with a 15-year-old girl student, whom the 32-year-old teacher subsequently married.

Anderson Evidence Compiled A Year

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Tamalpais High School District spent a year accumulating evidence to be used in the firing of teacher Kenneth A. Anderson, an administrator said yesterday.

The testimony of Raymond J. Bell, former principal at Tamalpais High School where Anderson taught English, came in the third day of a civil suit to fire the suspended instructor.

In some cases, Bell acknowledged minor infractions by Anderson were recorded but not for similar offenses by other teachers.

Bell said the district closely scrutinized Anderson from May 1970 to June 1971 to gather evidence to fire the tenured teacher.

In testimony supporting the district's contention that Anderson violated rules and policies, Bell said the teacher:

1. Gave his students "F" grades at midterm, then "A" grades for finals.
2. Showed a film and invited speakers into his class without first obtaining administrative approval.
3. Had a master key to the school, although teachers were not supposed to possess such keys.

During cross-examination by Anderson's attorney, Carl B. Shapiro, Bell acknowledged that giving "F" grades at midterm to shock students into improving their work wouldn't necessarily violate school policy.

But Bell said he never would have done the same thing when he taught shop, physical education and social studies.

An Attack Attempt Is Reported

A man, who matches the description of a rapist already sought in Southern Marin, tried to rape a 23-year-old Tiburon woman last night.

Tiburon Police Lt. Michael Manick said the woman was walking near the entrance to the Hilarita housing development about 9 p.m. when a man approached, threatened her with a three-inch knife and wrestled her to the ground.

The woman told police that she told the man she was an epileptic and needed to take a pill, but he ignored her. She said she then squirmed away and started screaming and he ran off.

Mannick said that police think the man may be the same one who raped another woman in Tiburon a few weeks ago. The man was described as white, with long brown hair, in his late 20s and about 5 feet, 8 inches tall.

Man Held For Attack On Woman

Sausalito police arrested a Daly City man last night in connection with the kidnap and rape of a 22-year-old cocktail waitress.

John Charles Spencer, 27, was held in county jail in lieu of $25,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

The woman identified Spencer as the man who offered her a ride Friday night from her Richardson Street home in Sausalito to her job in San Francisco, then forced her at gunpoint to drive with him to Mendocino County, police said.

She said she was raped repeatedly and forced to commit other sexual acts while she was a captive from 7:45 p.m. Friday through late Saturday, according to investigators. She said Spencer had previously made advances to her at the bar where she works, but was rebuffed.

Estudillo Elected

The Tiburon Fire Protection District board last night elected new officers for 1974 and selected Charles T. Estudillo as chairman, William J. Carter as vice chairman and Fred C. Hannahs as secretary.

Lester Flatt Is Alive And Well

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Grand Ole Opry star Lester Flatt says he is alive and well, despite reports indicating his death in the November issue of Esquire Magazine. Flatt has filed a $500,000 damage suit against the magazine for a paragraph his suit quotes as saying:

"(Earl) Scruggs and his partner, the late Lester Flatt, kept the banjo in the public eye with their tours, recording and the themes for 'The Beverly Hillbillies' and 'Bonnie and Clyde.'"

Flatt's attorney, Grant Smith, wrote Esquire after the issue appeared on newsstands, "advising the defendant that the reference to 'the late Lester Flatt' is absolutely false and defamatory," the complaint said.

Car Pools Will Still Pay Tolls

A proposal to exempt commuter car pools from tolls on the Golden Gate Bridge was shelved indefinitely today by a committee of bridge district directors.

The finance-auditing committee agreed unamiously the proposal should not be considered until tolls are hiked and it can be seen whether gas shortages will increase car pooling without eliminating the toll.

The proposal made last week by the district's transportation committee calls for free tolls for cars carrying three or more persons between six and 10 a.m. on weekdays. The transportation committee had urged a six-month test, figuring it would cost about $120,000 in lost tolls.

The staff reported that in a recent count of more than 20,000 cars crossing the bridge southbound during commuter hours, only 606 carried three or more persons and 306 four or more.

Registration Set Monday

Further information and schedules may be obtained from the department.

Local Tax Exemptions Take Welfare Beating

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state welfare exemption for certain nonprofit hospitals and religious and charitable properties cost local governments $107.3 million in tax revenues during the current fiscal year, according to the state Board of Equalization.

The board yesterday said the value of property exempted "has increased over the last 10 years at an annual rate of 18.4 per cent and it urged the Legislature to review the exemption amendment.

The increase was attributed to "the tendency of the courts to interpret the language of the welfare exemption very liberally, so that certain nonprofit activities that would have been considered as less than charitable when the people approved the 1914 amendment" now qualify.

In a unanimously passed resolution, the board said that due to the court decision it and county assessors "find it impossible to administer the welfare exemption according to the original dictates of the people."

The resolution also noted that with the annual increase in the property tax burden on property owners, "a restructuring of the welfare exemption is appropriate and necessary to assure an equitable distribution of the tax burdens of the state."

The board said the properties in question had a real and personal property market value of $3.85 billion, which if taxable would produce $107.3 million of revenue for the use of local government.

The board also asked the legislature to "define the scope of exemption" by listing what it considers of a religious or charitable nature and defining the amount of property necessary for the operation of the organization.

Planning Group Picks Chairman

The results of the election by mail ballot sent to members was announced at the group's meeting Tuesday night.

Troop Cutback Session In Recess

VIENNA (UPI) — East-West negotiators on mutual troop cutbacks broke for Christmas and New Year vacations today and announced they would resume efforts to reach agreement Jan. 15.

The official announcement was the first by either the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) or the Warsaw Pact since discussions on cutting forces in Central Europe began Oct. 30.

Release Of School Fund Is Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has lost another round in his attempt to cut federal spending by refusing to spend Congressionally ordered appropriations.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson yesterday ordered the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to release to state elementary and secondary schools $20 million in funds impounded by the administration.

Nixon last January impounded funds for education, water pollution control, highway construction and other congressional appropriations as a stated move against inflation. Yesterday's action was the latest in a series of court rulings holding Nixon's impoundment of funds is illegal.

Robinson, in a 20-page memorandum outlining a summary judgment, ruled that HEW must apportion to the states all funds Congress appropriated for state elementary and secondary schools for fiscal 1973.

Robinson said he had fully reviewed HEW's arguments for withholding the funds and found "they are without merit and do not warrant further discussion."

Live Christmas Trees Wanted

The Belvedere Parks and Recreation Commission has asked that live Christmas trees which are no longer wanted be donated to the city after Christmas.

Shirley Backen, commission secretary, said the potted trees can be taken to the city's corporation yard.

She said the commission is also seeking the donation of a used stove to use in a Chinese cooking class being organized as part of a joint Belvedere-Tiburon adult education program at Tiburon School.

Interim Financing Suggested For Mental Health Facilities

The Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin yesterday called for interim financing to keep more mental health facilities from foundering.

Joan Ripple, council executive secretary, said council members discussed "at length" the financial problems that resulted in closing the Marin Mental Health Foundation clinic in Ross and other facilities. The problems arise from nonpayment or delayed payment of funds from supporting public agencies, which now require an individual contract for service to each patient. Former "block grant" financing has been discontinued, she said.

The council also adopted priorities for future projects, giving first attention to the need for more services for patients who no longer need acute care, but still need a lower level of care. This could include convalescing elderly patients, whose financial plight was reported in an Independent-Journal series in November.

The council will also study the need for more children's medical services in Marin, and continue planning for emergency neighborhood care, Miss Ripple said.

The council changed the date of its next business meeting to Jan. 16, to make way for the annual meeting Jan. 9.

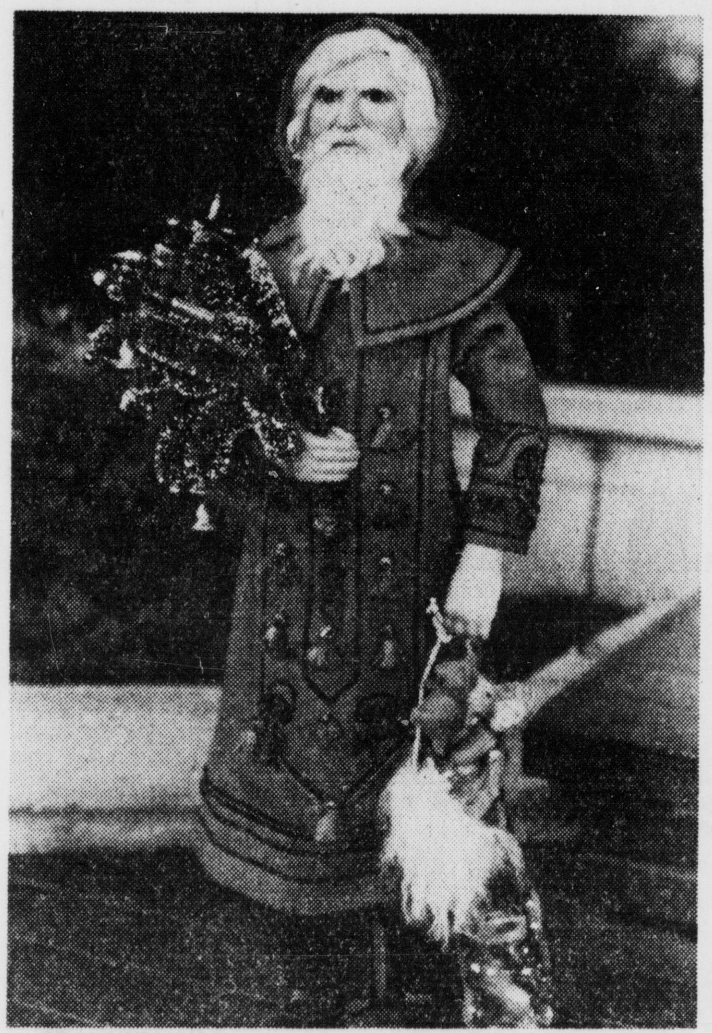
Marin Women

THE CHRISTMAS SEASON AGAIN

Nurses Marian Weber (left) and Marcia Dalbey decorate a Christmas tree in the intensive care unit of Ross General Hospital. The tree was donated by the family of nurse Linda Sheppard, and the ornaments were brought by other nurses. In the past the nurses have done little decoration in the intensive care unit but this year wanted to add color and cheer, according to nurse Regina Rosen. They will have a party Tuesday for staff and patients who have gone home.

ONE OF Marin's long-time Christmas event, the Marin Festival of Trees, opened the holiday season the first weekend in December. The two-day event attracted approximately 8,500 persons and netted more than $22,000 for the Boyd Marin Museum of Science. The tree in the foreground was decorated by Suzanne LaNoue of San Rafael and sold to a motorcycle shop in Corte Madera for $300.

LAST MINUTE preparations have been done by members of the Decorations Guild of the Marin Art and Garden Center (from left) Mmes. Charles E. Behrens, R. L. Tuckey and Norbert J. Mages for the guild's 26th annual Greens Sale to be held tomorrow through Sunday at the center in Ross. The women have made wreaths, swags, plaques, kissing balls, yule logs and centerpieces and accent pieces out of dried cones, pods, seeds, grasses, shells and other natural materials.



ST. NICHOLAS was at the 101 Doll and Study Club show earlier this month in the form of a wax doll. Clutching a Christmas tree and a sock full of toys, the 29-inch doll has a wax head and hands with inset glass eyes. The doll was made five years ago by Lewis Sorenson of Los Angeles, who makes figures for wax museums. Peeking out of the sock (right) is the head of an English wood doll made about 1870.

Lily Tomlin To Be Feted On Sunday

An open house for guests to meet comedienne and actress Lily Tomlin will be held Sunday from 2:30 to 5 p.m. at the home of Frankie Brown, 70 Via Cheparro, in Greenbrae.

Sponsor is the National Women's Political Caucus-Marin. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served and tickets will be available at the entrance, said Jean Wasp, press coordinator.

HELEN HELP US!

Younger Sister Who Lost One Knows What Older Sister Is

RAP:

I wrote this when I couldn't sleep the other night:

WHAT IS AN OLDER SISTER?

An older sister is a little girl who awaits your arrival and is glad you're a girl so she'll have someone to play house with.

She is someone you fight with all through grade school.

An older sister is one you protect when someone is picking on her, even though you are smaller.

She introduces all her junior high friends to you as "My bratty sister," but with pride.

She's the one who takes you to the movies, even if she's with her boyfriend, and lets you know it's fun having you with them.

. . .And when she and her steady guy break up after two years, you feel guilty and bad.

. . .And when she makes the choir you are prouder than she.

An older sister is a senior who introduces you as a sophomore "Mickey Mouse" sister — and sees to it they accept you.

She is the one you wait up for so she can tell you all about her date.

. . .And then you wait up half the night, only to discover that she is in a coma at the hospital. There was a bad accident on the freeway. . .

It's not showing your emotions when trying to calm your parents, but the minute you get to your room, crying your eyes out.

It's waiting in the hospital, praying she will live.

Then. . .

Getting the news that she never felt any pain, just died in her sleep.

It's her many, many friends, crying at the funeral.

And finally, it's her friends trying to make you smile again, and you not wanting to, but trying. . .just because you know your older sister would want you smiling again. — A YOUNGER SISTER, KAREN

RAP:

Is there room for one more opinion on why graduates of the seething '60s were "different." I feel the big reason wasn't drugs, but the Vietnam War. Students lost respect for an America that sent them to die (or to jail) for no justifiable cause.

The late sixties generation lived in an illusion that they could create a total peace and love society if they could overcome "the establishment." When they learned it wasn't possible, they became apathetic. They felt overpowered and manipulated, and whenever they tried to rebel, the tear gas — even the guns — came.

They were reacting because they had so much awareness and feeling —at first. But when they realized their dreams were illusions, there was nothing left but empty shells and apathy. I know, because I've — "BEEN THERE"

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My husband graduated in 1969 — from college. He was a pacifist, an activist in student rebellion, the works. And he became the best darn teacher around!

Since he and his college generation won most of their battles with society —and considerably changed many elders' ways of thinking — they came out of the turbulent sixties in good shape.

But it was the high school kids during the period who took the beating. They weren't old enough to be noticed, yet were old enough to face the draft; they discovered the college crowd's drugs, and abused their use; they felt all the powerlessness and got very little of the action —and by the time they were old enough, the action was over. I know how it was because I was one of them, but luckily I met my husband and now everything's — OKAY AGAIN

New Idea For School Gift-Giving

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Some months ago, this writer asked readers to tell what they had done about holiday gifts for teachers. Some weeks later we reported the responses.

Teachers were in favor of receiving gifts. Parents favored giving gifts to those teachers who either needed or deserved them. The pupils who wrote in were generally not in favor of the practice.

A number of teachers wrote that the giving of gifts to them (as teachers) was really a lesson for the pupils in the joy of giving.

It was not surprising that the pupils who wrote in saw through that logic. But many indicated that the withholding of a gift from such a teacher could make school life pretty rough for the remainder of the school year.

SOME READERS said there was a no-gift-giving policy at their schools, or that children and teachers provided gifts for needy families. As one would suspect, there appears to be more gift-giving in the elementary grades than in junior-senior high schools.

Neighborhoods differ. And the sensitive, loving teacher makes a considerable effort to help all the children feel comfortable about gift-giving. But it would seem that a teacher who has been in the habit of receiving a class gift or individual gifts might re-examine her or his motives and possibly forego this "token" of appreciation.

One teacher wrote in that she gave every pupil a "gift certificate" which could be redeemed once during the remainder of the school year in lieu of a completed homework assignment. And from each child in her classes, she expected some special assignment to be done and labeled "a gift for the teacher."

We like that. The gifts in that exchange really are more blessed to give than receive. And they don't cost money. They don't pit one pocketbook against another. In each case, it's the student, individually, who decides what to do.

Here are some more gift ideas which cost little or no money, yet which help children learn to be unselfish and thoughtful:

TWO CLASSES, including the teachers, might exchange gifts. For example, there might be an exchange between a third and fourth grade. Bobby, in Grade four, would choose or be assigned to make a gift for Tommy in Grade three. Bobby would make up a story, illustrate it, put a cover on, be sure that the words weren't too hard for a third-grader, and give it as a gift.

Tommy, for his part, might offer to help Bobby with a homework assignment — for example, sometime when Bobby has to find, mount and correctly label 10 different kinds of leaves.

And to make the exchange complete, the fourth-grade teacher might teach an art lesson for her colleague while the third-grade teacher is taking the fourth-grade class on a nature walk.

The children might offer to help workers one day at the firehouse or Salvation Army when they are preparing toys as gifts to families in need.

The teacher and the pupils in a class might do something to make the school building itself more useful or more beautiful. They might clean up one of the storerooms or a corner of the playground or help the secretary with an inventory of the supply room.

A class might offer to read to patients in a nursing home or to folks in a retirement home. The children might send cards to charity patients in state and local institutions. The possibilities are legion.

Science Kits Great Gifts For The Young

NEW YORK (UPI) — That young person on your gift list leans to things scientific? There are lots of choices in toyland.

For children ages 6 to 12 there is a magnetic science kit from Electronic Data Controls Corp. "The How and Why of Magnets and Magnetism" includes do-it-yourself experiments.

Included are materials to build an electromagnet, a 40-pound bar magnet, plus an assortment of magnets and magnetic materials with detailed experiments and directions.

It's hard to go wrong with the science gift classics — such things as: engine kits, anatomical kits, botany science kits, insect and reptile kits, nuclear submarine kits, aircraft carrier kits.

The kits from Renwal, a division of The Learning Aids Group Inc., also include the visible auto chassis. The most famous of these kits are the visible man and the visible woman.

Long considered one of the finest and most popular hobby kits ever devised, the visible man owes his perennial popularity to faithful detailing. At least one model of the "man" can be found in most schools. Adults also can learn a lot about their innards when there's a visible man or woman on the premises.

Another good kit is one called The Senses. Actually it is five assembly kits in one: two transparent eyes and the muscles that move them, two ears, showing details of the inner ear, and a model that shows the tongue and the organs of the throat.

The throat organs include esophagus (food pipe), the trachea (wind pipe) and the vocal cords, the strong muscles surrounding these organs and the thyroid glands.

Secrets of plant life are revealed to the student in a botany science kit that shows in large detail the many layers of cells which manufacture the food needed by the plant.

Plight Of Women In Today's World

(EDITOR'S NOTE: First of a two-part series on the Women's Liberation Movement throughout the world.)

By JOAN HANAUER
U.P. International

In the Soviet Union a woman can become an astronaut, but in Sicily and Sardinia she's lucky if she is allowed out of the house to do the marketing.

In some parts of Asia, women are so liberated they do the heaviest work at construction sites, but Japan remains a man's land.

And Latin America still is the home of "machismo," although in Mexico, at least, the government wishes men wouldn't measure their manliness by the number of children they produce.

Around the world, women's liberation is a mixed bag, complicated by religion, custom and in some cases lack of interest on the part of the majority of women.

WESTERN EUROPE, where the society most closely resembles that of the United States, also has a Women's Liberation movement most like that found here. And some progress is being made.

There are three parts to the women's movement in Europe. There is the demand for equal job opportunity and equal pay for equal work. Then there is the controversy over childbearing, with both contraception and abortion controversial in strongly Roman Catholic countries. And there's the comparatively simple issue of the right to vote.

While women's suffrage has been accomplished in all the major countries, progress comes slower in the tiny principalities, as in Liechtenstein last February when the men defeated women's suffrage by a vote of 2,128 to 1,675 in a national referendum.

In the matter of job equality, on Nov. 27 the European Common Market called for an end to existing discrimination against women and directed its nine member nations — Britain, France, Belgium, West Germany, Holland, Luxembourg, Ireland, Italy and Denmark — to pass equal pay laws by next April 1.

Last July the market had singled out Holland and Luxembourg for particular criticism because of pay inequality. But the fact remains that in every country west of the Iron Curtain women receive less pay than men. In Finland, a pioneer country which granted equal rights to women in 1906, 42.1 per cent of the work force is female but a woman's paycheck often is only 75-80 per cent of her male counterpart's.

In Britain, an equal pay act goes into force Jan. 31, 1975, and women who believe they are not receiving equal pay will be able to take their case to the Ministry of Employment. Income Data Services, an organization that monitors industrial pay, reported recently that of 84 British industries polled, 49 were paying women less than 90 per cent of men's wages.

THE FEMALE work force varies greatly from country to country — 46 per cent in France, 33 per cent in Belgium and Germany, down to 13 per cent in Spain.

While women still are scarce in the professions in Europe, an increasing number are finding careers as lawyers, doctors, economists and engineers, and most governments include several women as members of parliament, cabinet ministers, deputies and mayors.

Abortion is a sensitive subject in the European women's movement — it is legal only in non-Roman Catholic England, sometimes called "the abortion capital of Europe," and more recently in Austria. A few countries do permit abortion if the mother's life is in danger and similar laws are pending in others.

Lili Boeykins, a guiding light of several Belgian women's organizations and herself the mother of three children, said, "We must have a free choice to have children or not have children," but she adds, "All Belgium movements agree to a point that abortion is a solution in emergencies only. You must try with contraception."

Custom and tradition go a long way toward limiting women's rights, particularly in rural areas and in the traditionally patriarchal countries of southern Europe.

In rural France, some husbands won't let their wives learn to drive cars and forbid them checkbooks. The men of Sicily and Sardinia often lock their women up at home and do the marketing themselves because of a jealousy-based custom. And in Portugal a tile often hangs in the home which reads, "The woman rules the home, the man rules the woman."

NO SUCH male chauvinism exists in Eastern Europe, where discrimination against women is outlawed and which boasts some of the highest percentages of female professional workers receiving equal pay in the world.

But even in the Soviet Union, on the face of it a woman worker's paradise in which opportunities in male strongholds from ditchdigging to doctoring are unlimited, the Russian working wife is expected to do the household chores as well as hold down her equal job for equal pay.

In the world's other Communist giant, the People's Republic of China, Chairman Mao Tse-tung spoke of the need to liberate women in 1927 and equality of the sexes is incorporated in the state constitution.

At the 10th National Congress of the Communist party, held last August, about 20 per cent of the 1,249 delegates were women. When the Congress elected a 319-member central committee, 33 were women, two of whom were elected to the 25-member Political Bureau.

In the rest of Asia, contrary to popular myth, are some of the most liberated women in the world. Two of the world's three female heads of state are Indira Ghandi of India and Sirimayo Bandaranaike of Sri Lanka, Ceylon. The third is Israel's Golda Meir. Women hold cabinet positions in nearly every Asian government, a woman sits on the Supreme Court in the Philippines, and the male-female enrollment at most Asian universities is 50-50.

This mother orangutan and her offspring may have little human company this winter if the fuel crisis worsens at the St. Louis Zoo. Officials at the zoo said they may close the buildings where the animals are housed if they cannot obtain enough fuel oil to keep them heated. Closing the buildings would prevent heat loss caused by in-and-out traffic on a cold day.

Innis, Shockley Finally Stage A Debate On Black Mentality

Shockley said his conclusions were only tentative, but urged that they be tested by "modern scientific methods."

He cited statistics which he said indicated a relationship between the amount of white blood and average IQ. Blacks with a greater percentage of white ancestry — as indicated by skin color and blood tests — are more intelligent than those with a lesser percentage, Shockley said.

And, he said, poorer blacks, with lower average intelligences, are reproducing in greater numbers than black college graduates, he said, causing the gap to widen further, to the detriment of future generations of blacks.

Innis attacked Shockley as the heir to racist theories of the past. What is "questionable", Innis said, is not the intelligence of blacks but the intelligence of those who question it.

Innis conceded that lighter skinned blacks of "obvious mixed ancestry" do form "a disproportionate share" of black American leaders and intellectuals. "But it is a social environmental phenomena and has nothing to do with inherited intelligence," he said.

Blacks score lower on IQ tests because they have been deprived by their environment, Innis argued, especially in the area of political power. He repeatedly returned to the view that black IQ test scores are affected not only by cultural and economic deprivation, but by "sociopolitical deprivation" — lack of power over their own lives and communities.

Shockley, a Stanford University physicist, won the Nobel Prize for his part in developing the transistor. His critics say that he is outside his field of expertise in discussing genetics.

Shockley answers that he has brought a scientifically trained mind to research into a subject shunned as too controversial and dangerous by other investigators.

A scheduled debate at the Harvard Law School Forum was canceled because officials feared demonstrations, and Innis refused to take part in a debate at Princeton when he learned it would be closed to the public.

Shockley again repeated his proposal that persons with IQs below the average, 100, be offered cash payments to be sterilized, but said the program should be voluntary.

Innis called the proposal "genocidal" and said the figures, statistics and IQ tests cited by Shockley were the work of "pseudo scientists, politically motivated scientists."

Top Award For Agnew Story

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jerry Landauer, the Wall Street Journal Washington reporter who broke the story on scandals which led to the resignation of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, has been named winner of the Drew Pearson Foundation's award for excellence in investigative reporting.

Landauer was invited to receive the $5,000 cash prize today at an awards luncheon at the National Press Club.

In addition to the Landauer award, two $1,000 honorable mention prizes will go to Robert Pierpont and Ed Fouhy of CBS for their reporting of the Charles (Bebe) Rebozo Key Biscayne bank charter story and to Ward Sinclair of the Louisville Courier-Journal for his reporting of the United Mine Workers scandals.

Another $1,000 award for "general excellence in reporting" will be given to Clark Mollenhoff, White House correspondent for the Des Moines Register.

Santa Pulled By 'Fish On Brooms'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three-year-old Danielle Luzzati was asked about Santa's reindeer yesterday in a man-in-the-street interview.

"Santa don't have no reindeer," she replied. "His sleigh is pulled by three fish riding on four brooms."

Young Ted Kennedy Hears From Fellow Leg Amputee

SHELTON, Conn. (UPI) — "Dear Ted," the letter reads.

"My name is Michael Bourque and I'm 11 years old. I had my right leg amputated Oct. 9 because of bone cancer."

"Ted" is Edward M. Kennedy Jr., 12, and he also had his leg amputated because of bone cancer.

Michael, who returned to his sixth-grade class this week on crutches, said he wrote the letter to the son of U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to "cheer him up" following his operation last month.

"I'm getting along real good on my crutches," the letter said. "The doctor also gave me the good news that I can have an artificial leg."

Michael's mother, Grace Bourque, said the boy becomes discouraged sometimes and his leg hurts when it rains, but "he tries to hide his feeling by being boisterous.

Michael learned he had bone cancer this fall. He spent two weeks at Yale New Haven Hospital.

His mother said Michael climbed the stairs at home within three hours after coming home.

"Michael makes it easier, he's so outgoing," said Mrs. Borque, whose husband Joseph works at a lumber company.

"He accepted it right away. The fact that his uncle lost both legs and is using two artificial legs successfully has helped a great deal.

"Sometimes, I cry when I go to bed at night, but Michael helps a lot. He brings out the best in people. He cheers me up. He doesn't let this thing stop him. He won't let it stop him."

FUEL NO WHIRRY

The driver of this little electric van has no worry about the fuel shortage as he whirrs along the streets of Los Angeles in his battery-powered vehicle. But the van is not a child of the energy crisis. It has been used by its builder, American Smelting and Refining Co., since 1969. It's nonpolluting, doesn't contribute to the gasoline shortage and costs only about a penny a mile to operate.

Phone Tax Protest Ruling Set

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Antiwar Marin County residents who refused to pay a federal telephone tax during the Vietnam war, have taken their legal battle to the appellate division of the U.S. District Court here.

A three-judge panel consisting of Chief Justice Richard Chambers and District Judges J. Clifford Wallace and James Carter, yesterday heard oral arguments in the case and said a decision would be issued later.

The war tax challenge earlier was thrown out by U.S. District Judge Robert E. Schnacke, who held the group had no legal standing for a class action. His ruling was appealed to the higher panel..

In 1971, several hundred Marin County residents — and others throughout California, — refused to pay a 10 per cent excise tax on their phone bills. They said the tax was unconstitutional because it helped finance a war that hadn't been legally declared.

Marin spokesmen at the time reported that $23,000 had been placed in a trust fund instead of paid to the Internal Revenue Service through Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. Charles Wallace of San Anselmo, one of the spokesmen, protested in 1972 that the IRS was harassing him by questioning neighbors about him: others reported that IRS officials had slapped liens on their bank accounts and wages to collect the taxes claimed due. Federal tax agents confirmed the reports.

Benefit Film

Offspring Must Help Needy Parents

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Adult offspring have a legal responsibility to contribute to the support of their needy parents, the California Supreme Court declared yesterday in a 4 to 2 decision.

The opinion upheld validity of parts of the Old Age Security Law, which requires such contributions on a fixed schedule and which gives counties granting aid to parents legal authority to collect any amounts due.

A class action filed by two San Joaquin county widows and their children stemmed from a 1971 Welfare Reform Act which sharply raised the scale an adult child must pay towards the parent's support.

Illia Huntley, 88, and her son, Howard, 60, and Bieuky Dykstra, 78, and her son Julius, challenged the validity of sections of the Old Age Law requiring such support. The sons contended they couldn't afford to pay the higher support fixed by the 1971 law.

Huntley said he and his wife had a net income of $656 a month and he couldn't pay the required $70 a month toward his mother's support. Dykstra said he couldn't afford a $75 payment after paying family bills, including a $180 a month child support and a $145 a month rent.

Before the welfare reform act went into effect Oct. 1, 1971, a two-member family with $651 to $700 net monthly income had to contribute $10 support to an aged needy parent. After Oct. 1 the contribution was set at $70. On March 21, 1973, after the suit was filed, the scale was decreased a bit for lower income categories.

Justice Raymond Sullivan, in the majority opinion, said relatives' responsibility laws have a longstanding history in California. He said the duty to support poor parents first was codified in the state in 1872 and can be traced back to the 1601 Elizabethan Poor Law.

The duty, he went on, existed before and was independent of any duties arising out of state aid to the aged. Laws imposing liability upon adult offspring of persons getting aid, "merely selected a class of relatives who were otherwise legally responsible for the support of their parents," he said.

Ram Replaces The Two Slain

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An adult bighorn sheep ram has been released in the special 1,100-acre bighorn preserve in Lava Beds National Monument after being captured in Nevada by biologists.

The animal will replace in the enclosure two other rams shot and killed by vandals and hopefully will be able to mate with some 15 ewes, state fish and game officials said today.

Firing a tranquilizer dart from a helicopter,, biologists captured the ram 135 miles east of the monument in the Sheldon-Hart Antelope Refuge.

Yanks Sign A's Williams

The move by the Yankees appeared to be designed to force the hand of Oakland A's owner Charley Finley, who has been threatening to sue if the New York team signed Williams without giving him compensation.

"We have waited long enough," said Yankee club president Gabe Paul, "to wait further would jeopardize the Yankees' chances of success in 1974 and therefore would be unfair to our fans."

Williams still has two years left on his managerial contract with Finley and the A's but he publicly resigned on national TV after the seventh game of the World Series last October. Williams claims that Finley thus publicly gave him his release from the contract, but Finley says he did not.

Williams signed a contract with the Yankees for the next three seasons to become the 19th manager in the club's 72-year history. He succeeds Ralph Houk, who resigned after the final day of the regular season and later signed with Detroit.

Finley must now decide whether he'll make good on his threat to take the Yankees to court.

Paul said, "after many delays caused by our attempting unsuccessfully to obtain a ruling from the American League office on Houk's signing with the Tigers and the Yankees desire to obtain Williams as its manager, our club felt it was in the best interest of the Yankees to obtain Williams without any further delay."

The Yankees are the third team Williams has managed. His first major league managerial job was at Boston in 1967 when he was given the job after two seasons at Toronto of the International League.

In his first season with the Red Sox, he led the team to their "impossible dream" of '67 when they jumped from ninth to first in one of the great comebacks in baseball history and carried the St. Louis Cardinals to seven games in the World Series before losing.

In 1968, the Red Sox slipped to fourth and in 1969, when the club came in third, he was replaced on Sept. 23 after having his differences with owner Tom Yawkey.

After spending the 1970 season as a coach under Gene Mauch at Montreal, he was hired by Charley Finley in 1971 to manage the Oakland A's.

He enjoyed much success with the A's, piloting them to three straight Western Division titles and two straight World Series. No other manager has lasted three consecutive years with Finley and his contract was renewed for two more years during the summer.

Williams, who was born in St. Louis, graduated from high school in Pasasdena, Calif. and now lives in West Palm Beach, Fla.

He started his playing career in 1947 with Santa Barbara, Calif., and came up to the Dodgers in 1951. Williams was on the bench when Bobby Thomson hit his famous homer to beat the Dodgers in the playoffs that season.

A shoulder injury ruined his chances for a standout major league career and he wound up with a .260 lifetime average in 1,023 games with the Dodgers, Orioles, Kansas City A's, the Orioles a second time and finally the Red Sox. He spent the 1963 and 1964 seasons with Boston before retiring as a player and starting his managing career at Toronto in 1965.

Cappelletti Wins Pair Of Honors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Running back John Cappelletti of Penn State, the catalyst behind the Nittany Lions' undefeated season, today added two more awards to his growing collection when he was named the United Press International's college football Back and Player of the Year.

The 6-foot-1, 206-pound All-America senior, who earlier this month won the Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding player, is the first Penn State player ever to win either UPI honor, but unlike his one-sided victory in the Heisman voting, he received some stiff competition in each category.

In a balloting of 150 sportswriters and sportscasters from across the nation, Cappelletti received 52 votes for Back of the Year to beat out sophomore Archie Griffin of Ohio State by a mere 14 votes. Junior Roosevelt Leaks of Texas was third with 26 votes and freshman Tony Dorsett finished fourth with 16 votes.

Cappelletti's margin of victory in the Player of the Year voting was equally as slim. The Penn State star got 38 votes while linebacker Randy Gradishar of Ohio State finished second with 24 votes. Offensive tackle John Hicks of Ohio State, winner of UPI's Lineman of the Year award, finished third with 14 votes and Leaks and running back Kermit Johnson of UCLA tied for fourth with 12 votes.

Cappelletti, called by his coach Joe Paterno "the best football player I've ever been around," finished fifth in the nation in rushing this season with an average of 138.4 yards per game and was fourth in scoring with 17 touchdowns and an average of 9.3 points per contest.

The husky fullback from Upper Darby, Pa., gained more than 100 yards in eight of Penn State's 11 games and three times went over 200 yards. His best effort came against North Carolina State when he rushed for 220 yards and three touchdowns.

Cappelletti was a defensive back in his sophomore year, but in his two seasons as a running back he gained 2,639 yards, caught 22 passes for 207 yards and scored 30 touchdowns. The Nittany Lions, undefeated in 11 games this season, have lost only two games in two seasons with Cappelletti at fullback.

"John Cappelletti is the best football player I've ever been around," Paterno said earlier this year.

San Rafael, Novato Victorious

More First-Round Cage Play Tonight

By TOM THOMPSON

The Drake Pirate Classic basketball tournament began last night with two Marin teams surprising out-of-county opponents by impressive margins.

Novato High School opened the tournament by whipping Richmond's Harry Ells, 71-61, and San Rafael followed by dumping Petaluma, 65-46.

Tonight, opening-round action continues, with Terra Linda taking on San Marin at 5 p.m., and Napa challenging defending champion and host Drake at 6:30.

San Rafael's defense proved to be the difference, holding the high-scoring Trojans under 50 points. Petaluma had averaged 75 points in its first four games, which were all victories. San Rafael won its second game in five non-league starts.

The Bulldogs also dominated the boards, bringing down 40 rebounds to Petaluma's 16. Center Byron Stewart tallied 22 caroms while scoring a game-leading 18 points.

The first half was nip and tuck all the way with neither team leading by more than a basket, and San Rafael taking a 29-27 edge into the locker room. It was a different story after that however, as the Bulldogs, substituting heavily, began pulling away in the third quarter.

After San Rafael's Gary Paterson sank a field goal at the buzzer to end the third period, making the score 44-33, the Trojans couldn't get any closer. Petaluma struggled in the second half, shooting only 27 per cent from the floor, while San Rafael shot 60 per cent. The Trojans got only six rebounds after intermission.

Led by George Diruscio's 24 points, Novato (5-0) kept its undefeated record intact by overcoming Falcon Willie Washington's 26 points and Ell's physical play.

Diruscio, a junior guard playing as a starter in place of injured Dave Brazell, received praise from his coach, Jim Caranica, "He did a good job of filling in for Brazell.

Novato made the key baskets against the Falcons, who never led but stayed close before the final moments. The Hornets held a seven-point halftime lead

Brodie Goes All Way Vs. Steelers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Coach Dick Nolan has changed his mind and now says John Brodie will start and go all the way at quarterback Saturday when the San Francisco 49ers host Pittsburgh.

Nolan had announced on Tuesday that Brodie, playing the last game of his 17-year career, would only play a series or two and then give way to Steve Spurrier.

Yesterday, Nolan said "my first thought was to play John briefly, which would give the fans a chance to give him the recognition he deserves, and also would not expose him to injury or the possibility of a bad performance that would mar his retirement.

"I later found out that John was interested in playing the whole game, and if that's the way John wants it, that's the way it will be.

"Also," concluded the San Francisco coach, "I figure what does John have to prove anyway. He's had a great 17 years."

Full Day's Pay For A Full Day's Work

Forty-Niner quarterback John Brodie now has a chance to bow out of football in grand style and it is only fitting he was granted his wish to go all the way Saturday against the Pittsburgh Steelers at Candlestick Park.

When coach Dick Nolan's decision to allow Brodie playing time in only the first two series of the game hit the radio airwaves Tuesday evening the boos started gurgling from the throats of fans who have watched John throw passes up and down the field at Candlestick and at Kezar Stadium before that. Seventeen years is a long time.

Nolan had planned to allow fans some cheering time by sending in Brodie for two series and pulling him out midway in the second one. The nearly unanimous reaction from fans was anger. They wanted Brodie to have his day on the field, a full day. The cheering could come later, say late in the fourth quarter.

The story broke just before the last meeting of the Marin Chapter, 49er Goal Rushers, and there was a lot of shaking of heads when it was discussed. About the only man in the banquet room at New Joe's who agreed with Nolan was the evening's guest speaker, middle linebacker Jim Sniadecki. As defensive captain, Jim most certainly agrees publicly with any decision Nolan makes. It's not nice to fool Mother Nature, and it's not nice to publicly put down your boss.

When Brodie told Nolan he would rather play all the game, his wish was granted and yesterday Nolan announced Brodie would get his chance to earn a full day's pay for a full day's work in his last game before his retirement becomes effective.

Nolan made a wise decision in calling an audible on John's behalf. If his original plan had been put into effect, I'm sure the fans would finish their cheers for Brodie with a boo for Nolan.

The Seals Goalies Are Bombarded

The Pittsburgh Penguins blasted eight goals past Bob Champoux of the Seals last night and got another off substitute Bob Tucker for a 9-1 romp in the National Hockey League.

That snapped a seven-game winless streak for Pittsburgh and saddled the hapless Seals with a 1-15 record on the road this season.

And the immediate future doesn't look too promising because the Seals must play the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens twice in the next five days with the Boston Bruins sandwiched in between. The Canadiens come to Oakland tomorrow night before the Seals head East to meet the Canadiens and Bruins on Sunday and Tuesday.

California was in the game only during the first period against the Penguins. Ron Schock opened the scoring for Pittsburgh but Joey Johnston tallied on a power play to tie it up before rookie Ron Lalonde netted the first of two goals to put the Penguins ahead for keeps.

Then Pittsburgh erupted for five goals in the middle period and added two more in the third.

Score by periods:

California	1 0 0—1
Pittsburgh	2 5 2—9

First period—1. Pittsburgh, Schock 6 (Lalonde, Watson) 6:16; 2. California, J. Ston 13 (McKay, McKechnie) 13:51; 3. Pittsburgh, Lalonde 3 (Schock, Snell) 18:26. Penalties—Watson 12:24.

Second period—4. Pittsburgh, Lalonde 4 (Schock, Snell) 7:25; 5. Pittsburgh, McDonough 11 (Beverley) 8:24; 6. Pittsburgh, Snell 3 (unassisted) 12:25; 7. Pittsburgh, Pronovost 12 (Hextall, Bignell) 16:15; 8. Pittsburgh, Burrows 1 (Schock, Snell) 19:30. Penalties-Watson 0:51.

Third period—9. Pittsburgh, Apps 10 (MacDonald, McDonough) 2:40; 10. Pittsburgh, Apps 11 (McDonough, Burrows) 18:23. Penalties-Snell 7:04; J. Johnston 7:56, Stewart 8:28, Lukowich 14:57, McKechnie 19:36.

Second Night In Jail For Astros' Star

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (UPI) — Cesar Cedeno, the star centerfielder of the Houston Astros, spent a second night in jail last night, charged with "voluntary homicide" in the motel shooting of a 19-year-old girl.

Magistrate Socrates Diaz Curiel continued Cedeno's preliminary hearing today after interrogating Cedeno and the first of four other witnesses called yesterday. The hearing is closed.

Cedeno, 22, was charged with the pistol slaying of Altagracia de la Cruz, 19. The police report termed the killing accidental. Police said the girl took the .38 caliber pistol in her hands to examine it and it discharged when Cedeno tried to take it from her. The weapon was legally registered by Cedeno.

Dominican legal sources saw two possibilities for Cedeno: that magistrate Diaz will remand him to a criminal court for trial on the " voluntary" count, which is roughly equivalent to second degree murder in the United States; or that Diaz will reduce the charge to "involuntary manslaughter" and turn the case over to a "correctional court," a lesser tribunal than the criminal one.

There may be no opportunity for bail if Cedeno is tried for "voluntary manslaughter." If he is tried for involuntary, he may be freed on bond pending trial. The voluntary count carries a three-to-10 year sentence. The maximum sentence for "involuntary manslaughter" is three years, and the judge may even absolve the convicted defendant.

Spec Richardson, the Astros general manager who flew in from Houston, visited Cedeno yesterday in La Fe jail. He said:

"I came to cheer him up and give him confidence and to find out for myself what state the boy is in."

Cedeno's Houston wife, Cora, 21, who was in the couple's winter home here at the time of the motel shooting, accompanied Richardson and head Astro scout Pat Guillick on the jail visit.

District Attorney Maximo Henriquez Saladin, who filed the charge against Cedeno, said he had grounds to believe that the stiffer " voluntary" count was justified.

EX-COACH PROTHRO

An Old Friend Helps UCLA Select Vermeil

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Only one week after Pepper Rodgers abruptly resigned, UCLA has a new football coach, thanks to some help by an old friend of the family—Tommy Prothro.

Prothro, who coached the Bruins from 1965-70 and then spent two less successful terms as head coach of the Rams, was credited with bringing Vermeil and the UCLA athletic department together.

"I didn't apply for the job," said Vermeil. "Tommy called me (shortly after Rodgers resigned) and asked me if I would be interested. I said I would be and that was the extent of it."

Last Friday, Vermeil, hard at work as Chuck Knox's offensive backfield and special teams coach, was contacted by UCLA Athletic Director J.D. Morgan. The deal was finalized over the telephone during the next few days, without any face-to-face meetings. Vermeil credits his former boss with making the offer come about.

"I'm sure that Prothro is the key to my being offered the job," he said. "He has always treated me great. Probably because I worked for him at UCLA and with the Rams he must have felt I'd be interested."

DICK VERMEIL
Aide moves up

Vermeil, a native of Calistoga, Calif., who now resides in Huntington Beach, insists he doesn't have time to think about college football yet. The Rams, now 11-2, meet Cleveland here Sunday in a tuneup for their NFC playoff game agsinst either Dallas or Washington. Vermeil will remain with the Rams until the season ends.

"My No. 1 responsibility is here with the Los Angeles Rams," he said. "I'm trying to direct all my thinking to winning the next four games. When my obligation to the Rams is fulfilled, then I'll devote 110 per cent of my energy to UCLA."

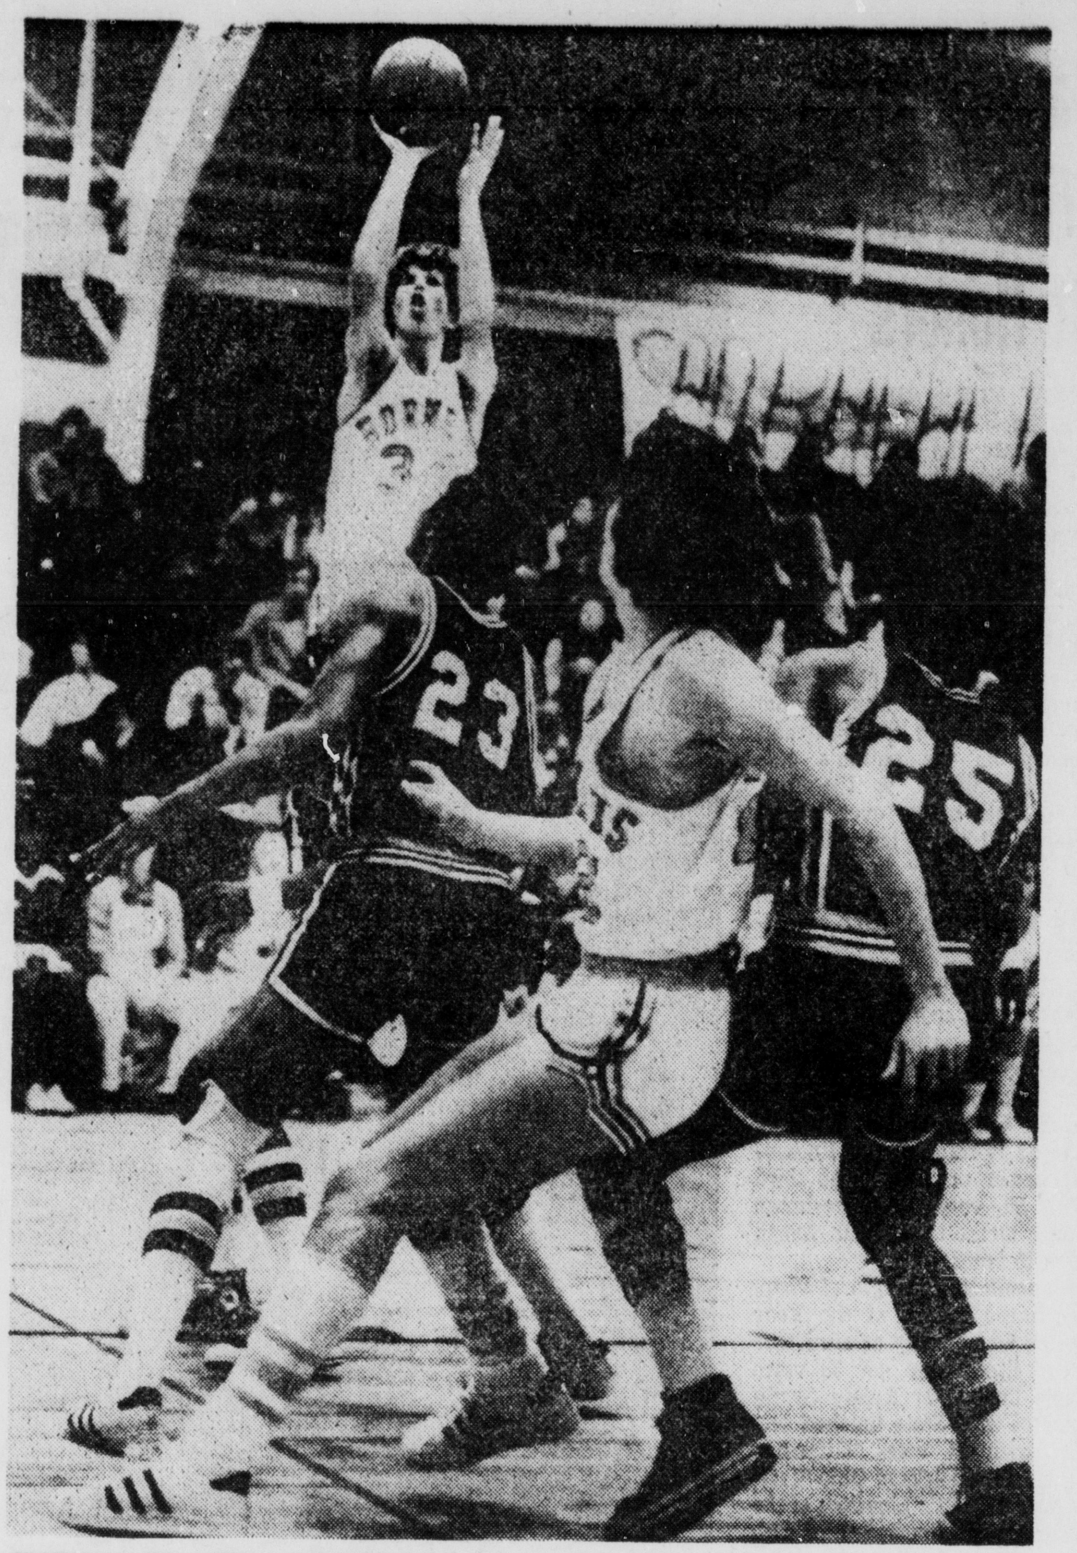
A former quarterback at San Jose State, Vermeil broke into the college coaching ranks at Stanford under John Ralston in 1965.

He remained there until George Allen lured him into the Rams' organization in 1969, where he served as a special teams and kickers' game coach.

In 1970, he joined Prothro at UCLA as the offensive coordinator. He followed Prothro back to the Rams in 1971-72 and remained with the team under Knox after Prothro was fired following a 6-7-1 season in 1972.

"Our loss is UCLA's gain," said Knox of his assistant. "We're losing a real fine football coach who has done a fine job for the Rams. I'm sure he'll do the same for UCLA."

Rodgers' 1973 Bruins, operating in a high-powered Wishbone offense, were 9-2, losing a shot at the Rose Bowl in a 23-13 loss to Southern California. Vermeil, who has never coached a wishbone team, says he favors a more passing-oriented offense.



RISING TO THE OCCASION — Novato High School's Mike Moroski (34) put up this jump shot over Harry Ells' Willie Washington (23) and Willis Alcutt. Novato's Tim Jordan moved in for a possible rebound during the opening round of the Drake Pirate Classic basketball play last night in San Anselmo. Novato prevailed, 71-61.

Namath Hints About Future

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath could be in a new uniform next year. Or he could be in no uniform at all.

Namath, who has been riddled with injuries for the last three years, will probably start at quarterback for the New York Jets Sunday against the Buffalo Bills at Shea Stadium. But yesterday he indicated that might be it for him.

"I don't know if I'll be back," he said, choosing his words carefully. "It could very well be. It's all according to how I feel and right now I can't say whether I'll be back or not next year. Right now my immediate goal is doing a good job this week. I'm not looking past this week. I don't have to make that decision right now."

Namath has just completed the final year of a two-year contract estimated at $250,000 a year.

Grinding his hands and fingers nervously, Namath also discussed what was once unthinkable—a trade.

"There's also the possibility that someone might not want me to play here. If I do get traded, it would have to be to a contender or a warm weather team. At this stage of my career, I'm not about to go somewhere where they're rebuilding.

"Like for instance, I wouldn't go to New England. Not that I have anything against the people up there but they're not a contender—and it's too cold. I wouldn't go to Buffalo or St. Louis or a few other places. But what's the difference. You're not able to pick anyway.

There could be a choice next year, however, and Namath could be the major factor in getting it off the ground. It's the newly proposed World Football League and Namath's attorney, Jim Walsh, has been talking with officials of the new league for more than two months.

"I haven't talked to anybody and I don't know anything about it," Namath said. "It's none of my business. My lawyer is talking with them. I have a job right now. The big thing is that I want to play for a winner. I don't want to go to a new team just to play."

Winning is something that has come hard for Namath since he led the Jets to their much-heralded Super Bowl victory over the Baltimore Colts in January, 1969. Since then, he has been unable to defeat a winning team. He missed a good portion of the 1970 season with a broken wrist and most of 1971 when he injured his knee in a pre-season game. In September, he suffered a separated shoulder.

Tam Cagers Beaten By Lincoln

Tamalpais High School's basketball team could only sink eight of its 17 shots from the free throw line and lost to powerful non-league opponent Lincoln of San Francisco, 61-54, yesterday in Mill Valley.

Shooting 51 per cent, the Indians led in scoring from the floor, canning 23 field goals to Lincoln's 22. However, the Mustangs scored 17 points from the line to win.

Lincoln took an early lead, opening it up to 10 in the middle of the second quarter before Tam (1-4) closed it to five at halftime. After an even third period, the hosts got to within one point with four minutes left in the game but missed two opportunities to take the lead and the Mustangs pulled away again.

Detroit Franchise In World Football

DETROIT (UPI) — The New World Football League announced today that Detroit has been granted membership in the new pro circuit and will field a team when play begins next fall.

Gary L. Davidson, president and founder of the new league, said the new team's ownership is a racially integrated group of Detroit civic, business and professional leaders.

The team, the first new professional sports team in the Motor City since the Detroit Pistons transferred from Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1958, has not been named.

The presence of three black owners marks the first time in Detroit that a professional team's ownership includes minority leaders.

Davidson said New York, Chicago, Southern California, Toronto, Boston, Florida, Honolulu, Birmingham, Ala., and Washington, D.C., also were expected to field teams in the league's first season.

The Detroit Lions of the National Football League are in the process of building a new stadium in Pontiac, about 20 miles north of Detroit, and hope to vacate Tiger Stadium, their present home by 1975.

The WFL will open a draft season in January of all current pro players, graduating college seniors and "players who have proved themselves capable professionals in recent years but were unable to land jobs in the National Football League because of a lack of open positions."

Davidson did not say where the team would play.

Mayor-elect Coleman A. Young called Detroit's membership in the new league "a great Christmas present" for the city.

Moore: Broncos Prepared

OAKLAND (UPI) — Tight end Bob Moore of the Oakland Raiders knows what the Denver Broncos are going through this week.

Moore caught 100 passes from Jim Plunkett in helping Stanford win two consecutive Rose Bowls under John Ralston a few years back. Now Ralston is preparing the Broncos for their American Football Conference Western Division title match against the Raiders at Oakland Sunday.

"I'm sure Ralston is driving them nuts this week," said Moore. "He's going to get them so crazy, they'll think they can do anything. He gets you feeling that on that day you can beat anyone. In a one-game situation, he can really get a team ready to play."

George Buehler, offensive guard of the Raiders who also played under Ralston in the pre-Rose Bowl years, looked at his old coach a different way.

"John was always emotional," said Buehler. "But to me he wasn't that much different than most coaches."

Moore is one of Ken Stabler's favorite receivers. He has caught 33 passes for 365 yards. But Moore noted records are meaningless in the regular season finale.

"I don't care if I go without a catch this week," he said. "If we win, I'll go out and celebrate. But if I catch 10 and we lose, there won't be anything to celebrate."

Former Pro Gridder Staley Files Suit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former defensive tackle Bill Staley of the Chicago Bears and Cincinnati Bengals, filed a $65,000 suit yesterday charging that the Bears cut him from the payroll after he was injured.

Staley, 27, said he had a two-year contract with the Bears for the 1972 and 1973 seasons. But after he suffered "incapacitating knee injuries" in 1972, he was dropped from the team without pay before the start of the 1973 season according to the suit.

COVER JOB: Fred Kaplan of San Rafael, free lance photog who does a lot of work for Sports Illustrated, did the cover picture of Raider runner Marv Hubbard for this week's issue of S.I., scheduled to hit the newstands today. Try half a grand; it has a nice sound to it.

THE RETIRING BRODIE

A Most Valuable Player Nearly Each 49er Year

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

Over 17 years, the San Francisco 49ers star wrote his name in the record books on numerous occasions and once was named the National Football Conference's Most Valuable Player.

To the 49ers, he has been their MVP nearly every year since he replaced Y. A. Tittle as the No. 1 quarterback way back in 1961. In the years since, he has passed for more than 30,000 yards to rank among the game's all-time best—fellows such as Tittle and the legendary Johnny Unitas, who is playing out the string these days with the San Diego Chargers.

He has had five 300-plus yard games with the best being a 356-yarder against the Los Angeles Rams in 1969. He ranks fifth among NFC passers, 10th in the NFL and fourth in the Hall of Fame All-Ttime rankings.

Additionally, he has been All Pro twice (1965 and 1970) and has had only three seasons in which he has completed under 50 per cent of his passes.

Still, for all his accomplishments, including a brilliant college career at Stanford, Brodie more than likely always will be remembered as the man who triggered the merger of the NFL and the American Football League.

The pay wasn't all that great in Brodie's early years and just when he was starting to make good money as a pro, along came his big break—the one that has made him a millionaire.

The lucky day arrived in 1966 when the American Football League, then being run by Al Davis, offered him a big bonus to jump the 49ers and join the Houston Oilers of the "new" league.

JOHN BRODIE
Colorful career

John was at least interested enough to listen to an offer from Don Klosterman, the Oiler general manager. So, accompanied by his lawyer brother, he met Klosterman in a Houston restaurant. After some talking Brodie agreed to terms with signatures on a napkin.

A short time later the merger of the NFL and AFL became an accomplished fact. With Davis, now managing general partner of the cross-bay Oakland Raiders, calling the shots, the AFL had managed to "steal" some big name NFL players.

While never putting it in so many words, Davis has admitted on several occasions "that's what brought the NFL around."

Davis never was that excited about the merger (he since has had to pay the 49ers $1 million a year for "invading" their territory and has 13 years to go on the agreement). He was one of several AFL owners who voted against merger on the theory that without star quarterbacks the NFL was in trouble.

Be that as it may, merger did follow and that's what made Brodie a wealthy man. He claimed he still had that now famous napkin with Klosterman's signature on it and that unless he was "taken care of", a suit would follow against every club in the new merged NFL.

So money collected from all 26 clubs was placed in escrow—reportedly $1 million although the amount never has been confirmed by either the NFL or Brodie—and starting next year—Brodie's first in retirement—he will start collecting $50,000 a year, plus all the accumulated interest, for an estimated 20 years.

In many respects, it is worth it to Brodie, now 38, to retire and go on to spend more time with his wife and five children plus other interests.

"I'm ready for retirement," Brodie said recently. "My family is ready for it, too. Sure, I'll miss football. Heck, I've been playing the game since I was 11 years old. You can't be involved in a game that long and not miss it."

Brodie says he never set in his mind a certain year when he would quit.

"I always felt I would know when the time was right," he said. "That time is now. What more can I say than that."

Brodie has been a "Gamesman" all his life. He started out as a baseball player and there were many who thought he could have made it to the major leagues. He also started with golf at an early age and for one year held a PGA playing card. He still plays to a 1 or 2 handicap and additionally is considered—at least by the friends—as an outstanding card player. Gin and hearts are his favorite games but he also plays dominoes and poker.

One friend recently said, more in admiration than jealousy, "no man should be so good in so many things. It's just not fair."

So when old No. 12 hangs 'em up after Saturday's game with the Steelers—a game coach Dick Nolan says Brodie will go all the way—no one should shed any tears.

"It's been a rewarding career besides the money," Brodie says. "I've had a lot of fun and made a lot of friends, and you really can't say any more than that."

NEW YORK GIANTS

Family Image Faces Changes

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the late Vince Lombardi once was asked what one compelling force he considered principally responsible for his Green Bay Packers rise to the world championship, he used the word "love" and talked about how his ball club really was more like a "family."

Almost immediately other people in the National Football League jumped on the "family" idea, which didn't actually originate with Lombardi to begin with, and before you know it everybody and his brother in the league began referring to his own team the same way.

It turns out however, one family isn't necessarily the same as another. There are families, and there are families, even in football.

The New York Giants are a good example.

The Giants have been operated by the Mara family since 1925, the year they were founded, and that in itself wouldn't be so unusual except for the fact the club generally has been run family style.

Wellington Mara, the Giants' owner, probably identifies with his players more closely perhaps than any other owner in all sports.

What other owner takes such a deep personal interest in his players after they leave the club; makes snapshots of plays during a ball game and sends them over to his coaches, acts as his own general manager to all intents and purposes and works out so often with the team?

Wellington Mara's impromptu workouts in themselves are not all that harmful, but thinking of his team in the subjective terms he does possibly could be.

Wellington Mara is a fan at heart.

All owners are to an extent, but there comes a time when they should quit letting their hearts rule their heads.

By his own admission, Wellington Mara says it nearly destroyed him to have to fire his best friend, Allie Sherman, his previous coach.

"I feel like Well is a father," said Webster, who originally joined the Giants in 1955, played fullback for them and tried everything he could possibly think of but still couldn't make them produce anything better than a 2-10-1 log this year.

In truth, Mara is an integral part of the "old guard" ownership in the NFL. George Halas of the Chicago Bears and Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers are pretty much of the same line of thinking when it comes to running a football team, except that Rooney did a complete aboutface four years ago.

Weary of losing year after year for more than 30 years, Rooney went out and hired young, individualistic Chuck Noll and told him:

"Look, it's your ball club. Take it and build it up. You won't have any interference from me."

Wellington Mara, on the other hand, continued his accustomed paternalism, naming "super nice guy" Alex Webster as his coach and staying with longtime organizational front office personnel he inherited rather than going out and trying to get such other more assertive, take-charge types as Don Shula, George Allen, Don Klosterman or Jim Finks.

In all fairness, the Giants did try to get Vince Lombardi as their head coach once after he had served as one of their assistants. They failed, and it really wasn't their fault.

That's the big trouble with the Giants. Nobody ever blames anybody although for the past

San Rafael Gymnasts Enter Meet

Ten members of the San Rafael Gymnastics Club will travel to San Mateo Saturday to compete in the U.S. Gymnastics Federation Class III meet beginning at 9 a.m. at San Mateo Junior College.

Several turned in good performances last weekend in the first of the two meets in San Bruno, including Tami Wallace, who finished first all-around in the 12-14 age bracket with a total score of 27.80 points of a possible 40. She was second in vaulting, third in parallel bars and fifth in balance beam.

The top five all-around in each age bracket, and the net 60 gymnasts regardless of age levels, will advance to the subsequent Zone II meet.

The San Rafael Club, coached by Marcia Arevalo, is Marin's only private, Amateur Athletic Union-sanctioned club. Its results last weekend:

Age 10-11 — Tammy Whelthy, third, free exercise.

Age 12-14 — Tami Wallace, second, vaulting; third, uneven parallel bars; fifth, balance beam; first, all-around (27.80). Laurie Larrieu, second, beam.

Age 15-up — Collette de Nevers, second, bars; fifth, vault; sixth, free ex; fifth, all-around. Linda Harms, first, beam; second, bars; second, free ex; sixth, vaulting; second, all-around. Michele Pelligrini, sixth, bars.

Controversy In Sonoma's Cage Setback

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Sonoma State College got its midwest basketball tour off to a poor start here last night with a 95-84 non-league loss to Southwest Missouri State University — and the men in striped shirts.

"The officiating was horrible," complained Cossack assistant coach Dave Castleberry after the game. "We just couldn't beat the officiating. I've never seen (head coach) Bill Trumbo so mad at refs before."

Sonoma, which normally gets called for less fouls than its opponents, went to the free throw line just nine times last night — four of them in the last minute of the game. By comparison, Southwest Missouri shot 25 free throws.

The Cossacks (2-3) didn't help their own cause, either, with a 41 per cent shooting effort from the field.

Sonoma had five players score in double figures, led by Bill Belander's 19 points. Steve Tiedeman was next with 18 points, Ron Johnson scored 16, Dan Heien hit for 11 and Bob LeBrun added 10.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

A Glove-ly Feeling

By LEE TREVINO

Trying to control a golf ball with frigid digits is like trying to thread a needle under water. It may go anywhere.

It was so cold during the 1971 Sahara Invitations in Las Vegas that there were ice caps in the ball washers. A club had all the feeling of a broom.

Anyway, I won it, and I give credit to two full-fingered gloves. My fat little fingers are more sensitive to shivery temperatures, maybe, but it's tough to concentrate on the delicate pitch shot across a bunker when your hands feel brittle.

Sure, there are a lot of Farmers' Almanac remedies for tingly pinkies. Glycerine rubbed in the palms keeps out the cold, that sort of thing. Maybe so. Hot tamales'll keep your hands toasty, too, but who can afford a tamale caddy?

Your pro shop handles full-fingered leather gloves, or you may prefer mittens with leather palms. Both are okay.

Carry a couple of hand warmers to clutch between shots. They'll keep the leather from getting stiff in the cold. It's a glove-ly feeling.

Adams, Bollen Receive Awards

SAN FRANCISCO — Fred Adams of Tamalpais High School was among seven Bay Area athletes to win a $1,000 scholarship last night at the 14th annual awards banquet put on by the Northern California chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

Adams, who carries a 3.53 grade point average, was one of two scholarship nominees from Marin County. The other was Bruce Bollen of Terra Linda High who has a perfect 4.0 grade average.

Adams was a running back for Tam and was honorable mention All-Marin County Athletic League as a junior. Among the reasons for his nomination from the MCAL committee was his "relationship with and concern for his teammates and opponents, and for integrity."

Other winners of $1,000 scholarships at last night's banquet, held at the Hilton Hotel, were Sam Coffey (3.83 grade point average), St. Ignatius fullback; Bruce Barker (3.4) Lowell tackle; Russell Lee Willeford (3.6), Anderson Valley linebacker; Bruce Edwards (3.93), Cubberley (Palo Alto) tackle; Rick Medeiros, (3.64), St. Patrick's (Vallejo) center; and Greg Yamamoto (3.86), El Molino (Forestville) tackle.

Dallas Likely To Tab Jones In 1st Round

DALLAS (UPI) — Ed Jones, a 6-foot-9, 260-pound defensive tackle from Tennessee State, apparently will be the No. 1 choice in the National Football League draft early next year, a local newspaper reported today.

According to the Dallas Morning News, Jones will be the No. 1. pick of the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys will pick first in the draft because they own the Houston Oilers' first round pick and the Oilers have already clinched the worst record in the NFL.

Jones has 4.75 speed for 40 yards. His coach at Tennessee State, John Merritt, said Jones was the best lineman he ever coached. Tennessee State is the alma mater of Cleveland's Joe Jones and Atlanta's Claude Humphrey.

Jones said he wanted to play for Dallas and hoped he was picked by them.

"We've only lost two games in the four years I've played for Tennessee State and I'm not used to losing," he said. "Neither is Dallas."

Cowboy officials had little to say publicly about the identity of their No. 1 pick, but Jones might be chosen as an understudy to defensive tackle Bob Lilly.

NFL STATISTICS

Tarkenton Gets Passing Lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Minnesota Quarterback Fran Tarkenton, who has piloted the Minnesota Vikings into the National Football Conference Central Division title, took over the top spot as the NFC's leading passer in this week's statistics by the National Football League.

Tarkenton, whose team swamped Green Bay 31-7 last Saturday to bring the Vikings their 11th victory this season, replaced Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach as the No. 1 NFC passer. Staubach's Cowboys romped over Washington 27-7 Sunday.

John Hadl of Los Angeles was third, followed by Roman Gabriel of Philadelphia and Jim Hart of St. Louis.

Dallas running back Calvin Hill, with 1,095 yards in 13 games and six TDs, remained as the leading rusher in the NFC, 81 yards ahead of Los Angeles rookie Lawrence McCutcheon.

EARLY TIMES
Old Style Kentucky Whisky

Harry Trump was the most reasonable of bridge guests.
He demanded only two things.
New cards and Early Times.
Emil Frostbutt knew this.
On September 28, 1972, the cards in Frostbutt's posh game room were still in the cellophane.
But the bourbon..... for some never-to-be-determined reason, Frostbutt had not ordered Early Times.
That night, for the first time in years, Emil Frostbutt played bridge without Harry.
No Early Times.
No Trump.

Motel-Hotel Stocks Hurt By Fuel Crisis

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Should we sell and take a loss on 300 shares of Holiday Inns (NYSE) which were purchased several years ago? We are close to retirement. — J.K.

A. In view of the highly emotional state of the stock market, this would not appear to be the time to sell this stock. Motel/hotel stocks have been particularly hard hit, reflecting the tight gasoline situation. However, some semblance of objectivity should be forthcoming in reaction to the wholesale selling which has recently been witnessed.

At its recent price, HIA is selling at 9 times projected 1973 earnings, a multiple well below the 10-year average P/E of 27. While the market will probably continue to place a lower value than former lofty levels on the entire industry, the current reduced appraisal appears overdone for Holiday in view of its good fundamentals. Should the market take a breather and this issue recover some of its recent decline, I would then advise sale.

Q. How do I find out if high-yield AA-rated hospital bonds are safe? — L.M.

A. If bonds are rated AA by a reputable national rating service, such as Moody's, Standard & Poor's or Fitch's, this is certainly an indication of their above-average security. In addition to reading the literature sent out by the underwriter describing the bond issue, it would be very wise to read the offering prospectus. Even though you may not be familiar with a balance sheet, there should be sufficient explanatory literature included in the prospectus so that you are able to satisfy yourself on the solvency of the institution.

One drawback in this particular investment area is the difficulty sometimes encountered by people desiring to sell prior to maturity date. Although the offering underwriters may maintain secondary markets in the bonds, buyers are not always available when needed. Thus, unless you have enough cash or liquid assets to meet emergencies, this attractive yield had better be by-passed.

The Energy User

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, with only 6 per cent of the world's total population, uses more than one-third of the world's available energy.

Stocks Gain After Two Losing Days

With early bargain hunting centering on recently hard-hit glamors and blue chips, advances barely led declines, 600 to 562, among the 1,579 issues traded.

Noon volume totaled more than 7,000,000 shares, against 9,630,000 up to the corresponding time Wednesday.

Behind the market's current weakness, analysts said, are growing signs of severe economic dislocations as a result of the energy crisis and the Arab oil embargo.

In economic news, October business inventories showed a sharp increase, according to the Commerce Department, but sales also gained.

Bankshares Sells Half Of Offering

Of the 76,000 new shares of common stock offered by Independent Bankshares Corporation, San Rafael, less than one-half were purchased by current shareholders as of Monday this week, when their subscription rights expired.

Dale Sullivan, treasurer of IBC, estimated that 45 to 50 per cent of the total offering were purchased by current shareholders for $30 per share, at the rate of one new stock for each five shares held. This means total proceeds from the sale came to just over a million dollars.

The remaining unsold shares will be re-offered through security dealers in Marin and Sonoma County, with Davis Skaggs & Co. of San Francisco coordinating the re-offering. George Scott, representing Davis Skaggs, said the remaining shares will be sold for $32 per share, and this re-offering will expire on Jan. 11. Independent Bankshares stock quotations were off the over-the-counter listing for the past few days but were to reappear this week.

Prudential Loan Figures Reported

Real estate loans totaling $323,000 were disbursed in San Rafael during the first 10 months of 1973 by the western home office of the Prudential Insurance Co.

The entire amount was for city loans, according to Will J. Clardy, Jr., Northern California general manager for the company's real estate investment department.

Eerie Warning — Melting Ice Caps, Boiling Ocean Waters

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American Geophysical Union was warned yesterday that man's increasing rate of energy use would warm up the atmosphere by one half degree Fahrenheit — enough to melt much of the polar ice caps in a century's time.

The result would be to raise sea levels 200 feet and flood 10 percent of the earth's land, inundating half of the world's major metropolitan areas including New York and London.

A mere half-degree change would produce such a catastrophic event because the melting process is self-accelerating.

As the polar caps shrink, so do their reflective areas shrink, and more and more solar heat would be absorbed.

Wilcox said that man's energy consumption is rising 4 per cent per year. Pressure for more energy use, especially from now underdeveloped nations, will continue, he said.

But the heat from use of fossil fuels and nuclear power plants, and even man's light bulbs, does not escape into outer space, he said. It is effectively contained by the earth's atmosphere, a near-perfect insulator.

Wilcox saw world thermal pollution as a greater danger to mankind than food shortages or thermonuclear war.

If governments do not cooperate to limit heat production — Wilcox is convinced they will — then at the present rate in two centuries the surface waters of the tropical seas would boil, he said.

To avoid catastrophe, Wilcox said man must find ways to better use solar energy that arrives on earth whether man is present or not.

Wilcox himself is involved in a $150,000 Navy experiment to use solar energy in an ocean farm to grow kelp, an algae. Kelp, already used as food in some cultures, potentially could be converted to methane, an essential ingredient of natural gas and gasoline.

Wilcox's marine farm will grow kelp suspended on nylon mesh 50 feet below the ocean surface. It is hoped that the farm will produce 40 tons per acre each year.

Tam High Play Will Bow Tonight

The Tamalpais High School Drama Department will present "The Adding Machine" at 7:30 tonight in the school's Ruby Scott Auditorium, the department has announced.

The 50-year-old play will run through Saturday and next Tuesday through Friday. All performances are at 7:30 p.m.

The play by Elmer Rice deals with the frustrations of a man who loses his bookkeeping job to an adding machine and then murders his former boss.

Student actors are Tim Orr, Julie Stafford, Miyoko Porter, Jane Yockey, Barnaby Guardiola, Glen Sheehan, Jennifer Anderson, David Burdick, Eric Bailey and Frank Gower.

The production will be directed by Marin actor Allen Seaman.

SBA's Loan Powers Extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite an investigation of the Small Business Administration's lending practices, the House subcoommittee conducting the probe has recommended a six-month extension in loan-making authority for the agency.

The recommendation, if followed, would raise the SBA loan ceiling from $4.3 billion to $4.875 billion, enough to continue loan and lease programs another six months.

Action on the subcommittee's recommendation is set for today by the full House Banking Committee.

Voting against the proposal were Reps. William Cotter, D-Conn., and Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex.

Rep. William Cotter, D-Conn., who voted against the extension, said he disagreed with the extension of SBA's loan-making authority in view of the serious charges against the agency.

"I feel that we're on the verge of uncovering a gigantic scandal," he said, "and in view of that I don't see how we can make this money available to them until we know what is going to be done to correct these abuses."

More Authority Seen For Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon wants Vice President Gerald R. Ford to be involved in all major foreign and domestic decisions, a White House spokesman said yesterday.

After Nixon discussed Ford's with Republican congressional leaders at an hour-long meeting, it appeared clear the new vice president will be given much more authority and responsibility than was accorded his predecessor, Spiro T. Agnew.

Ford told a group of reporters at a breakfast meeting Wednesday that Nixon had promised to meet with him every day or to have an extensive telephone conversation with him.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren was reluctant to discuss the differences in Agnew's role during his tenure and the responsibilities being shifted to Ford.

But he said "there is a difference, of course, in the individuals' experience and areas of expertise."

Ford's successor as House Republican leader, Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona, said after his first meeting with Nixon after taking over from Ford in the House: "I think the vice president is being brought into the highest White House councils because of the necessity of the rapport with Congress."

Ford also was being brought in as a participant in the energy Emergency Action Group.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, Dec. 13, the 347th day of 1973 with 18 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupier.

Clark Mills, American sculptor of famous statues in Washington, D.C., was born Dec. 13, 1810.

On this day in history:

In 1642, New Zealand was discovered and named by Dutch navigator Abel Tasman.

In 1862, almost 11,000 Northern soldiers were killed or wounded in a battle with Confederate troops at Marye's Heights outside Fredericksburg, Va.

In 1918, American soldiers of the U.S. 3rd Army crossed the Rhine River at Coblenz, Germany, during World War I.

In 1937, Japanese soldiers captured Nanking, China, and began a systematic looting of the city's homes and shops.

A thought for the day: Seeing a federal charge repulsed at Fredericksburg, Va., Southern Gen. Robert E. Lee said: "It is well that war is so terrible, or we should get too fond of it."

AIM FOR NINE

West opens the seven of spades, and you must aim for nine tricks.

Suppose you play a low spade from dummy. East finesses with the eight, and you win with the queen. You lead a diamond to force out the ace.

West turns up with the ace of diamonds and leads another spade. East takes four more spade tricks, defeating the contract.

ANOTHER WAY

Let's try another way. You play low from the dummy at the first trick, and East finesses with the eight. You refuse the first trick. East continues with the ace and then a low spade.

Now you make your contract. West has the ace of diamonds but cannot lead another spade.

Don't congratulate yourself. You would lose the hand if East had the ace of diamonds. You have merely guessed right.

CORRECT PLAY

Just put up the king of spades from dummy at the first trick, and you don't care which opponent has the ace of diamonds.

If East wins the first trick with the ace of spades, he cannot afford to lead another spade. (You would allow a small spade to ride to dummy's ten). This gives you time to knock out the ace of diamonds, no matter where it may be. If East refuses the first trick, you still have the suit stopped. Either way, you are safe.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠- Q 6 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You have only 12 points in high cards, only mediocre distribution and only a weak suit. Pass a borderline hand unless you have good distribution and a strong suit.

Response On Reverse Side

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Gov. William G. Milliken Brown yesterday sent a personal note to two energy-conscious girls on the back of a brown paper bag.

The girls, Cheryll K. Shaw and Cindy Weber of Grand Rapids, had written a letter to Milliken on the paper bag asking for the governor's text of a speech he gave on conserving energy recently on the radio.

The girls were so caught up in the message that they pulled the plugs on all electrical appliances in the room — including the radio—and never heard the end of Milliken's message to the public.

The girls added a post script to the note, informing Milliken that their stationery was "recycled from a grocery bag which was recycled from junk. Due to the paper shortage, you may reply on the reverse side."

OCCUPANTS UNHURT

Pilot Ken Grisa, 30, of Hickory Hills, Ill., and his passenger, Barry Flisk, 27, of Chicago, walked away unhurt after Grisa crash-landed his plane on a residential street on Chicago's South Side earlier this week. The plane developed engine trouble shortly after the two took off on a flight to Milwaukee. The craft damaged about eight parked cars and stuck a lamppost before coming to rest on its nose.

Falcons' Main Food Is Laced With Death-Dealing Pesticide

DENVER (UPI) — Chalk up another feathered victim to pesticides — the peregrine falcon. RIP.

The endangered falcon, once common to the United States, is being killed by its need for food. The birds the peregrine preys on are filled with the poison.

"It's the food chain," biologist Dr. James Enderson said. "The peregrine feeds upon the birds and its level of pesticides is almost 200 times higher than you find in most animals.

"In 1944, there were about 450 pairs east of the Mississippi in the United States and Canada. Those are all gone now. We do know there were once on the order of 50 to 60 eyries in the Rocky Mountains. Now we're down to 14."

Enderson, of Colorado College in Colorado Springs, is now raising captive peregrines he hopes eventually will reproduce eggs that can be returned to the wild canyons in the state for hatching. Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., also is raising the falcons in hopes of saving the race.

The killer of the peregrine is a derivative of DDT which has caused the falcons eggshells to lose thickness and crack in the nest.

"The eggs don't hold up to incubation," Enderson said. "When an egg breaks the female becomes covered with it and abandons the entire nest. The adults die and there's nothing to take their place."

The endangered falcon is called the "temperate" peregrine, one of three races of the species in North America. Other branches of the peregrine are found in Alaska's Aleutian Islands and in the Arctic. But while they too, are threatened by pesticides, they are not as close to extinction as the "temperate" peregrine.

The problem is that the different branches of the peregrine do not crossbreed so once the U.S. peregrine dies off, the race is gone forever.

Pope May Cancel Mass In Basilica

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican Radio says that Pope Paul VI may cancel his date to officiate at mass in St. Peter's basilica Christmas Eve if the government does not lift its 11-day-long Christmas season driving ban.

The radio station said the Pope would call it off "to avoid imposing hardships on believers and an excessive mobilization of public transportation."

Living Yule Tree Program Grows

LITTLETON, Colo. (UPI) — One of Mrs. Jackie Lembke's greatest delights is simply to walk around her yard in suburban Littleton pointing out to friends the evergreens she and her family have planted.

"In our yard, there is nothing sweeter than to go around and look at the trees and remember the times when they were planted," the mother of three said. "We have five trees now, for five Christmases. With a little bit of luck, we will have a lot more."

Mrs. Lembke is head of an environmental group called Provide for People, which wants homeowners across the nation to celebrate Christmas in a different way. They want people to buy living, growing Christmas trees — Not trees that have been cut — and then replant them when they have served their holiday decorative purpose.

"There is no more wonderful way to celebrate Christmas," Mrs. Lembke says. "I have three fine sons and they're all enthusiastic about it. They help decorate the tree and then after Christmas, plant it."

Mrs. Lembke, whose group kicked off a nationwide campaign on Thanksgiving Day, said she has been working for three years now to convince people to buy living trees. She thinks the idea is spreading.

"We were very effective last year," she said. "The first year there were over 1,000 live trees planted in Colorado alone and last year it jumped to 7,000. And we've heard that there has been a lot of good support across the nation."

Mrs. Lembke said she found it amazing the number of people who have jumped on the bandwagon to support the idea.

"It seems like an idea whose time has come," she said. "All you have to do is mention it to people and they either latch onto it and say this is a great idea or else they poo-hoo the idea and just forget it."

Mrs. Lembke said she can't accept the argument that the task is too difficult and that most of the trees planted in wintertime will die.

"We say if you get a dead tree, you know it's dead," she said. "But at least this way you take a chance. Even if only 50 per cent of the trees that are planted live, that's 50 per cent more live trees than we had to start off with."

Mrs. Lembke provides a few hints for persons buying living trees. They should never be kept in the home for more than 10 days, keep the roots moist and then leave the tree in the garage for a couple of days to get it used to the shock of moving outdoors.

"Keep your dirt in the garage, too, or some other protected area so it won't shock the roots at the time you transplant it," she said.

Mrs. Lembke, who has been sidelined much of the past year as the result of injuries suffered when struck by a car, said she felt her group was instrumental in the decision this year by the White House to have a living national Christmas tree. Her organization set up a cry last year when a tree was cut in Wyoming and then shipped to the White House as the national tree.

Mrs. Lembke said the originator of the live Christmas tree program was a woman whose name she doesn't even know. She heard the elderly woman speaking to a councilman at a political meeting and telling him how nice it would be to have evergreens up and down the main street in Littleton.

Mrs. Lembke told her organization about it and the members decided to take it on as a project.

"The first year we tried to find her," Mrs. Lembke said. "She never did step forward, so I don't know whether she died or if she just hasn't become aware. But it was really she who was the originator of this."

ART REVIEW

Nun's Photos Concentrate On The Upbeat Aspects Of Life

By ADA GARFINKEL

Very frankly, Sister Adele — who received her doctor of philosophy degree from the University of California at Berkeley in 1949 — states her case.

She contends that the world is full of photographers who portray the miseries and sadness of life. She wants to reflect the upbeat facets of life.

"Photography should not .. restrict its vision to the negative aspects of life, but ought to include .. positive and joyful aspects, also," she believes.

Sister Adele has developed a personal way of creating arresting visual effects through a process of montage which she calls "haiku photography." She has chosen this designation because the final photo is a "compressed visual form," just as haiku, the oriental verse form is a compressed verbal form.

A good deal of thought and time is spent on developing her photo-montages, concentrating on specific themes such as counterpointing the essence of the seasons in "Winter and Summer" with the marriage of a wintry sky, a barren silver birch, and a summer-blooming iris.

Sometimes it is history that dominates as in the shot of Sir Francis Drake's cuneiform-like brass plate superimposed over the spire of San Francisco's new St. Mary's Church. The cool marine-blue color suggesting the blue of the Pacific.

Or it might be a long shot and a close-up of the same scene. In "Abandoned Miner's Cabin," for instance, the darkly-toned, wooden shack is sandwiched by a macro shot of a glowing, silvery knothole found in the shack's side.

And there is a sense of mystical presence in a distance shot of a row of sharply peaked houses with a Pieta-like figure rising above.

One begins to recognize other concepts such as the metallic hardness of the ornate grillwork in "Flaming Gate" taken in Paris, and the soft, golden glow of the huge flower petals asserting their organic presence in the background.

Sister Adele sums up her attitude by saying that she creates her pictures "to show things that ought to be appreciated in the world .. montage as a means of helping to see those things anew, by seeing them on more than one level ..."

This exhibit will continue through Jan. 3, and may be seen weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Saturdays except Christmas and New Year's Day. The Ross Valley Medical Clinic is located at 1350 S. Eliseo Drive.

Prison Patrols Riding Horses

ATLANTA (UPI) — Georgia prison guards are now patrolling on horseback instead of in trucks and cars to save fuel.

Dr. Allen L. Ault, newly appointed corrections commissioner, told the Georgia Prison Board yesterday at least one warden believes the mounted patrols are more effective and wants to continue the use of horses even if energy shortages are eased.

Engineers Helped By Energy Crisis

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Dr. Nunzio J. Palladino, dean of the Pennsylvania State University's College of Engineering, says the energy crisis has produced one benefit — more and higher paying jobs for graduates of engineering schools.

Palladino said a survey by the College Placement Council showed that employment offers for males with bachelor's degrees from U.S. schools climbed by 83 per cent during 1972-73, while women received 94 per cent more job offers than in 1971-72. He said the average salary offer of $936 per month for women was slightly higher than the $929 per month offered men.

Fresno To Get Status Of Port

FRESNO (UPI) — Fresno will be designated an official U.S. Port of Entry effective Jan. 1, according to the office of Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif.

Sisk said a facility to handle importation of goods for the central six-county area will do an estimated $20 million of business a year.

The only other ports of entry in California are located in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Sisk said customs officials are considering locating the facility along Freeway 99 near the Southern Pacific Railroad.

The designation will be for a one-year trial period.

THREE TO GET READY

Madrigal singers (from left) Marjorie Telfer, Erwin Griffin and Anna Secrist try out their pitch on Edward Delap and Anna Dennison at Pacheco School. All five are madrigal singers who will be among some 75 performers scheduled to take part in a concert and arts show Sunday at Indian Valley Colleges in Novato. The colleges' chorus, community players and modern dance class are to perform, starting at 3 p.m.

Further Study Asked Of All-Year Schools

A Novato Unified School District committee has recommended further study of the possibility of having schools operate all year.

The committee asked the district board Tuesday night to allocate $5,000 for the study, but board members postponed action until Jan. 8, according to Annette Conklin, publications director.

Committee members said they "want to look at the educational benefits only," and not consider year-round school as a solution to overcrowding, she said.

The committee also recommended that its membership be expanded to include parents, students and community residents, Miss Conklin said.

If a year-round program were approved, it would take about a year of planning before it could be put into effect, she said.

Trustees also agreed to have a special meeting next month, date not set, to discuss budget priorities, when each trustee will submit his choices and top priorities for expenditures will be reached by consensus, she said.

Novato Unified School District Board Also:

ENROLLMENT — Received a report that enrollment as of Nov. 30 was 10,760, compared to 11,244 in September, 1972.

TRAINING CAR — Agreed to purchase a driver training car from Novato Datsun at a cost of $2,500.

PEER COUNSELING — Approved a family service agency program to train high school students in communication and leadership so they can serve as tutors to other students.

SINALOA NIGHT — Commended the Sinaloa Junior High School staff for its work in conducting a back-to-school night Nov. 29, when classes were held in the evening, enabling parents and students to attend.

NEXT MEETING — Cancelled the next scheduled meeting, Dec. 25, and adjourned until Jan. 8 at 8 p.m. at the Novato High School lecture hall.

TRUSTEE — James Casassa was absent.

Seeking Taxes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California is trying to collect $64,054 in state income taxes from the estate of movie star Marilyn Monroe for film profits realized since her death in 1962.

Californians May Store Their Cars

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Motor Vehicles Director Robert Cozens says he is "certain" a large number of two- and three-car California families plan to store one of the vehicles during the energy crisis to conserve fuel.

Cozens said he based his belief on the volume of questions the Motor Vehicles Department is receiving each day from "people who are thinking of storing their cars."

CLEANUP OF ESTATE SET

The historic Robert Dollar estate grounds in San Rafael will be the site of a cleanup drive by San Rafael Jaycees at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The group will weed estate grounds, trim bushes and hedges, and haul away debris, a spokesman said.

The project will be supervised by John Bryan, director of the Strybing Arboretum in San Francisco, and Marin Heritage, a citizens group seeking to preserve historically and architecturally important structures in the county.

One Way To Solve Problem

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Jim Hutchings said yesterday that because "the courts always give the woman everything", he bulldozed his $37,500 home into rubble to prevent that from happening in a divorce from his wife.

Hutchings said his wife left him, took their two children and the household furnishings and moved out of their suburban home a few weeks ago.

"The courts always give the woman everything," Hutchings said. "But I decided that my missus would not get her customary half share of the house so I borrowed the tractor and set about knocking the damn thing down."

Hutchings, 33, is a building demolition contractor.

State Insurance Chiefs Oppose Federal No-Fault

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The insurance commissioners of Oregon and Washington urged yesterday that Congress not pass legislation requiring so-called "no-fault" auto insurance.

The officials, in whose states such insurance already is available on a voluntary basis, said all states should be left free to come up with their own plans.

Commissioner Lester L. Rawls of Oregon and Commissioner Karl Herrmann of Washington also told the Senate Judiciary Committee that a federal plan would mean that policy holders in their states would end up "subsidizing" those of other states with higher accident rates.

The two state officials also contended that a federal plan would not take differences among the states into consideration.

"The problems that affect Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Illinois and California are not the ones that affect Oregon, Alaska or Idaho," Rawls said.

The Oregon commissioner also charged that a federal plan would destroy a plan that was working well in Oregon.

"This is analogous to the custom in some native tribes whereby the cure for a headache is to drive a spike through the head of the person from one temple to the other," he said.

Herrmann denounced the federal plan as "a gun-in-the-ribs approach."

President Nixon's Disturbing Disclosures

The detailed financial statement which President Nixon made public last week end amounts to an indictment of present-day political morality in this country.

Mr. Nixon presented figures compiled by the General Services Administration (at a cost to the taxpayers of $313,582, according to an accompanying White House statement) to prove that it was untrue that $10 million in public funds had been spent on his homes in San Clemente and Key Biscayne.

Only $205,000, it claimed, was spent on the president's houses (note the change from "home" to "house"). But $905,000 was spent on the grounds of those houses, according to the statement.

The rest of the $10 million — $8.9 million of it — was, according to GSA figures, for "administrative and protective support of the president." This included office complexes built at both locations, on property adjoining Mr. Nixon's (and in Florida, bought by the government for the sole purpose of providing these offices), plus extensive security installations.

UNFORTUNATELY, this begs the question.

The entire $10 million in public funds was spent to enhance Mr. Nixon's properties and give him "private White Houses" for his convenience. None of the office buildings, none of the security installations was necessary for the conduct of the presidency. But they provided Mr. Nixon with comfort, conveniences, and in the case of Key Biscayne, the presence of his closest friend.

The statement justified Mr. Nixon's $576,000 tax deduction for "contributing" his senatorial and vice presidential papers to the National Archives because six other presidents, it claimed, took deductions for similar contributions. Named as the six were Hoover, Roosevelt (apparently Franklin D.), Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, and Johnson.

IN NAMING Mr. Hoover, the White House made a blunder. Far from benefiting financially from the presidency, Herbert Hoover refused to accept any salary for filling the office.

John F. Kennedy's papers were put in the archives after his death. Lyndon B. Johnson, while himself taking a deduction for giving some of "his" papers, supported and signed into law a bill outlawing such deductions thereafter.

Whether Mr. Nixon's senatorial and vice presidential papers are worth $578,000 is beside the point. All of them were prepared by government personnel in a government office for a government official. The great majority undoubtedly are public records. Mr. Nixon took a deduction for "giving to the people" what they already owned — and for which they had already paid.

It is true, however, that several predecessors in office had done the same thing — although Mr. Johnson at least recognized its unfairness.

And it is true that some government funds — though far less than $10 million — were spent on Mr. Johnson's Texas ranch, and that some $35,000 of federal funds was spent on Mr. Kennedy's Hyannis Port estate.

SO WHAT we have here is evidence of declining morality in public office — far removed from that of Mr. Hoover, who served as president without salary; or, more recently, of Mr. Truman, who kept no "second White House" and retired to the same home (never improved with public funds) in which he had lived as a county judge in Independence, Mo.

The lack of rectitude displayed — and made plain in Mr. Nixon's financial statement is not that of Mr. Nixon alone. It has infused the whole government establishment — including the Congress that allowed it to happen without protest, giving a series of presidents "blank check" funds to spend as they wished.

This lack of rectitude, this trifling with the public trust, has brought the "Watergate morality" which has so shocked the nation in this year of 1974.

Seven Pillars of Wisdom? The Christian Science Monitor

Kissinger's Trip May Influence Future Of Western World

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger is off for the second major task of his diplomatic career. Can he bring about a settlement of the old Arab-Israel wars before serious damage is done to the American economy, the U.S. alliance with Western Europe and the U.S. detente with the Soviet Union?

Having spent his first four years of high diplomacy on the Far East, he now is overwhelmed by all the ramifications of the Middle East problem.

No man can say that this second task is more or less difficult than the first. One can say that its successful conclusion is more important. The United States could lose a battle in Vietnam. It can lose its world role over the Middle East, because the health of the American economy is fundamental to that role.

MR. KISSINGER'S TRIP starts in Brussels with an exercise of novel nature for American diplomacy.

Although Washington was the intentional father of a united Europe, the fact that the United States must begin to deal with the members of the Common Market as a unit instead of as individuals has only just begun to enter the American thought process. The change is upsetting to old habits.

His second stop is London, where a major repair job awaits him. The old "special relationship" with Britain has suffered more from neglect and carelessness than any other feature of U.S. foreign policy.

Through the Middle East crisis, Washington has let its irritation with London show. It has scolded and complained.

Mr. Kissinger took British support for granted and got instead precisely the same treatment from the British that they got from Washington when the roles were reversed during the Suez crisis of 1956.

The British didn't like being involved without consultation. They particularly don't like now being scolded because they didn't want American planes to carry bullets to Israel through British bases — and all at the expense of their oil supply.

FROM LONDON the Kissinger road runs first through all of the Arab capitals, including two days in Riyadh where King Faisal keeps a deft hand on the wheels which control all the oil the United States and its allies so much want for their economic well-being.

Also on the list is Damascus, which Mr. Kissinger has never before visited, and which doesn't even have diplomatic relations with the United States.

From the Arab world, the American traveler approaches the last two vital stages of his journey — Tel Aviv, and then Geneva.

So much rides on this journey. As he takes off, traffic gets lighter every day on American highways. Truckers are in truculent protest over slower speeds. The stock market has reached a new three-year low. Japan and the West European allies are in rebellion against American policies which are injuring their economies.

THERE IS NOTHING here that a quick Mideast settlement would not mend — at least in part. Nothing, of course, will ever be quite the same again, but the changes will all be manageable provided there is that much-to-be-desired quick settlement.

The trans-Atlantic relationship, for example, has been strained — but strained largely because the West European allies are in fact suffering from oil shortages resulting from U.S. policies which they did not approve and had no share in executing.

They are the unwilling victims of American one-man diplomacy. But if the oil flows again, their economic prospects improve, and Mr. Kissinger promises no more crises without consultation, the essential and vital importance of the relationship both to Europe and to the United States will again emerge. The damage can be managed — when the oil flows again.

Public Records Act Needs Thorough Overhauling

By EARL G. WATERS

The fracas with the University of California regents over the Hitch contract has served to delineate the necessity for amendments to the Public Records Act if the "fundamental and necessary right of every person in this state" to have "access to information concerning the conduct of the people's business" is to be a reality.

It is now evident that Assemblyman William T. Bagley, author of the Public Records Act, leaned too far in being "mindful of the rights of individuals to privacy" and included too many exceptions to the people's rights to public records.

For example, it is difficult to understand why the applications of those seeking a bank, savings and loan or insurance charter should not be public. They are asking the state for the right to take and hold in trust the public's money. Should not the public then have the right to know who these applicants are and what surety they have for such a trust?

Why, when the law requires a showing of financial ability to qualify for certain state licenses as a protection to the public, should the facts of such qualifications not be known to the public?

THE OPPORTUNITY for public officials to show favoritism, to grant charters and licenses improperly, is too great to permit such data to be secret.

And should not memoranda exchanged between public employees relating to the conduct of government business be open to view without the necessity of proving that the public interest in such disclosures outweighs the need for withholding?

And what reason can there be for providing that library materials acquired "solely for the purpose of reference or exhibition" can be withheld from public view?

But the impact of these exceptions is minor contrasted to that of "personnel, medical or similar files." The language is so vague as to be meaningless. As the court appropriately observed in the Hitch case, the law should not leave it to a judge to decide what records come under the meaning of this provision.

The need or desirability of privilege for personnel records must be challenged. One who aspires to an elective public office must be prepared to disclose everything about himself, including his personal life and finances. He must lay bare his soul. Why, then, should his appointive subordinates enjoy a protected status?

When a school board employs a bus driver, do not the parents, whose children's safety must depend upon that driver, have the right to know all about that person? Lacking that right it is possible that a board member may get the job for his epileptic brother-in-law. Or a child molester. Or, as in Texas, someone who not only didn't have a driver's license but had three times failed the examination for one.

Public employees are just that. They are not the employees of an agency; they are the people's employees.

MARQUIS CHILDS: Hikes 'To Save Energy'

WASHINGTON — In all the backing and filling within the administration over the energy crisis, one small grain of truth is visible in the mountain of rhetoric. If they can get away with it, the ideologues of free enterprise in command mean to let rapidly rising prices of gasoline and heating oil ease the fuel shortage. This will insure the greatest hardship on those least able to bear it.

To talk about free enterprise in fuel is to live in the fantasy of a vanished era. The big oil companies own 30 per cent of coal production and 72 per cent of natural gas. The industry is cartelized, with supply and demand a myth, superseded by tight controls exercised by a small number of very large corporations.

ONE OF THE MISSIONARIES of free enterprise is Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, who apparently interprets his role as that of evangel to the untutored. He pops out like a cuckoo out of a cuckoo clock every hour on the hour to announce that all is for the best in the best-possible-of-worlds.

His latest chirp was before the Economic Club of Detroit, where he said the most constructive course is to allow prices to rise, because that works most in the direction of the long-run solution, which is to bring about an expansion of supply. He made a further statement which will be news to a great many people:

"Retail prices of gasoline have risen over 10 per cent in the past year. This has helped to make our present problem less than it would otherwise be. We shall surely see further increases in the price of gasoline."

Along with the policy, if indeed it can be called a policy, of allowing prices to go through the roof is the move to discard most pollution standards. These hard-won standards for motorcars and industrial plants had only just begun to take hold, with a noticeable improvement in the environment. Now this is apparently to go overboard as news reports from around the country tell of switches to high-sulphur oil or coal.

THE HAPLESS ENERGY czar (and what a misnomer that was) Gov. John Love, back in Colorado after an exercise in futility, did make one critical decision. He announced on Sept. 8 that his office would move to seek the relaxation of state and local emission standards. In a stern protest, the National Resources Defense Council described this as "a shocking attempt to make Americans' lungs bear the burden of the administration's failure to take meaningful steps to improve our short-term energy situation."

The auto companies are pushing hard to cut back or eliminate entirely pollution controls, present and future. They argue this will conserve fuel, although that is a doubtful argument.

Letting gasoline and heating oil prices spiral upward will contribute to inflation, as the latest report on the wholesale price index for last month showed. The rise was a whopping 1.8 per cent, most of it due to increases in the cost of fuel. And that is only the beginning.

The Wall Street Journal said the other day that we are in not for stagflation — stagnation of the economy along with inflation — but stinkflation — meaning dirty air, smog-laden atmosphere, all the abuses the drive against pollution had promised to clean up.

WHATEVER THE BRAND of inflation, it is serious enough as prices go up in cartelized industries, such as fuel, and these are prices that never go down. They are an assurance of continuing profits throughout the great corporate oil structure, as little independents at the filling-station level are squeezed out.

Powerful forces are underway that mean some fuel saving along with substantial unemployment. The gas guzzlers are on the way out. The failure of the auto companies to come up with a small car like those out of Germany and Japan that get from 20 to 28 miles a gallon is beginning to tell.

The conservation measures taken thus far are well and good. They are a brake on the reckless, high-speed motorized economy that has seen the United States consuming 35 per cent of the world's resources with six per cent of the population. But they cannot be stretched far enough to resolve the crisis. That can be done only by measures meaning equity for all.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY: Letters To The I-J

Display Lighting Should Be Reduced Too

In response to article in Saturday's (Dec. 8) paper, "PG&E Out To Educate Customers To Cut Back" — why lay it on the homebodies? It states lighting accounts for 15 per cent of average household electric consumption. How about these decorators' stores? I name specifically W. and J. Sloane, who has had every light in their store ablaze. Daytime, nighttime, makes no difference. I'm adding Lights of Rafael to my peeve list, having observed their Santa Rosa store Saturday evening — not only all display lights on (perhaps essential for vandalism protection) for every hanging and standing lamp in the store is on. What does it benefit a customer to see an illuminated lamp if they can't illuminate it in their home? Let's see how these lamps look with the lights off.

Also on my peeve list are highway billboards — again, some are informative and necessary, but milk and cigarette ads? Once seen in daylight, who needs an evening neon reminder?

So, I repeat, as a homebody I'm trying, so let's see it on the outside. Do the car lots need all those lights? Misery loves company, you know.

Philosophic Thoughts At Christmas Season

As Watergate draws to an end and the old year draws to a close, these quotes we can say of ourselves and those people who feel as of Gods or angels thereof, and we all share in that, the spiritual sum of the parts:

"That to admit a greatness immeasurable by the rule of right and wrong is but to accept one's own nothingness and immeasurable littleness" — Tolstoy, "War and Peace." "In order to discover what is authentically individual in ourselves, profound reflection is needed; and suddenly we realize how uncommonly difficult the discovery of individuality in fact is" — Carl Jung.

The historical Christmas message as it always resurfaces as gleamed from above quotes is, "The path of greatness is always through humbleness; we are not less than, nor greater than that power which permits an existence for a while upon this earth shaped by all, circumstances and events."

Let us embrace the New Year with conscious optimism as we are enlightened by the facts, and turn aside our prejudices, make impossibilities into possibilities, and thus if not in body, in spirit remain young, learning is part of life.

No Siree, Bub, You Can't Beat Progress

I recall them there primitive days before zip codes, and airplane delivery, and computers, and wonderful sorting machines (and Wall Street type offices for the new businessman type executive), when I could drop a letter in the box across the street from my house in Iowa at 8 o'clock at night and it wouldn't be delivered to a residential address in Chicago, only 300 miles away, until maybe the second (afternoon) delivery the next day. Now, with all these wonderful new gidgets I can be almost sure of getting a letter across the bridge in a week. (It's a long bridge, you know.)

Yes siree, I recall how that ole Burlington "fast mail" train used to creep through town, maybe not doing more than 80 m.p.h., about two o'clock in the morning, and grabbing mail bags off the hooks on the fly. We just didn't know how durn primitive we were.

And I recall old Ed Ellis' old swayback nag dragging a two-wheeled cart around the mail route twice a day. I suppose there are some old fogies around that don't appreciate progress, that would rather be smelling a pile of horse manure than the nice clean invisible residue that dandy little truck puts out as it rattles by once every single day (except holidays, Sundays and maybe a few others).

Me now, I say, you can't beat progress; can you?

Energy Crisis Carries Threat Of Dictatorship

The reaction, of the Congress and the public, to the energy crisis and its portents is natural and to be expected. Nevertheless, this reaction seems to me to contain grave dangers for a free and republican form of government. . .

The willingness of the Congress to grant great arbitrary powers to a president it neither likes nor trusts is the same sort of panic reaction to crises by which all dictators have come to power. The willingness of the public for the president to have these powers is also an essential element in the rise of a dictator. It will be said that the emergency permits of no other solution, but so was it said when a Napoleon or a Hitler became the dictator.

Some of the specific powers being assumed by the Congress and delegated to the president seem to lack a basis in our federal Constitution. Where does the Constitution grant the Congress the powers to set speed limits or ration energy supplies? Is this an exercise of the police powers of sovereignty? The Constitution also says: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution . . . are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people." So it would seem that these powers belong to the sovereign states, or to the people.

The problem here is over-centralization of power in the federal government, and the danger of dictatorship in the very central government which has the constitutional duty to guarantee a republican form of government to the states. If we don't challenge the constitutionality of the assumption of these powers, the Constitution cannot protect our freedom.

Opposition To Council Sabotages Electorate

The spectacle of political naivete unrolled in your editorial column and letters from some readers seems a reverse image of the deadly circus we see in the national arena. Those who deplore the unhorsing of Jorgen Lunding as chairman of the San Rafael Planning Commission are either engaged in a shadow show or are wilfully feigning ignorance of the functioning of a representative form of government.

The city councilmen are elected and are responsible to the citizenry. The planning commission is appointive and is responsible to the council. A commissioner insistently espousing aims and procedures contrary to the sense of the council is, in effect, sabotaging the will of the electors. He must be corrected or dismissed as an impediment to the proper functioning of our representative form of government.

No Need Anymore To Pray For Rain

I remember — some 60 years ago I lived with my very religious parents. No rain for so long, no crop of wheat without rain. My parents and I went to church and prayed for rain. Several weeks later it did rain, but too late. No crop that year, but we all went back to church and thanked for the rain. He answered our prayers. Now you don't have to do that. Why pray? Call the welfare.

Nature Foils County 'Experts' Attempting To Alter Lagoon

It not only is not nice to fool Mother Nature; a lot of times it doesn't even work.

Ever since the Civic Center lagoon was scooped out of bay mud, county officials have been plagued by a battle of two forms of life, one desirable (to man, at least), the other not so desirable.

Welcoming a nice shallow pond where they could feed and live, ducks and other waterfowl thrived in the lagoon.

Also, unfortunately, did a lot of thick, gummy algae. It grew so thick, in fact, that the entire ecology of the lagoon was disrupted.

A dose of chemicals helped the situation temporarily, but soon the algae was back again, as thick as ever.

So last month officials decided to drain the lagoon for the winter and make the water too shallow for the algae to survive.

But no sooner was that done than torrents of rain came, and pretty soon the lagoon was as full as ever.

Now it has been drained again, greatly increasing the duck density (planning department take note), but if the forecasts of a wetter-than-usual winter hold true, there's bound to be just as much algae come spring as there was when the officials began tinkering with the ecology of the lagoon.

SOME OF THE SPECTATORS who daily go to the Hall of Justice to view the San Quentin Six trial have been unhappy to discover a photographer busily snapping their pictures as they stood in front of the courtroom.

One spectator, a San Francisco law student, even went so far as to file suit to halt the picture-taking. He got nowhere.

It turns out, according to the sheriff's department, that those films aren't even developed and aren't likely to be.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos said the films are "solely for the confidential use" of his department.

In the event of a disturbance, the photos would be used to identify spectators who may have taken part, he said.

Otherwise, the pictures never would see the light of day. "They're not scattered around to other law agencies," Mountanos said.

THIS EXPLANATION isn't likely to satisfy many of the spectators, who say they object to the principle of being photographed without their permission, regardless of what use is made of the films.

Still, it may rest their minds to know their pictures aren't being circulated to police departments as "known troublemakers" — a fear expressed by more than one of the supporters of the San Quentin Six.

One Santa Can Spot Kickers A Mile Off

"I can tell now what's going to happen when they come up to me," Calao said. "I've been kicked a number of times. The 4-and 5-year-olds are bad for that.

Calao, 42, an audio-visual specialist at Denver's educational television station, put on his Father Christmas suit for the first time in 1965 to do a benefit for crippled children.

Each year since, the Friday after Thanksgiving, Calao bleaches his beard, picks up his bag and starts "working" private parties, schools and hospitals.

"I get the satisfaction of pleasing the kids," Calao said. "Basically, I give the kids the notion that they haven't been forgotten."

Calao blames the materialism of so many children who perch on his knee nowadays on the impact of television commercials. Religion, he says, and the spirit of the birth of Christ, rarely are mentioned.

"The kids talk strictly about material items," he said. "For the merchant, it's good. But it's a bad thing for the average spirit of Christmas."

Calao also said that a child's requests reflect the status of the family.

"Upper-income girls are very, very big on dolls," he said. "The lower-income girls like gadgets — things like toy ovens and play dishes — that sort of thing."

According to Calao, the majority of children stop believing in Santa Claus, his reindeer and late night visits on Christmas about the age of 6.

"The children begin to go to school and the other kids tell them Santa Claus really doesn't exist, or their parents do," he said.

Calao said one of the toughest questions asked by children who still believe is why they see so many Santa Clauses on streetcorners and in stores during the Christmas season.

"That's a problem, but I just tell them the other Santas are helping me out and that I can't be everywhere at once."

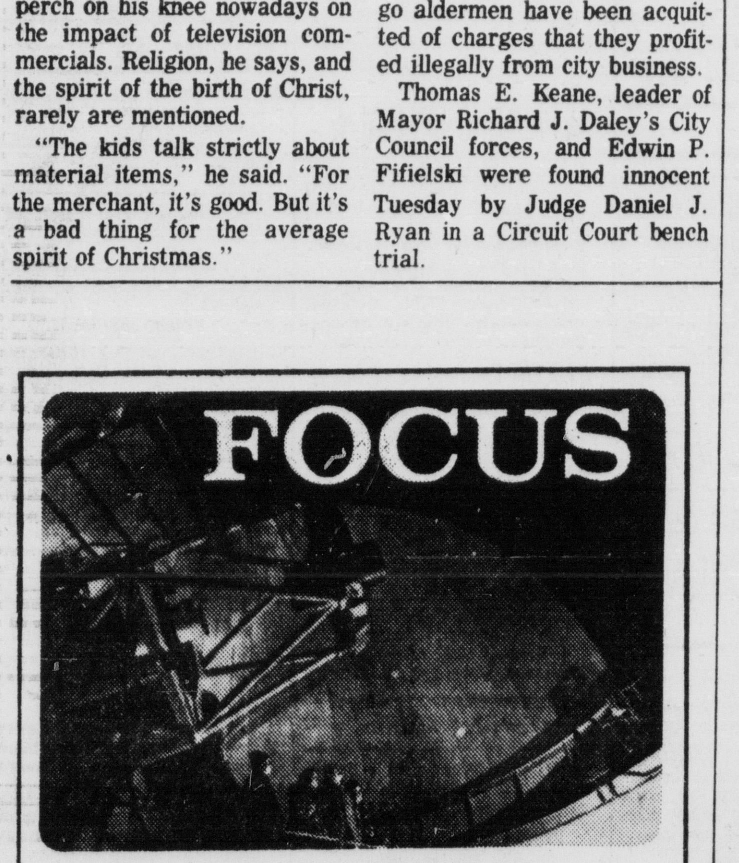
FOCUS



Photographing Kohoutek

Astronomers are using large telescopes to track Comet Kohoutek, but you can photograph the "Christmas Comet" without any telescope at all. All it takes is a tripod, fast film, and a camera with a fast lens that can be set to take time exposures. Use one of the black and white or color films with an ASA rating of 400 or more. Open the lens wide open and make a series of exposures ranging from 60 seconds to 1/60th of a second, cutting the exposure in half each time. You will have to do it soon, for before long Kohoutek will get too close to the sun to photograph. However, you will be able to try again in January, when the comet will be visible in the evening sky. DO YOU KNOW — Who discovered Comet Kohoutek?

Freedom Bell Has Rung For More Than 10,000

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — In the past 12 years more than 10,000 "prisoners of conscience" have won their release with the help of an organization that began as an experiment.

It is "Amnesty International", founded in 1961 in London where it still has its headquarters directing offices in 32 countries. It operates on a small budget of about half a million dollars a year and concerns itself with the rights and welfare of prisoners in more than 60 countries.

Amnesty International crosses ideological and bloc lines. The prisoners it is concerned with are equally in the Communist, the capitalist and what Amnesty prefers to call the "third" non-aligned-world.

They range from the Soviet dissidents — on whom Amnesty International aims to produce a report shortly — to prisoners of the Greek military regime, those caught in the Chilean anti-Allende upheaval, victims of South Africa's apartheid and draft-dodgers in the U.S.

Amelio Augustus, the American representative of Amnesty International, said the organization works to help all those who "are forgotten by governments, who are not criminals, not violent, but whose civil and political rights have been violated — the true prisoners of conscience — under the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights" that is 25 years old this month.

"Those" she said. "who are subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention without trial, forced marriage, conscription because of reasons of race, religion or nationality."

Amnesty International was founded by Peter Benenson in London in 1961 as an experimental committee for one year. Now it is a permanent organization with consultative status with the United Nations, the Organization of American States, the Organization of African Unity, the Council of Europe in Strasbourg and the U.N. Education and Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

Mrs. Augustus, a graduate of Columbia University, who says she was attracted to Amnesty three years ago when one of her Greek relatives was tortured, said six of Amnesty's workers were jailed in South Korea recently.

Asked what Amnesty could do about it, she was optimistic, saying "we pretend we can move mountains. We know from past experience that Amnesty has influence totally out of its proportion."

Some 30,000 men and women work for Amnesty around the world, but only 80 to 90 are salaried.

In the case of the Koreans, appeals were made to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim of the United Nations, to the U.S. State Department and to foreign ministers of countries urging them to exercise their influence on the Korean government.

In the U.N., Amnesty works through delegations. One of its achievements was the recent adoption by the General Assembly of a resolution outlawing torture of prisoners.

This will be the main subject at a UNESCO-sponsored conference in Paris Dec. 10 commemorating the 25th anniversary of the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights.

In the Soviet Union, Mrs. Augustus said, Amnesty was "awfully concerned with the practice of labeling a political dissenter as insane and then detaining him in a mental hospital and administering drugs." She estimated the current number of persons so detained in the Soviet Union at 10,000 "as a conservative estimate."

Amnesty works closely with the U.N. Commission for Human Rights, submitting reports on cases, including recently names of 472 officials accused of committing torture in Brazil.

One of the biggest successes of Amnesty was the release in the spring of 1973 of thousands of politically held Indonesians as a result of a postcard campaign to government officials and intervention with the government.

"They (the prisoners) then sent us jewelry made of food cans as a token of gratitude."

$700 to $1,000 monthly salary while in training. We are interested in executive types who are career minded. Our intensive training program would give you both product knowledge and sales technique in the areas of personal estate analysis, business and group insurance, pension and profit sharing. Some sales or college background preferred. Our organization has served the Bay Area for more than 85 years. For confidential interview, call Mr. Bracken or Mrs. Hime, 479-5145.

Our cross reference directories are sources of vital information & are used by both government & business. We sell no advertising. Our representative in these counties will enjoy a protected territory, substantial base pay + commission & residual income, paid training & major fringe benefits. SPEND CHRISTMAS WITH

The owners of this well-maintained family home in Mariner Highlands are being transferred East & reluctantly have had to put this on the market. They tell us they'll miss the life style it gives them: nestled into the hill, a block (by path) to Granada School, the tree-lined street with underground utilities, formal living room & paneled family living are (where the fireplace is), 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, built-ins in the kid's room - a relaxed easy sort of life. It's been good for them. If this style seems like it might fit you, be sure to see it. $48,950 (and worth it).

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Indigestion, Abdominal Pain Not Necessarily Sign Of Ulcer

A.T. writes: "My husband has been troubled with indigestion and upper abdominal pain for several months, and our family physician has not been able to pinpoint the cause even though he suspects a peptic ulcer. Barium X-rays on two occasions failed to show an ulcer. John's gallbladder is normal. Eighteen months have gone by, and he feels better, but I know that he panics whenever his stomach acts up. Should he be re-X-rayed or is it best to let well enough alone?"

This question should be answered by the physician who known your husband's medical, physical, and emotional status. In my opinion, additional X-rays are not needed because he has improved during the last 18 months.

DYSPEPSIA IS a common symptom that often follows dietary indiscretion or emotional upheavals. On the other hand, if his original symptoms return and persist, another series of X-rays are in order.

There are many reports in medical journals on the high incidence of peptic ulcer in followup studies. Forty per cent of a group of 174 hospitalized persons who were followed for 27 years finally developed a peptic ulcer, as demonstrated by followup X-rays. In another followup study of 102 patients over a six-year period, 12 had developed peptic ulcer. It is well to remember that these people were sick enough to be hospitalized.

A MORE recent study involved 102 persons with dyspepsia who, in 1964, had normal findings on barium stomach X-ray examination. When interviewed in 1970, 85 of them (83 per cent) were improved. Only three of them had developed peptic ulcer during the six-year period. These individuals had abdominal distress for three years before the first barium X-ray study. The Welsh investigators concluded that the outlook on "X-ray-negative dyspepsia" was good when the victims were not sick enough to require hospitalization.

Since 1964, 65 of these 85 individuals have shown definite improvement. Fifteen have not improved, and five have gotten worse. Of the latter, one had gallstones, another had an hiatus hernia, but the other three still had no evidence of peptic ulcer.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

END OF LINES FORECAST — Small cities, which are serviced by propeller driven aircraft such as these, face loss of service early in the new year due to the energy crisis. So far passengers have only experienced less frequent service and fewer empty seats.

Flight Pinches After Holidays

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — For many U.S. airlines passengers, the real pinch in the jet fuel cutback may not set in until Jan. 7, well after the holidays.

On that date some from small cities served by a single airline just might wake up to find that their air service has disappeared altogether.

(Under the new fuel allocation program announced yesterday, big domestic air carriers would be allotted 95 per cent of their 1972 use until Jan. 7 and 85 per cent after that. Small regional airlines would get 95 per cent until Jan. 7 and 90 per cent afterwards and international carriers would receive 100 per cent until Jan. 7 and 85 per cent after.)

Some 1,000 flights a day have been cut already as part of the mandatory 25 per cent cutback in jet fuel use, which must be fully implemented by Jan. 7.

So far, for most passengers, the slice has meant only slightly less frequent service and fewer empty seats aboard their flights. However, the next few hendred flight cuts could spell a crucial difference in service for some passengers.

It could, for instance, prompt a 30 to 100 per cent service reduction in 185 of the 408 cities served by regional carriers such as Ozark and Frontier, according to the Association of Local Transport Airlines.

Such less-than-rosy predictions also have been voiced lately by the chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB). Stressing that the nation's airlines are being asked effectively to cut one-fourth of their service in a 90-day span, Robert D. Timm has asserted in recent speeches that the "thrill is real" and that some markets probably will have to be suspended.

Just how much advance warning anyone will have or how much opportunity there will be to influence important cutback decisions are questions that concern many communities and individual travelers.

CAB has had in hand since Dec. 1 a report from each of the 19 major airlines on their precise plans to meet the fuel cutback requirement.

Those who may be affected are eager to see the plans.

The CAB has no intention of releasing them at the moment. In requesting the information by telegram last November, the agency pledged confidentiality, a promise some contend it had no right to make. Another reason why the plans must be kept inhouse, according to the regulatory agency, is that they are still tentative and could be altered.

Ralph Nader's Aviation Consumer Action Project (ACAP) requested that the reports be made public and may well take the issue to court.

Heath Orders British Industry On A Three-Day Working Week

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath said today the government was putting British industry on a three-day work week in a bid to save dwindling fuel stocks in Britain's gravest economic crisis since the depression of the 1930s.

He spoke after Britain announced its worst two-month trade deficit in history and as British newspapers were speaking of a "national disaster" because of an oil and energy crisis.

Heath told Parliament that industry will be allowed to use electric power for a total of only five days between Dec. 17 and Dec. 31—the traditional Christmas holiday period.

After that, he said, industrial and commercial plants will be limited to three days of electric power each week.

Heath said plants which use electricity for continuous processes will be restricted to 65 per cent of their normal electric consumption.

He announced that Britain's two national television networks will close down nightly at 10:30 p.m. to save electricity instead of the usual 12:30 a.m. closedown.

He appealed to Britons to use electricity for space heating in only one room in each home.

"Unless we can save electricity and all fuels in every aspect of our daily lives," Heath said, "we shall have to impose yet further restrictions on business."

"I must warn that if we fail to achieve the necessary savings in electricity consumption, frequent periods of electricity disconnection will become unavoidable," he said.

Heath said there will be no gasoline rationing before Jan. 1 but it can be introduced "at short notice" if necessary.

Heath said electric power stations now are receiving only 40 per cent of their normal coal supplies as a result of a montthold overtime ban by the country's 260,000 coal miners in support of a pay boost claim.

Heath said Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber will announce new belt-tightening measures Monday to deal with the crisis.

It stemmed from the overtime ban by coal miners coupled with a slowdown by railroad locomotive drivers coming on top of the Arab oil embargo against Western countries.

Earlier, the government announced Britain's worst two-month foreign trade deficit in history.

Economists generally agree Britain's worst economic crisis occurred during the great depression of the 1930s when unemployment soared to 3 million workers. By comparison, Lord Kearton, a top industrialist, said today he could foresee the country's current level of almost 500,000 unemployed jumping to four to five million in the current crisis.

Astronauts View Comet Kohoutek

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab 3 astronauts saw Comet Kohoutek for the first time without magnification today and said the comet appeared clearer and brighter as it neared the sun.

"Kohoutek has really got a significant tail now," pilot William R. Pogue reported. "I can see it with the naked eye. It's significantly brighter and longer and more distinct than it was yesterday morning. I was able to keep it in view even as the sun came up."

Pogue said the tail of the comet extended about two to three degrees across the night horizon, the equivalent of five or six million miles.

Although not expected to be as bright as first predicted, the comet is still being touted as the "comet of the century" and might be brighter than Halley's famous comet.

In better spirits than they have been many mornings, the spacemen played a loud piece of rock music, "Eli's Coming," by the Three Dog Night, for ground controllers shortly after the crew was awakened for the day. Previously only the controllers have used music to greet the astronauts in the morning.

One thing that might have helped the pilots' spirits was a second chance they'll get to take pictures of certain targets on the earth.

Like the proverbial tourist who blows his once-in-a-lifetime chance by putting his thumb over the lens, Pogue forgot to put a filter in an earth photo camera and may have overexposed a number of pictures.

Mission control told Pogue, Gerald P. Carr and Edward G. Gibson yesterday they will be able to take more pictures of everything that might have been photographed on the camera without the filter.

"We can pick all of those up with no problem," ground communicator Robert Crippen told the crew. "As it turns out, it doesn't look like it's going to be that big an impact afterall."

"That's very nice to hear," Pogue said. "I'm really sorry about that. It takes a terrific load off my mind."

The astronauts fired up their engines in the Apollo ferry ship for 16 seconds yesterday to shift the giant station's orbit nine miles west. Skylab flies 300 miles a minute around the Earth and, because it has to maneuver for better camera angles to take pictures of the Earth and Comet Kahoutek, it drifts slightly off its course. yesterday's firing was one of many scheduled during the crew's 84-day flight.

The attitude control firings were expected but used about 50 per cent more stabilization gas than desired.

The pilots also learned about the short, unhappy cruise of the Queen Elizabeth 2 which spent three nights in the Atlantic hoping those on board, including the man who discovered the comet and for whom it was named, could see Kohoutek.

Clouds obscured the comet during the first and third nights and on the second night it rained. The comet's discoverer, meanwhile, rarely ventured out of his cabin because of seasickness.

Tam Of Hayakawa Buried In Capsule

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A capsule has been buried in the foundation of a new student union building at San Francisco State University and contains various items noting the current campus life in recent years.

TV MOVIES ARE BACK

Thanks to advances in computer science in the Independent-Journal composing room, television movies once again are listed in the I-J's daily television log as well as in the Weekly TV Watch section each Saturday.

New computer programming has made it possible to integrate the movies into the daily log in readable type without wasted space.

Nissen Said Top Choice As Planner

Donn E. Nissen, president of the Terra Linda Homeowners Association, is the frontrunner among eight candidates for appointment to the San Rafael Planning Commission, the Independent-Journal learned yesterday.

Nissen, chairman of Councilman Jack G. Nixon's council campaign last April, emerged as leading contender for the post during a closed session Monday.

City councilmen yesterday confirmed Nissen appeared to have the backing of a majority of the council, but said no decision on the matter has yet been made.

The council will fill the seat vacated by the firing of Jorgen V. Lunding in open session at 8 p.m. Monday in city hall.

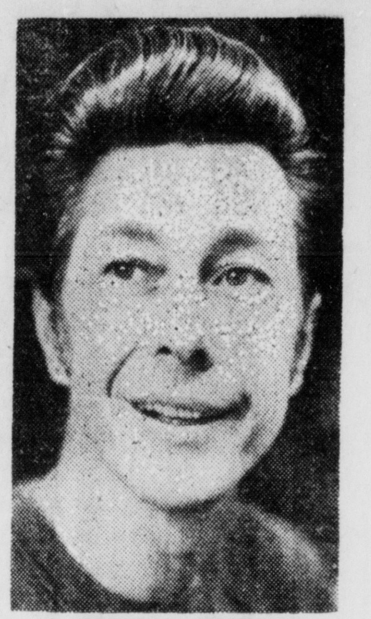
Other candidates mentioned as possible appointments are James D. Mahoney, president of Mahoney Steel; Richard C. Fox, a senior research chemist for Standard Oil and an unsuccessful council candidate, and Richard P. Rodrigues, chairman of the city's citizen's advisory committee on the general plan.

Nissen lives at 607 Tamarack Drive.

Hopeful Seeks Business Help

By FRANK FARRARA

(First of eight articles on candidates for appointments to the Novato Planning Commission).



C. SHANNON MURPHY
Seeks commission seat

C. Shannon Murphy, a 47-year-old Novato businessman seeking appointment to the Novato Planning Commission, believes recent planning decisions have "stultified the business community."

Murphy, proprietor of the Novato Art Center, 808 Grant Avenue, said "city officials have not allowed a lot of things to take place that should have taken place."

For example, he said, the owner of the building where his shop is located wanted to improve its looks and "was arbitrarily told he couldn't."

Murphy, who also travels as a salesman, said businessmen are now reluctant to locate in Novato "because it's too much trouble."

In the controversy about permitting a Taco Bell restaurant in Novato Square, "they've done everything possible to not let this guy (Ben R. Ostlind) build," Murphy said. "I'm glad I'm not building anything. I wouldn't like to go through that hassle."

Murphy said he isn't sure where the problem lies,"'in the planning commission, city council or city manager, but they're sort of limiting what happens in town. I figured I might was well get into this and find out."

Murphy said he isn't bothered that commissioners are making decisions, but "all I've heard so far is what you can't do. Consequently no one is going to do anything."

He said the city's policy of limiting growth to 500 dwelling units a year is unconstitutional and "also stupid and I don't think you can dictate what should be allowed as long as its reasonably well planned. I'm a believer in laissez faire."

Murphy said Novato is losing "most of its business out of town" and he would "like to see a program that would unite the business community so that the residents of Novato felt that their needs could be filled within the city limits."

Some want Sears and Macy's in the city, "but if you can't get them, you have to deal with people interested in coming to town," Murphy said. "Business in this town, I think, is in bad shape."

Murphy, a resident of Novato for seven years, his wife, Barbara, and three children, live at 19 Carisa Court. He has been promoter of the Oldtown Festival and a member of Big Brothers and a Presbyterian Church elder.

New Year's Offer For The Drinker

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Memorial Park has a New Year's Eve offering for drinkers.

The cemetery is offering a free grave and marker valued at $500 to any motorist killed as a result of his drunken driving. Last year, the cemetery registered more than 100 persons. None was killed.

Cards Mailed For Impeachment Poll

Double post cards asking how many voters in each household are for or against the impeachment of President Nixon have been mailed to all postal patrons in the Inverness zip-code area, Thomas C. Chase, Inverness Association director, announced yesterday.

Chase said the association board which recently voted to conduct the impeachment poll, had sent out 513 cards and will forward the results to national legislators.

Each card has a postage-paid return for householders to fill out. Deadline for the return is Dec. 31, according to a message on the card which also states, "impeachment does not mean conviction or dismissal, but the bringing of formal charges by the House of Representatives for a hearing before the Senate."

Pot Charge Conditions

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — A judge told James Riggs, 20, son of tennis hustler Bobby Riggs, yesterday he would dismiss a marijuana possession charge against the youth if he demonstrates good conduct during the next 12 months.

Nassau County Court Judge Anthony Barbiero told young Riggs, of Manhasset, N.Y., that the charge of possessing a marijuana cigarette, plus three traffic charges, will be dismissed pending good behavior. The younger Riggs' cousin, Robert Crimi, 24, of Upper Brookville, N.Y., who was also accused of marijuana possession, was given similar treatment.

The pair was arrested on Dec. 4 by a Nassau County, N.Y., detective who said he saw them passing the cigarette back and forth while seated in a parked car in Manhasset.

An Hour Later Opening Studied

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — If national Daylight Saving Time goes into effect, Metro schools will open one hour later for "safety reasons."

"Many of our students who have to be at school at 7 a.m. are already leaving home in the dark to catch the bus or to walk a mile to school," Director of Schools Dr. Elbert Brooks said yesterday.

Legislation for year-round Daylight Saving Time is expected to pass both houses of Congress this week and go into effect by Jan. 6.

Rules For Use Of School Given

The Reed School District board has set standards for groups which wish to use the now-empty Tiburon School and insisted that noncommercial, nonprofit, community-oriented organizations have first crack at it.

Board members told Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello Tuesday night that interested groups should apply to him or the district business manager. They set rental for the building at $2 per hour per room.

Giovanniello said he already has applications from three groups — the Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission, which hopes to hold adult education classes in the school; the Marin Senior Citizens Coordinating Council, which would meet there twice a month, and a women's group dealing with the environment.

Greece Will Free Rioting Students

ATHENS (UPI) — The Greek government announced today it will release all 300 persons, most of them students, arrested during last month's bloody demonstrations against the Greek government.

Education minister Panayotis Christou said today he considered students who took part in the demonstrations against President George Papadopoulos were "misled."

Scholarship Contest Is Announced

An opportunity for a free college scholarship is available to two youngsters in Marin and Southern Sonoma, according to M. N. Illich and R. C. Williamson of Hobby Tree in the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

Two $5,000 scholarships will be given away by Revell, Inc., world's largest manufacturer of plastic model kits, in its annual contest. This year the contest is known as FutureStakes or the "Win A $5,000 Scholarship Contest", since the grand prize can mean a brighter tomorrow to two lucky young people.

"All you have to do to enter is write an essay in 200 words (or less) on 'What A College Education Means To Me.' Send it, along with a Revell kit end panel and an official entry blank, to Revell. Official entry blanks are now available at our store," said Illich.

Williamson said essays will be judged by a panel of four nationally known educators. Judging criteria includes originality, aptness of thought, neatness, directness of purpose, apparent truthfulness, and general impression of ideas. Entries will also be judged with consideration to age.

Besides the two scholarships, other top prizes in the contest include a Muskin Dune Cat, the mini-dune buggy with maxi appeal; 10 Muskin Mini-Bikes, custom styled movers; and 12 Magnavox Odyssey TV games.

In addition 1,000 Revell assortments will be given away.

The contest is now open and will run through May 31, 1974.

Contest Blanks are available at the Hobby Tree.

Professor's Beard Plan Backfires

TUCSON (AP) — University of Arizona President John P. Schaefer's attempt to bridge the generation gap among his students, by growing a beard, has backfired.

Schaefer said he was walking across campus, when he passed a bearded student, who remarked: "It's guys like you who give beards a bad name."

CORTE MADERA STORE ONLY

MUCH TO CHOOSE FROM — Shoppers at the Hobby Tree in Corte Madera Center are baffled by the over 22,000 items to select from. Gifts, Arts and craft items, trains, planes and hobbies from every corner of the world keep shoppers from all over California busy.

The Hobby Tree An Unusual Shop

People plant trees so they grow and serve a purpose. Marin County had grown and grown with a lot of creative people, and there was a big void — mainly that of a complete, one-stop hobby, arts and craft and model shop to supply most of the needs of today's families and modern hobbyists; something for creative people of all ages.

That void led to the planting of the Hobby Tree, the largest store of its kind in the Pacific Northwest, carrying not only beginners kits, but the bits and pieces that make hobbying fun for the advanced and or more creative hobbyist. In addition the store carries puppets and marionettes and supplies, magic, hand-spun yarns and a selected grouping of gifts, games and stuffed toys.

The idea of a store such as the Hobby Tree was born in July, 1972. The founders started talking about the concept to friends and fellow hobbyists, asking what they would like to see in such a store.

Then they wrote to over 700 manufacturers, manufacturing representatives importers and wholesalers — and we interviewed them and then went to visit as many of them as possible — to become thoroughly familiar with what they had to offer in the way of service and supplies.

The result was a store of 4,000 square feet, providing shoppers with the best quality merchandise at reasonable prices and one-stop hobby service.

With several hundred suppliers to choose from, the owners selected four major ones and are currently dealing with 52 minor ones. Six months from the date of the idea, with the assistance of neighbors and suppliers the Hobby Tree opened with some 8,000 items, the day after Thanksgiving, 1972.

In the past year a lot more has been learned about arts and crafts by listening to customers and sharing ideas and experiences with them as well as suppliers and by experimenting with the merchandise as it came in.

As of the last inventory, the store carries well over 22,000 separate items.

That is quite a bit, (the purchasing catalog is over eight feet long) and yet the store carries only about one-third of what is totally available.

Though the owners don't have all the answers, the average in being able to answer craft questions runs over 91 per cent.

The staff is made up of people who the owners felt were specialists in two or more areas, and who were willing to learn about other areas and not remain stuck in their own world.

Customers say they "haven't seen a shop like this before." "It's fantastic," "fabulous," "far out."

Most of customers and friends say they now visit the Hobby Tree first as they have learned that if the store doesn't carry it or know of a referral source, they probably won't be able to find it.

Wards Helping To Save Energy

Montgomery Ward, the first national retailer to take action in the growing energy crisis, has followed up its consumer education and company-wide power cutting efforts with an internal program that will produce a 10 per cent kilowatt savings!

"We set out last spring to do what we could to make a meaningful contribution to an anticipated crisis," explained J. C. Engelman, Ward's store manager. "We discovered that there also was an economic benefit to both our consumers and our stores that was worthy of attention."

He explained that the conservation of kilowatt units in Ward's 2,200 retail and catalog facilities also produced significant dollar savings.

"We realized that with a stronger effort we could save additional power and at the same time offset some of our soaring operating expenses," added Engelman. "If we can do it in our stores, all of us can realize the same benefits through a little effort at home."

Wards has set the 10 per cent power reduction as the goal for all of its facilities. "We're confident we will achieve the goal and many have already enacted the steps that will assure more than 10 per cent savings," Engelman said.

In addition to the following company-wide measures, all stores have initiated other specific power-saving steps:

Ward President Edward S. Donnell on May 8 announced Ward's "Save Energy-Save Money" campaign and the availability of brochures that would help consumers reduce energy consumption.

All Ward stores and buildings have reduced internal and external lighting. No exterior lighted decorations will be used during the holidays.

Speed has been reduced on all company trucks and other vehicles.

Heating temperatures have been reset to 68 degrees and air conditioning to 76 degrees.

Employees are being encouraged to form car pools or use public transportation.

Store lights and escalators are not turned on until 20 minutes before store opening. They are being turned off immediately following store closing.

Many Ward stores have reported significant kilowatt savings during the past six months through extra efforts to respond to the growing energy crisis.

Locally, Wards has followed through on the company-wide program to conserve energy.

TREES

Egyptians used date palms to celebrate the winter solstice, or the shortest day of the year. From this day until summer, daylight increases daily.

To these ancients, the tree was a symbol of "life over death" — just as the sun is "reborn" in winter and begins to provide more light each day.

By 354 A.D., after Christianity became an accepted religion, church leaders had established Dec. 25 as a day for exchanging gifts, expressing goodwill, for merrymaking and feasting. Part of this feast included raising an evergreen bough to celebrate — as the Egyptians had — the return of the sun.

Through the ages, people all over the world have revered the evergreen tree. Norsemen, Celts and Saxons used these trees to ward off witches, evil spirits and ghosts.

Although this country is considered by many to be the originator of the Christmas tree custom, the "true Christmas tree" has been traced back to the 16th century in Germany.

Since its earliest appearance it has always been decorated — at first with fruit, paper, cloth, sugar and wafers, later with cookies, stars, bells, angels, hearts, candles, ribbons, polished nuts, animal likenesses and beads. Popcorn, thought to be used at first to simulate snow, was a popular decoration in the 1800s. Toys, dolls and gifts were eventually added.

In this country, trees were first trimmed in the "German fashion." Bacon and hams were added — or if the tree could not support the weight of these real items, pictures of the foods were attached to the branches.

Today most of the food and candles have given way to electric lights, gaily-colored balls, artificial snow, tinsel, birds, miniature sleds and reindeer.

KING OF THE CATS

This large tortoise shell feline, shown trying to ignore the tempting creature next to him, may be the biggest cat the Marin County Humane Society has ever come across. "I've been here 10 years and I've never seen a cat as huge as this one," said Madelon Tormanen of the society. The gentle, friendly animal weighs about 25 pounds, while the average cat weighs between eight and 10, according to society officials. He was found this week wandering around near Hamilton Air Force Base. Society employees believe he may have strayed from his home and are hoping to find either his owner or a new home for him.

Fund Crunch Hits Mental Health Units

Bureaucratic Bumbling Blamed For The Foulup

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A new financial crisis has hit Marin County's two major mental health facilities, one of which has responded by laying off 20 employees and closing its doors to indigent psychiatric patients.

Cause of the crisis at Ross and Marin General hospitals can be traced primarily to a bureaucratic foulup at civic center, not unlike that which rocked the mental health department last May.

In Ross General's case, it boils down to the hospital unknowingly having spent nearly all its $350,000 annual allocation of state psychiatric Medi-Cal funds during the first five months of this fiscal year.

Marin General officials, meanwhile, said they do not know how much of their $350,000 allocation of state funds has been spent but said the situation is not as bleak as at Ross.

L. C. Johnson, Ross Hospital administrator, said yesterday that besides the 20 employees who have been released another 10 are working reduced hours in the 54-bed psychiatric ward.

He said no new Medi-Cal patients will be admitted to the ward until the funding situation is resolved with the county. The seven state-supported patients there now will not be forced out, he said.

According to Johnson, his facility and others offering inpatient mental health care were told in June by county health officials their allocation of state funds this fiscal year would equal the amount spent last year.

While no contract was signed between his hospital and the county, Johnson said, Ross proceeded "on good faith" to accept indigent patients, submitting bills each month to the county.

This continued until November, he said, when the county finally submitted a contract showing an annual allocation of $350,000 — only half that originally promised.

Additionally, the contract said payments would be made on a monthly basis from the total, or about $29,000 per month.

Through November, based on the original assumption that $650,000 would be allocated, Ross used about $300,000 — only $50,000 short of its actual allocation.

"We proceeded on good faith and the county has pulled the

Advisers Favor Mix Of Housing

By NELS JOHNSON

Many members of San Rafael's citizens advisory committee on the general plan support a controversial proposal for balanced housing mixes in city neighborhoods, despite rejection of the proposal by city staff.

The discrepancy in viewpoint between the staff and the committee on the key proposal contained in an initial draft of the general plan came to light today as city planners released results of a recent vote taken by the committee on varying aspects of the emerging plan.

The balloting shows that 16 committee members support a "policy of improvement of the heterogeneous mix of housing" throughout city neighborhoods, while six disagree. Five members abstained on the issue.

About half of the 60-member committee was present for balloting Saturday in city hall, according to senior planner Stanley Ott.

In addition, 24 committee members said they support a "policy of undertaking positive programs to maintain and improve the existing community mix of low and moderate income housing" in the city, the poll shows.

The city administration on Tuesday released a staff analysis of the plan that blasts the proposal for balanced socio-economic housing mixes in city neighborhoods, since a potpourri of housing types and densities in each area is "undesirable".

The staff said flatly that changes in housing densities from single to multiple, as recommended by the emerging plan, "should not take place for sociological purposes in resi-

Larkspur Ferry Terminal Cost Over $10 Million

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The cost of the Larkspur ferry terminal has climbed to almost $10.4 million, new estimates by Golden Gate Bridge consultants showed yesterday. (Another bridge district story, page 7.)

Anthony A. Braccia of San Francisco, head of the team of design and engineering consultants, reluctantly conceded $882,500 could be cut from the cost estimate if the roof of the terminal were eliminated. He insisted, however, that cuts in plans for the terminal "would be unsatisfactory solutions."

(Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring later told the Independent-Journal that covered walkways and the close proximity of bus service to the ferries could provide adequate shelter until something like a restaurant were built above the terminal platform to protect waiting passengers from the weather.)

Braccia told the bridge district's building and operating

By PAT ANGLE

Negotiations in the 10-day-old butchers strike and lockout broke off yesterday without a settlement between the union and most major chains.

But Cala Foods, threatened with more picketing, last night signed an agreement with the butchers' union and reopened meat departments at all its stores, including six in Marin.

A spokesman for Cala said the chain settled with the butchers by promising to abide by the terms of the labor contract which ultimately results from negotiations.

The agreement came after a truce between 50 Bay Area stores and the union broke down yesterday and the union promised that pickets would return to the markets.

The union had removed its pickets from the stores yesterday so members of other unions could return to work. Some stores, including Cala, which had been closed in the labor dispute, reopened yesterday as a result of the truce.

But the plan called for keeping meat departments closed and the union called off the agreement because the stores involved had started selling turkeys and other products usually in the butchers' jurisdiction.

Faced with the prospect of losing all its union employees once again and being forced to close its stores, Cala signed with the butchers, a spokesman said.

The butchers struck Safeway Stores and Lucky Stores last Monday in a dispute over automated meat handling and wages. Ten other grocery chains retaliated with a lockout of butchers union members.

Butchers' union leaders were in Washington, D.C. today to attend talks aimed at settling a strike by four unions against the food industry in Southern California. There was no indication when negotiations would resume in the Northern California labor dispute.

French Will Again Bid For Demo Slot

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A 27-year-old San Francisco carpenter, Alan D. French, announced today he will run again for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District.

French sought the nomination last year, but lost 3-to-1 to Roger Boas, who then lost to the incumbent, Republican William S. Mailliard.

French is the third Democrat to announce his candidacy, joining Alan F. Reeves of San Francisco and Lloyd F. Harolds of Novato in the race for the nomination next June. Mailliard is expected to announce soon whether he will seek reelection despite redistricting that gave him far more voters who ballot consistently for Democrats.

French's candidacy was announced in letters to Democrats in the district, which includes northern San Francisco, all of Marin and a sliver of Southern Sonoma.

Noting that he had been able to spend only $3,000 for his last race, French said he has saved $4,000 this time for the campaign.

If elected, he said, he will "work harder to write the kinds of laws the Congress should be writing for our country."

A 1969 graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, where he majored in history, French served in the Army before running for Congress last year.

He has described himself as "economically fairly conservative, though I am a strong civil libertarian and a vigorous defender of labor."

White House Tape Hum Not Typewriter's Fault

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Electronics experts reported today they believe the lamp and typewriter in the office of President Nixon's secretary could not have caused the hum on a tape recording of a Nixon conversation with H. R. Haldeman.

The experts said there were "some indications" Rose Mary Woods could have erased some of the conversation by pushing a wrong button on a tape recorder or that her tape recorder could have cause the hum on its own.

They also indicated they did not think it would be possible to restore the missing conversation, which took place three days after the Watergate break-in.

The experts gave a preliminary report to Judge John J. Sirica on their examination of the tape of a June 20, 1972, meeting, which now has an 18 ¼ minute hum in place of a conversation.

The experts said they concluded that electrical equipment in the office of Miss Woods, Nixon's personal secretary, would not have caused the hum.

Sirica was handed a preliminary report based on tests by six technicians of the tape. They said they would need more time—until the first of the year—to complete their tests.

Sirica had hoped that the experts could determine whether the conversation could somehow be restored, whether Miss Woods accidentally caused any or all of the gap either because of the close proximity of electrical equipment or by improper use of the recorder on which she was playing it, or whether the gap could have been a result of deliberate tampering.

The technicians said the entire conversation —which Haldeman said pertained to Watergate —"is probably not retrievable."

The report made public by Sirica, dealt chiefly with whether the high intensity lamp or electric typewriter could have caused the hum. They said neither was "the likely cause."

They said they needed more

Truckers Who Roll Are Shotgun Targets

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Shotgun blasts today riddled a number of trucks in Ohio whose drivers chose to ignore a call for a nationwide trucking shutdown. The drivers escaped injury.

At least seven trucks came under fire as they rolled along Ohio highways.

Bottles and rocks were thrown at more than a dozen other truckers who continued to operate rigs in Ohio and Pennsylvania during the first few hours of the scheduled work stoppage. Several windshields were smashed, and at least one person suffered minor injuries, police said.

Some truckers told police they were forced off the road by men in cars. Others said they were flagged off the road.

The two-day "park-in" by dissident independent truckers was called too protest high diesel fuel prices and low speed limits—the same complaints that caused many truck drivers to block highways in at least a dozen states last week.

"Seven trucks were fired upon on Interstate 76 in Mahoning and Trumbull County," said a highway patrol spokesman in Canfield, Ohio, near Youngstown. "All seven were hit, but there were no injuries. The shots were fired into the rig."

The movement to stay off the roads was reported gaining momentum among truckers in Illinois, Maryland, Nebraska and parts of California, as well as in Ohio and Pennsylvania. But in Michigan, some truckers tried to block highways west of Detroit early today.

In Reno, Nev., truckers blocked all four lanes of Interstate 80, the main road through the central Sierra Nevada today for 2½ hours.

A state patrol spokeswoman said there was no incident and that shortly after 6 a.m. the truckers obeyed an ultimatum from patrolmen and started to move.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Argentina Cancels Vesco Visa

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government yesterday canceled a residence visa issued to fugitive financier Robert Vesco three months ago and said the chief of Argentina's immigration service — the man who issued it — was fired.

Vesco

Vesco and his business associate, Ulrich J. Strickler, were issued permanent immigrant visas Sept. 6 along with a guarantee they would be immune from extradition from Argentina.

The government announced yesterday following an investigation that Edmundo Gnavi, head of the National Immigration Office, was responsible for issuing the visas and was fired.

In effect, the announcement reversed an earlier denial by the government that visas and guarantees had been offered to the two men.

An Argentine federal judge, who has since retired, ruled in a closed court session Oct. 22 that since pending U.S. charges against Vesco had "political overtones," he could not be deported from Argentina.

New Cuban Policy Is Urged

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says now that the United States has taken a somewhat friendly stance toward Russia and China it would be a good idea to improve relations with the Communist regime in Cuba.

Bentsen

In a speech before the Philadelphia World Affairs Council last night, the freshman senator said Latin America has been left out of the new phase of American policy.

"Improving relations with Cuba would be symbolic of a new political maturity in the United States . . . of a new willingness to respect differences among peoples, and of a new realization that Latin America is seeking to fulfill its own destiny in its own way," Bentsen said.

He said the experience with China has taught the United States that "we cannot afford to close our eyes and our minds to the existence of any nation simply because we do not fully support its policies . . ."

Arab Boycott

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Thomas W. (Teddy) Gleason, president of the International Longshoreman's Association, said yesterday members of his union will refuse to load cargo on ships bound for Arab countries during the oil boycott.

In a speech to the Buffalo Community Friends of Israel, Gleason claimed that representatives of Arab countries are in the United States buying up food, oil and well drilling equipment in order to continue their boycott.

"We're prepared," said Gleason, whose union has 118,000 members. "Any ship that comes for the cargo we're going to stop. We're going to stop the cargo, not the ships."

Bombing Charge

SAIGON (UPI) — The Communists accused the South Vietnamese government today of bombing residential areas of the Viet Cong's capital of Loc Ninh in a pair of afternoon air strikes.

In Cambodia, field reports said the Phnom Penh government sent fresh troops today into the battle for the strategic "rice road" linking the capital and the paddy fields of Battambang Province.

The Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government said two government warplanes roared over Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, yesterday and dropped "dozens of bombs on populous areas" of the town.

Layoffs Slated

DETROIT (UPI) — The Chrysler Corp. yesterday said 2,100 workers at two large assembly plants will be laid off beginning in early January, in part because of the energy shortage.

A spokesman said workers at the Jefferson Avenue assembly plant in Detroit and the Belvidere, Ill., assembly plant will be out of work because of the lessening demand for big cars, which appears to be pushing the nation's automakers into a slow transition period before they can begin turning out more smaller cars.

Chrysler also announced that extended furloughs would be given to 10,400 more workers at the two plants so as to "balance inventories."

TAX COMMITTEE — Cochairmen Sen. Russell Long (left),D-La., and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., conferred briefly as they ended a session of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation at which it was decided yesterday to examine every aspect of President Nixon's federal income taxes from 1969 through 1972.

Mills Thinks Nixon Not Wise In Claiming Papers Deduction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House-Senate committee which will examine President Nixon's tax returns, says he thinks Nixon was unwise to deduct $576,000 for the gift of his vice presidential papers to the nation.

"I think that any public official who files a tax return has to be holier than thou," Mills said.

"Very frankly, had I been the President's attorney I would have advised him not to take the deduction."

Mills talked to reporters after the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation — composed of the senior five members of the Senate Finance Committee and the senior five members of Mills' Ways and Means Committee—decided to go beyond Nixon's request and conduct an unlimited inquiry into Nixon's federal tax payments of 1969-72. The President had asked in a Dec. 8 letter for a ruling only on two tax procedures which saved him about $300,000.

Mills said the joint committee would not investigate whether Nixon should have paid California state income taxes. That is up to state officials to investigate, he said.

A White House spokesman expressed no dismay over the committee decision to expand its investigation.

Nixon had asked the committee to examine the legality of the deduction for his papers in light of allegations the gift was made in an illegal manner or was made after the July 25, 1969 cutoff. Nixon also asked for a judgment on the savings he realized by not paying capital gains taxes on the profits from the sale of some of his San Clemente property.

In both instances, Nixon said he would abide by the committee judgments and pay back taxes, if he owes them. They could amount to $300,000, including interest at 6 per cent.

Parties Planned At White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon has announced a series of Yule parties and said the White House will be closed to visitors for decorating until Friday.

She said the decorating of the White House and the trimming of the 18-foot Fraser fir Christmas tree in the Blue Room will be done under the supervision of J.C. Pennock of Philadelphia, who also handled the wedding of the Nixons' daughter, Tricia Cox.

The Nixons plan to spend Christmas Day in the White House.

Mrs. Nixon said she will be hostess at the diplomatic children's Christmas party, Monday; reception for White House residents and staff, Duesday; wives' tea, Dec. 20, and White House staff party, Dec. 26.

But Bork said yesterday he would leave the study, which he described as an analysis of FBI policies and programs, to his probable successor, Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio.

One phase of the review concerns what the FBI actually did during a three year counterintelligence program which the late Director J. Edgar Hoover set up to combat alleged violent activities of new left organizations.

The FBI last Dec. 6 made public a memo by Hoover setting up the program in 1968 and calling it off without explanation, in another 1971 memo. Nothing that occurred during the program's operation has been made public.

The FBI made the Hoover memos public after Bork decided not to appeal a U.S. District Court decision in a suit filed by NBC newsman Carl Stern under the 1966 Freedom of Information Act for access to the FBI memorandums.

Egypt Skeptical Of Peace Chance

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Egypt's state-controlled press criticized American Middle East policy today and warned of the dangers of a new war only hours before the arrival of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to discuss arrangements for the Dec. 18 Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

Kissinger, under unusually heavy security guard because of reported threats against his life during his tour of eight Middle East countries, flew from London to Algiers today and conferred with Algerian President Houari Boumedienne. He flew on to Cairo after a four-hour visit.

Kissinger flies on to Saudi Arabia Saturday and then Syria —the first U.S. Secretary of State to do so since 1967 —and on to Jordan and Israel. He will go to Geneva Dec. 18 to lead the U.S. delegation at the opening sessions of the conference sponsored by the United States and the Soviet Union.

Eight non-aligned members of the U.N. Security Council demanded yesterday that Secretary General Kurt Waldheim preside over the conference, but an official U.N. spokesman said he had no plans to go. Israel opposes any U.N. sponsorship on grounds the conference would be heavily loaded against Israel.

UPI correspondent Ray Wilkinson in Cairo said the tone of the Egyptian newspaper articles reflected the government's skepticism that Kissinger will achieve anything constructive. They came as confusion remained whether Israel would actually attend the Geneva meeting and as Syria expressed doubt about and demanded clarification of U.S. intentions in the Mideast.

A U.N. spokesman in Cairo said violations along the cease-fire lines continued at a near record level but that the truce was still holding. Israel reported the battlefield death of another of its soldiers in a skirmish with Egyptian troops near Ismailia.

The Israeli cabinet scheduled a special session Friday with Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and Foreign Minister Abba Eban reported split on whether to attend the Geneva conference. Dayan has said Israel will not go unless Syria releases the names of 102 Israeli POWS. Eban is more conciliatory.

The Jerusalem Post, quoting informed sources, said the government will wait until the last moment, possibly Monday night, to decide what its peace delegation will do if the Syrians attend the talks without having met the Israeli precondition.

"One possibility is that if the Syrians enter the conference chamber the Israeli delegation will leave," the Post said.

Cairo's semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Kissinger's first personal venture into Middle East diplomacy last month has "not been fulfilled in a perfectly satisfactory manner. Israel was the one who benefited from the way the sixpoint agreement was applied."

The continuing deadlock over troop disengagement has resulted "in clashes all along the frontline, which could well lead to another war," Al Ahram said.

Saxbe Says He'll Never Fire Special Prosecutor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William B. Saxbe says he will force President Nixon to fire him as attorney general rather than resign if any attempt is made to remove Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski from office.

With Jaworski by his side, Saxbe told the Senate Judiciary Committee that he will fight for the special prosecutor's "right to proceed as he sees fit" in the Watergate investigation and will "resist" any White House pressure to curtail the ongoing probe.

Jaworski assured the committee that he has been given "complete independence" in his work, and both men pledged to pursue the investigation even if it leads directly to President Nixon.

"The chips are going to have to fall where they may, no matter who's involved," Saxbe, an Ohio Republican, declared at his confirmation hearing.

Acting Attorney General Robert Bork was scheduled to testify today in an attempt to clarify the agreement under which a "consensus" of eight congressional leaders would be needed to restrict Jaworski's jurisdiction.

Chairman James O. Eastland said he thought Saxbe's nomination could be reported to the Senate by afternoon.

Asked what he would do if the President told him to fire Jaworski, Saxbe said: "I would not attempt to fire Mr. Jaworski nor would I resign."

"Would you resign if you were asked to carry out an order you opposed to fire Jaworski?" asked Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

"So, you'd make him fire you first," Byrd said.

"Absolutely," Saxbe answered.

Peace Skipper Picks Up Boat

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — David McTaggart, skipper and owner of the Canadian protest yacht Greenpeace III, has returned to pick up his boat, seized by the French navy last Aug. 15 during French nuclear tests.

The French navy confiscated the vessel and arrested McTaggart when he sailed to the Mururoa atoll area to protest the atmospheric tests.

A spokesman for the Pacific Experiment Center said Greenpeace III was brought to Papeete by the navy after being detained at Mururoa military port.

Platforms Hurting The Wine Industry

NEW YORK (UPI) — Platform shoes are hurting the wine industry.

Edy Willm, an Alsatian vintner, said in an interview the footwear industry is using so much cork for the towering shoe soles that there's not enough of good quality to cork wine bottles.

More Help Is Sought In Bicyclist's Death

San Anselmo Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani would like more "Secret Witness" help toward solving the hit-run traffic death of Harmen Evers on Nov. 23.

Since a $2,000 "Secret Witness" reward for anonymous information leading to arrest and conviction of the driver was offered by Independent-Journal publishers, a dozen tips have been sent to "Secret Witness." The information in them was passed on to San Anselmo police, and they have investigated each one.

But, said Chief Buchignani, they have been unable to gather evidence that would place any of the suspected automobiles or persons at the scene of the accident, in which Evers was knocked from his bicycle and dragged to death by the hit-run auto.

Chief Buchignani hopes that some of the "Secret Witness" writers have more information. If they have, he'd like to talk with them.

"I will meet anyone anyplace, in plain clothes and without asking for their identification," said Buchignani. "Anyone who knows anything that may solve this case may call me personally and set up an appointment anywhere he says. We want to solve this. As far as I am concerned, it is the same as a murder case."

The chief said he will accept calls either at the San Anselmo police station or at his home, at any time. He emphasized that he will respect the confidence of any caller and will not press for identification if the informant prefers to remain anonymous.

The $2,000 reward offer still stands.

SHUTDOWN TALK — Some 200 trucks were lined up this morning at the American Truck Stop on Interstate 70 in Bentleyville, Pa., where truckers were trying to talk drivers into participating in a "voluntary" park-in. Later, a number of trucks in Ohio were riddled with shotgun blasts when the drivers ignored the call for a shutdown. (UPI Telephoto) said there was no incident and that shortly after 6 a.m. the truckers obeyed an ultimatum from patrolmen and started to move.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said seven trucks were hit by shotgun blasts in the Youngstown area, two more trucks were shot at—but not hit—in southwestern Ohio, and there were at least 12 incidents of bricks and bottles thrown at trucks. Police also reported several trucks were forced off the road.

Michael Shipp, 28, of Ravenna, Ohio, suffered cuts Wednesday night when the windshield of his truck was smashed with a brick northwest of Akron on Interstate 76. He was treated and released at a Barberton, Ohio, hospital.

In Pennsylvania, state police said the windshields of three trucks traveling on the western half of the Pennsylvania Turnpike were smashed by two bricks and beer bottles dropped from overhead bridges. Police also said at least 25 truck drivers who drove during the park-in reported they were threatened by other truckers wanting them to park their rigs.

In Columbiana, Ohio, truck drivers stood in the middle of several junctions flagging down oncoming truckers and asking them to pull thir rigs over. The highway patrol said apparently no force was used and the stopped truckers were willingly cooperating.

No trucks were reported blocking roadways in Ohio, but in Michigan, angry truckers blocked traffic by parking on expressways in two locations, west and south of Detroit. In both cases police cleared the highways within an hour.

Man Exempted From Slope Law

A Larkspur property owner, who purchased land in the city before a slope ordinance was passed, can build three homes on the property even though only one is allowed under the ordinance, the city's planning commission has decided.

John E. Roberto, city planning director, said the case of Kurt Hagen's property on Cedar Avenue near Hawthrone Avenue is unique in slope and no other property owners will benefit from the commission's decision.

The ordinance, passed in September, limits the number of buildings on a piece of land in relation to its slope.

Commissioners approved Hagen's request on a 3-1 vote with Earl J. O'Grady opposing without comment and Otto Hoefler absent.

rug out from under us," Johnson said. "Until November, we were given no official notice of our allocation and no guidelines."

Others at the hospital said the county should have been aware of the spending patterns since bills were submitted each month.

(Last May, when a similar financial mess developed, county health officials told supervisors a close watch would be kept on billings in the future.)

Dr. Robert Taylor, head of county mental health services, told the county mental health advisory board last night he accepts much of the blame for the latest foulup.

According to Taylor, the county was not informed of the state allocation of Medi-Cal psychiatric funds until late August but then failed —for several reasons —to notify the hospitals until November.

The state allocation — totaling $1.2 million — equals the amount spent by mental health facilities (including the hospitals) last year but instead of apportioning it on the basis of last year's spending several new facilities were given a piece of the pie.

Why Ross and Marin General were not informed until November was not clearly explained by Taylor last night, who said department administration was complicated by its reorganization under the new health and human services superagency headed by Betty L. Presley.

Miss Presley, meanwhile, could not be reached for comment yesterday, even though all questions were referred to her by the county administrator's office and the mental health department.

Attending last night's session of the mental health advisory board were more than 50 persons who urged an inquiry into the foulup. The board responded by appointing a special committee.

Benjamin S. Westheimer, an employee of Ross General and spokesman for a group called Concerned Citizens for Mental Health in Marin County, said his investigation showed "a large number" of out-of-county residents have been treated and billed against Marin's allocation.

Unless new funds are found, he said, large numbers of emotionally disturbed persons will go uncared for and unsupervised in Marin.

Dr. Taylor said meetings are planned with state officials to request additional funds and an audit will be conducted by the state in the next week. Under similar circumstances last year, such funds were obtained.

He said he also will discuss the matter with county supervisors Tuesday and request actions necessary to provide inpatient care.

Driver Follows Auto Off Road

Highway patrol officers said a car driven by Jack Watson Jr., 35, of 411 A Street, Petaluma, ran off Cleveland Avenue and hit a pole at 7:30 p.m. A second car, operated by Tommy Ray Johnson, 21, of 317 Fourth Street, Petaluma, then also left the road and hit the back of Watson's vehicle, officers said.

A passenger in Watson's car, Delbert Hanson, 34, of 624 Eastman Lane, Petaluma, was the only person injured. He was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for facial scrapes.

PLAN

The conflicting staff and citizen's committee views will be forwarded to city consultants Duncan and Jones for use in drafting a second version of the plan.

It was uncertain today how the consultants will weigh the discrepant recommendations.

The bulk of committee members voting indicated support for proposals to set a quota of 500 units annually for the San Rafael planning area, encourage increased residential, retail, and office development in the downtown and in the Northgate areas, promote tourism in the city and set a building height limit downtown.

Citizens also said the city should aggressively attract "desirable enterprises," study alternatives to a revised east-west traffic corridor downtown, and restrict additional lanes on Highway 101 for mass transit use only.

Committee members overwhelmingly supported a proposal that the city not bear the burden of additional traffic destined for West Marin, and unanimously endorsed a proposal that the city consider stricter criteria to judge residential development proposals.

Citizens opposed designation of northern portions of San Rafael as an industrial preserve, saying the area should be an agricultural and recreational preserve instead.

Citizens also supported a connector road linking Lincoln Avenue to Los Ranchitos or Merrydale roads, and narrowly rejected a proposal to link Freitas Parkway and Butterfield Road.

TAPES

time to ascertain whether the gap could have been a result of improper use of the recorder.

"Yet to be confirmed are some indications" that the hum could have been caused by Miss Woods' pushing the "record" button while listening to the tape, the report said.

The experts said they would use "sophisticated equipment" including computers for continued tests of the tape.

Miss Woods has testified that she may have caused part of the gap in the tape by pushing the record button accidentally while she was transcribing the tapes. White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt said the noise in the gap could have been caused by an electric typewriter and a high intensity lamp.

But the technical experts told Sirica that the preliminary report showed "neither the Tensor lamp nor the typewriter was the likely cause of the 18-minute buzz."

Miss Woods testified that when she was transcribing the recording of the Nixon-Haldeman meeting, she was distracted by a telephone call and may have accidentally pushed the record button.

But she said her "accident" could only account for about five minutes of the 18 minute gap.

Buzhardt testified that by using the same tape recorder and Miss Woods' typewriter and lamp, he was able to produce a similar sound to the buzz on the tape.

But White House lawyers acknowledged they were unable to come up with a satisfactory explanation for the full 18-minute gap.

The part of the tape that was obliterated was played in Sirica's open court a couple of weeks ago. The first part of the gap contained a hum of one tone and the second part a similar noise but at a different level.

Sirica has seven Watergate tapes in his custody and has been listening to them privately to determine whether they contained material needed in the Watergate grand jury's investigation.

The judge's clerk said Sirica planned to start listening today to recordings of two more 1972 presidential conversations with aides which were said to have included discussion of Watergate.

Jaworski and the White House meantime complimented each other on their new-found cooperation on tapes and other White House documents.

COST

committee his staff had worked for more than two months to cut the construction cost of the terminal from $8.8 million to $6.9 million. He did not detail what was cut to lower the cost, beyond noting several hundred thousand dollars was saved by simplifying berthing facilities.

(Braccia told the I-J in late October the terminal would cost $4.5 million to build, then two weeks later came out with the $8.8 million estimate.)

Other major costs besides the $6,906,700 — if the roof is included — are: $1,250,000 for the 25-acre site; $490,000 for the Muzzi property for disposal of dredged spoitsl; $1,532,290 for consultants, including design, engineering and supervision of construction, and $200,000 estimated for road and utility improvements. The total: $10,378,990.

Braccia assured the committee his new estimates should not change much if construction contracts are let by June. The first new ferry is due to start service then, but the terminal will not be ready for even temporary use until next December, he said. "Substantial completion" of the terminal should come by June, 1975, he added.

The committee postponed action on Braccia's report to 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in toll plaza offices.

Defending his plan for a huge flat plexiglass roof atop a cantilevered steel honeycomb, Braccia said it was designed "to excite the people of Marin County" and thus encourage use of the ferries. "The cost of everything has gone up unbelievably," he lamented, but added that to roof the terminal later "would magnify costs."

Another district consultant, Richard Smart, who handles its applications for federal grants that now cover 80 per cent of capital cost for transit facilities, said the government "will put up whatever funds are necessary to put this (terminal) through," but he was uncertain extra grants would be made for more than the minimum needed.

The federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration already has contributed about $15 million toward the cost of the ferry system. The cost originally was figured at $21.2 million, but largely because of inflation has gone to about $27 million.

Another $2,861,000 grant, combined with a $2.5 million contingency budget in the original grant, should be enough to finance completion of the Larkspur terminal, the staff said.

In related business, the committee recommended the district file a claim of eminent domain for the Muzzi property. Condemning the property could take six months, the staff estimated.

It also endorsed a change order increasing the cost of the three new ferryboats by $103,800. The cost, spread over all three vessels, includes $83,000 to modify side doors to match automated boarding ramps mounted on the floats, and $20,800 for automatic control switches.

Ferry transit manager Stanley M. Kowleski said the ferries will dock at Larkspur by pushbuttons controlling the boarding ramps and lights ashore.

Meeting as the public information and governmental affairs committee, directors postponed to Jan. 4 a San Francisco designer's plan to shine a rainbow across the Golden Gate Bridge.

LABOR DISPUTE — Striking hospital workers, picketing at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael, block a construction road at the hospital today to prevent a dozen carpenters from going to work. Striking carpenters threatened to have 200 men on hand to stop the carpenters from working, but only two pickets were at the construction site by midmorning.

U.N. Secretary General Will Preside At Geneva

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed with other members of the Security Council that Secretary General Kurt Waldheim will preside at the opening session of the Middle East peace conference in Geneva Tuesday, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said the 15 council members met secretly late Wednesday and reached the unanimous decision that Waldheim should be the presiding officer at the opening round, which is expected to be brief.

The diplomatic sources said council members still were awaiting a formal invitation for U.N. participation from the Soviet Union and the United States, which organized the conference. They said they also had not received approval from all parties to the peace talks, notably Israel.

The sources said the council members met in a small basement conference room late yesterday with Ambassador Huang Hua of China, the December council president whose government opposes U.N. involvement in the Middle East.

Afterward, the sources said, 14 members met without Huang to draft a resolution to go before the council, probably at an informal meeting, before Waldheim leaves for Geneva Saturday.

The eight non-aligned members of the council prepared one resolution Wednesday calling on Waldheim to preside.

Diplomats had understood that Moscow and Washington wished to share co-chairmanship of the Mideast conference but the eight non-aligned members of the Council have been agitating for weeks to get the Geneva talks under the wing of the United Nations.

Bayh Attacks Oil Blackmail

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said yesterday the United States should not "begin the awful process of knuckling under to the international blackmail of the Arab oil states."

Bayh keynoted a tribute dinner sponsored by the AntiDefamation League of B'nai B'rith in honor of Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, who received the group's national Humanitarian Award.

Carpenters Kept Off Jobs By Picket Line

By BILL ROBERTS

A threatened confrontation between striking carpenters and working union members did not materialize today but a handful of pickets from the striking hospital workers union turned the carpenters away from their jobs.

Carpenters union members yesterday threatened to bring 200 men to the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center job to prevent Local 35 carpenters from going to work today, but only two pickets showed up.

Striking hospital workers, however, moved their picket line from the front entrance of the hospital to the construction site and the carpenters refused to cross.

Geoffrey Sackett, spokesman for the striking hospital workers, said the pickets moved to the construction site to put added pressure on Kaiser in their own strike.

"This sure beats getting your xxx kicked by 200 guys," said one carpenter as seven women pickets and one man marched across the carpenters' access road to the construction.

"It's a way out," said another.

Working carpenters were threatened yesterday by two dozen striking union members but all of the men remained on the job.

Extra Kaiser security officers were on duty this morning and three San Rafael police cars patroled the hospital area as everyone expected trouble.

Nobody at the scene or Local 35 headquarters could say what happened to the threatened mass turnout by striking carpenters.

Carpenters who worked yesterday agreed that if the two carpenters union pickets were alone the working carpenters would have been on the job today. "But I won't ask my men to walk through that," a spokesman for the carpenters said of the hospital picket line.

Sackett said the hospital workers would continue to march at the construction site until their strike is resolved.

Carpenters said they would return tomorrow to see if they can go back to work.

Dan Maglione, project superintendent for F. P. Lathrop Co., general contractor of the hospital addition, said all other crafts had crossed the hospital workers line. "It's an independent road that belongs to the project," he said of the pickets' new location. He said other crafts could work for a month without the carpenters.

Carpenters remained off the job at the Courthouse Square office-parking complex and Firemen's Fund Insurance building in San Rafael and the Highway 101 project in Novato.

One union picket said other striking carpenters might again try to shut down other construction projects but no information was available on which projects they might hit.

Carpenters began picketing the jobs last week over a wage dispute. They were due a 65-cent raise in June but it was limited to 15 cents by the federal government's price control administration.

Hospital workers from Local 250 of the Hospital and Institutional Workers Union left their jobs Friday after demanding an 8.2 per cent pay increase and being offered only 6.5 per cent by Kaiser.

Both sides in the dispute were compiling new information on wages and fringe benefits today before negotiations resume.

Imaginary Earthquake Drill Held

Marin County disaster officials dealt today with an imaginary earthquake that caused massive damage to Marin, similar to the real earthquake in the San Fernando Valley in February 1971.

Based on what federal earthquake studies said could happen in the county, the disaster workers had to cope with collapse of Stafford and Phoenix dams, massive gas and sewer main breaks, loss of telephone service, collapsed school buildings and severe damage to Highway 101 at Greenbrae, Puerto Suello and other points.

For the first time, Marin's schools cooperated in the training. County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis dispatched school buses to evacuate portions of the Ross Valley, Terra Linda and West Novato. In the schools themselves students went through earthquake drill.

Frank E. Kirby, county emergency services coordinator, said less stress was placed on how many people would be killed or hurt in a serious quake than in how to handle damage to buildings, highways and utilities.

Earlier drills tested emergency plans prepared by medical services.

The theoretical quake was based on a heavy shock along a 50-mile fault line through Marin. As simulated disaster reports poured into the operating center in the Marin County Civic Center, Kirby flashed onto a screen slides of actual damage in the San Fernando quake and the earlier Crescent City tidal wave.

Participants in the training drill included county, city and district officials, and representatives of the California Highway Patrol, Pacific Telephone, Pacific Gas and Electric, Red Cross, Volunteer Radiomen and others. Several Marin County Grand Jury members watched.

Corona Quiet On Attackers

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Juan Corona's attorney says the mass murderer won't identify the convicts who stabbed him 32 times, causing him to lose an eye.

The prison "can't gaurantee his safety and he's not going to stick his neck out," attorney Louis Garcia said yesterday.

Michael Nail, deputy district attorney for Solano County, said evidence had been collected connecting five convicts with the Dec. 1 attack but that he hadn't decided whether to file charges.

ROSS TRADITION SKIRTS ENERGY CRISIS

The huge tree at Katharine Branson School in Ross glows as it has done each Christmas for 52 years. To compensate for the hour or two display each evening, students and school officials said yesterday, they've turned off other campus lights using twice as much energy while the tree is lit. The traditional tree's lights use 4,000 watts, about as much as two or three portable electric heaters. It will be lighted only through Wednesday, when the students' Christmas vacation starts.

Rain Falls Heavily In Marin

A blustery storm hit Marin and Southern Sonoma Counties last night, dumping more than an inch of rain in parts of Marin and lesser amounts elsewhere.

Woodacre reported the most rain with 1.31 inches and San Anselmo had one inch up to 8 a.m. San Rafael recorded 1.11 inch up to noon today.

Other rainfall readings were: Marinwood, .80; Fairfax, .70; Novato, .37 and Petaluma, .14

The wind had died down by morning and the skies were clearing.

The weather forecast was for 40 per cent chance of rain tonight; fair tomorrow with decreasing winds.

No Discussion On Waterfront

A new plan for development of Sausalito's central waterfront will not be considered tonight by the city council, as previously scheduled, according to City Clerk Miriam Ansell.

Steve Siskind of Environmental Systems Inc., who was to present the waterfront proposal, has been called out of town. Discussion of the plan will be on a date to be announced.

Councilmen will consider granting two hours free parking for downtown shoppers during the Christmas season when it meets at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

A Holiday Feast For Stray Dogs

PLYMOUTH, England (UPI) — Animal lovers, annoyed by criticism of a $500 Christmas dinner of turkey and rabbit planned for stray dogs, sent in more money. Now rice pudding has been added to the feast.

"Many animal lovers are so disgusted by the criticism of the dinner," said superintendent Ken Taylor, "they have said they will not contribute to appeals for human beings.

Marin Over Crusade Goal, Bay Area Short

The 1973 United Bay Area Crusade collected $198,810 in Marin County, more than the county's $151,500 goal and about 16 per cent more than was collected last year, UBAC officials said today.

Yesterday was the final day for the 1973 campaign, although donations will continue to arrive, they said.

Despite Marin's strong showing, the total collected in the Bay Area is $16,209,897, less than the crusade's areawide goal of $17.5 million.

"Although the campaign is closing, volunteer leaders will continue through the first of the year to bring in every dollar possible," Bay Area campaign chairman Stuart Menist said. "We fully expect another $300 thousand."

Menist called the drive "a good campaign." Nonetheless, officials at the campaign's San Francisco headquarters said collections were hindered to some extent by less money from some business donors. The campaign was extended an extra three weeks this year, officials said.

Slayer Is Given Prison Sentence

OAKLAND (UPI) — An Oakland man was sentenced to 10 years to life in prison yesterday for the murder of a policeman who was shot to death with his own gun.

Robert E. Simmons, 28, was sentenced by Alameda County Superior Court Judge Harold B. Hobe, who called the shooting "vicious, nonsensical and useless."

The police officer, Robert Blan, was shot last May 23 after stopping a car driven by Simmons because it had outstanding traffic warrants against it. Simmons claimed during his jury trial that he blacked out because he had taken narcotics and alcohol and did not remember shooting Blan.

Rifle Range Plan Wins Endorsement

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission last night took an enthusiastic look at plans presented by the Police Athletic League for an indoor rifle range building at Schollenberger River Park.

Capt. Henry Eslick, representing PAL, showed the commission architectural drawings of the building proposed by his group. He said that through donated labor, materials and money, the league would be able to finance the building, estimated to cost $55,000, although it might take two years to raise the funds.

The building would be used not only for league activities, he said, but also for other youth groups, the police and the public. The commission asked Eslick to come back to the Jan. 9 meeting with final plans for the range, which they heartily endorsed, since the city now has no such facility.

If approved by the commission, the plans would go before the city council.

Mosquito District Eyes Sonoma Annex

The Marin Mosquito Abatement District may annex portions of Southern Sonoma County which now have no mosquito control.

The district board last night agreed to pursue annexation of Rohnert Park, Cotati, Sebastopol and their environs if the consolidation does not result in higher taxes for current district residents, said Allan D. Telford, district manager.

Petaluma is already a part of the Marin district, but other Southern Sonoma areas have no mosquito abatement program, according to the manager.

He said requests for the annexation have come from the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors and Health Department and the State Department of Public Health.

The district's current tax rate is two cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The board plans to study the financial impact of the annexation, Telford said.

Planner Won't Take New Term

Novato planning commissioner Beverly Ehreth, whose term expires this month, has notified the city she won't accept reappointment.

With Mrs. Ehreth declining, two seats will be open on the seven-member commission, since Leroy J. Syrop resigned last month.

Eight applicants for the planning commission posts are scheduled to be interviewed by the city Council Saturday.

City Clerk Peggy Lehigh reported the city also is seeking applicants for an opening on the plan review committee and interested persons can apply at the Novato City Hall.

Ban Sought On Asbestos Pipe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Further production of asbestos cement waterpipe for drinking water should be banned because the 200,000 miles of it that already exist in this country may be exposing Americans to a needless cancer risk, according to a group of researchers.

The request for a ban has been lodged with the Environmental Protection Agency by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, brought an immediate counter attack from the asbestros industry which says there is no evidence to link watercarried asbestros to cancer or any other health problem.

Living Costs Up

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Prices in Holland rose by an average of more than 5 per cent in the first eight months of 1973. By summer the price index for family consumption stood at 130.1, compared to the 1969 index of 100.

Another Clash Over Bus Charges

Marin and Golden Gate Bridge District officials clashed again yesterday over sharing the cost of bus service and got nowhere. (Another bridge district story, page 1.)

Negotiations have been going on for two years over the issue of who pays the cost of passengers who board and get off transbay buses within the county.

With the subsidy pegged at 34.5 cents for each rider, the bridge district figures the county should pay $295,656 this year. State law requires the county to pay for such purely local benefits of the bus system, according to the bridge district.

Officials of the county's transit district counter that local passengers are riding transbay buses that operate anyway, so their fares are "gravy" to the bridge district.

In any event, the county transit district can't afford the bill because it already pays $600,000 for local bus service. The two figures come to some $200,000 more than the district raises with its maximum property tax rate of a nickel per $100 assessed valuation.

Marin County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. urged the bridge district to bill the county only $85,000 next fiscal year — as it did this year — to help win voter approval in June of hiking the tax rate to 25 cents.

He and Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini argued county voters will approve the increase only if it will finance improved local transit, and will turn it down if most of the money simply goes to the bridge district for existing service.

Bridge director Lowell Edington of Napa County insisted state law required the county to pay the cost of moving local riders, regardless of whether they rode local or transbay buses.

Ray W. Foreaker, general manager of the county transit district, retorted that the bridge district is "as hard-nosed as any public agency I've ever seen," and suggested it might be best for the county to pull its tax funds out of the bridge district and run its own local bus system.

Edington, however, rebutted that "what stands out like a sore thumb is that 65 per cent of our (bus) mileage is in Marin, while you pay for 22.4 per cent of the benefit."

Citing Marin as "the most affluent financial county in the United States," Edington insisted that "someway you're going to have to get more money out of Marin County." Even with a 75-cent toll, the bridge district's transit system will be pressed hard by inflating operating deficits, he said.

Another "negotiating" session will be held sometime during the last week of January.

HUGE DOGS GO TO SCHOOL

Brenda, a 140-pound St. Bernard, gets an assist in her cart-hauling visit to the Cedars School in Ross from Breakaway, a mere 70-pound youngster of 6 months. Members of the St. Bernard Club of the Pacific Coast, headed by Douglas and Penny Mahon of Sleepy Hollow, staged an obedience demonstration and let Cedars youngsters take cart rides yesterday. Onlookers described the affair as a tumultuous love-in between dogs and children, with the big creatures enjoying hugs and pats by the hundreds. The dog owners paid a similar visit to Marindale School earlier, and will be visiting other schools for handicapped youngsters next week.

Racial Fighting Closes School

CITRONELLE, Ala. (UPI) — Classes were dismissed at Citronelle High School yesterday following an outbreak of fighting between white and black students which led to two minor injuries and 11 arrests.

Mayor Clay Bassett said only "15 to 20 students" were involved in the fighting which began in a restroom of the 1,148-student school.

Bassett said the incident stemmed from a fight between some of the students the previous Friday at a local drive-in.

1968 Draft Case Is Retried With Victory For Defendant

By ERNEST MURPHY

Rather than being kangaroo court justice, it was a rhetoric class's reenactment of a civil liberties case. It differed from the original in that the defendant was found innocent.

"One of the purposes of the course was to study the three presidential candidates of '72, and from this we got involved in studying forms of protest. We read about this case toward the end of the semester and decided to use it because it was such a clear cut, simple case of constitutional rights," she said.

The class project was closer to a debate tournament than a play, though, because students playing roles ad-libbed their performances. A 12-person volunteer jury of students and faculty members reached a verdict based on the arguments.

Yesterday's mock trial was based on the case of Paul Robert Cohen who was tried in the Los Angeles Municipal Court in 1971 on a charge of disturbing the peace by wearing a jacket emblazoned with "xxxx the Draft" in the corridor of a courthouse in 1968.

As the Dominican version of the trial was called to order by Judd Iversen, a law instructor playing judge, prosecuting attorneys Jody Bertolucci and Lou Buxton argued that the defendant, played by Kathy Kastner, was in clear violation of a California Penal Code section on public conduct.

Defense attorneys Marc Gartman and Yvonne Wright said the defendant was merely expressing a personal belief, a right guaranteed by the Constitution.

The defendant himself took the stand to say that the slogan was not meant to incite violence but was "the most appropriate way for me to express myself."

"If there is any doubt in your minds that he committed a crime you must not convict him," Gartman admonished the jurors. "This defendant is charged with a violation of Section 415 of the penal code — a law which is over-broad and outdated. It encompasses acts ranging from speaking loudly to holding horse races.

But prosecutor Bertolucci instructed the jury differently. "The law has established that freedom of speech is not absolute, but must be balanced against other elements of the public interest," she said.

After the trial was over, Judd discussed the performances with the students.

"The thing to remember is that you're playing to an audience of 12 people who know nothing about the case but what you tell them," he said.

"It's a dramatic situation and you have to play it strongly. Watch Billy Graham — he'll move people's emotions and then calm them down a little bit. But he's always moving them in a certain direction."

Reagan Defends Nixon On Taxes

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, who paid no California income taxes in 1970, says President Nixon is justified in not paying California income taxes.

And he disagrees with California congressmen who contend the President should pay a state income tax because they do.

"They're not supposed to move their residences to Washington. They're supposed to maintain residences here. They're supposed to represent an area. The president is the one man who represents 50 states, all the people."

Survey Marker May Settle Canal Battle

San Rafael city workmen yesterday unearthed a long lost 1869 survey monument on Ritter Avenue, discovery that state officials sought to verify a survey of original property lines along San Rafael Canal.

Donald J. Brittnacher, associate boundary determination officer of the State Lands Commission, told the Independent-Journal the find should assure completion of the survey in time for the commission's Jan. 31 meeting.

The monument, a six-inch square, two-foot-long block of marble, was found only about a foot from where it was noted in 1892 survey notes found last month.

The three-foot-deep hole was quickly filled in again, however, since it was in a private parking lot at 24 Ritter Avenue. A brass marker was placed on the surface above the marker.

Holiday Project

Members of the San Rafael Moose Lodge will distribute toys, food, candy and nuts the day of Christmas Eve to the children in the Center Medical Group and Marin County Juvenile Hall.

A Freight Truck Plan Developed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State University researchers have developed a program which could cut the number of trucks making small freight deliveries in large cities by about 90 per cent and which would result in less traffic congestion, fuel savings and cleaner air, officials said today.

The program proposed establishment of consolidated freight terminals to receive, sort and send shipments in fewer trucks than currently used.

Researchers said shipments of a thousand pounds or less represent most of the deliveries and pickups in a city.

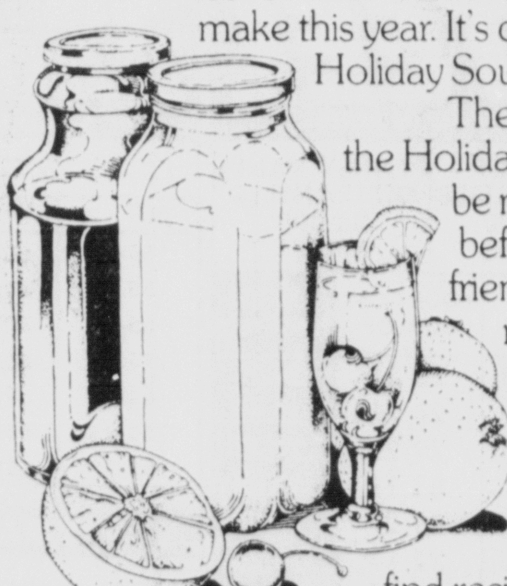
The Last Drink of 1973.



We promise this will be the very last Smirnoff drink suggestion we'll make this year. It's called the Smirnoff Holiday Sour.

The reason we call it the Holiday Sour is that it can be made a few hours before you have friends over and refrigerated till they arrive. So when they do, you can relax and enjoy the time with them.

Below you'll find recipes for an individual Smirnoff Holiday Sour, a quart size, a half-gallon size, a two-gallon punch bowl size and if you're really having a bash, a fifteen-gallon bathtub size.

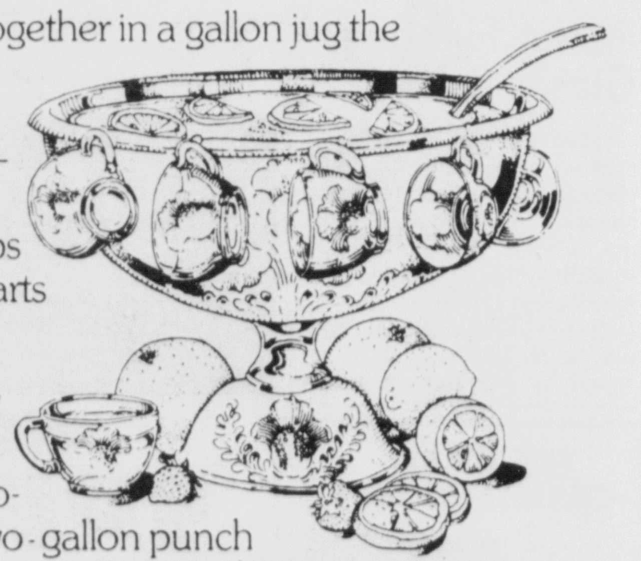
Whether or not you take our suggestion, we hope you'll have a happy holiday.

The One Drink-Three-Ounce Size.

Mix together in a shaker or empty jar the following: 1/2 ounce of lemon juice — 1 teaspoon of sugar — 1 ounce of water — 1-1/2 ounces of Smirnoff.

The Ten-Drink Size.

Mix together in an empty quart juice bottle the following: 5 ounces of lemon juice — 3 tablespoons of sugar — 10 ounces of water — 1 pint or 2 cups of Smirnoff.



The Forty-Drink Size.

Mix together in a gallon jug the following: 20 ounces of lemon juice — 7/8 cup of sugar — 5 cups water — 2 quarts of Smirnoff.

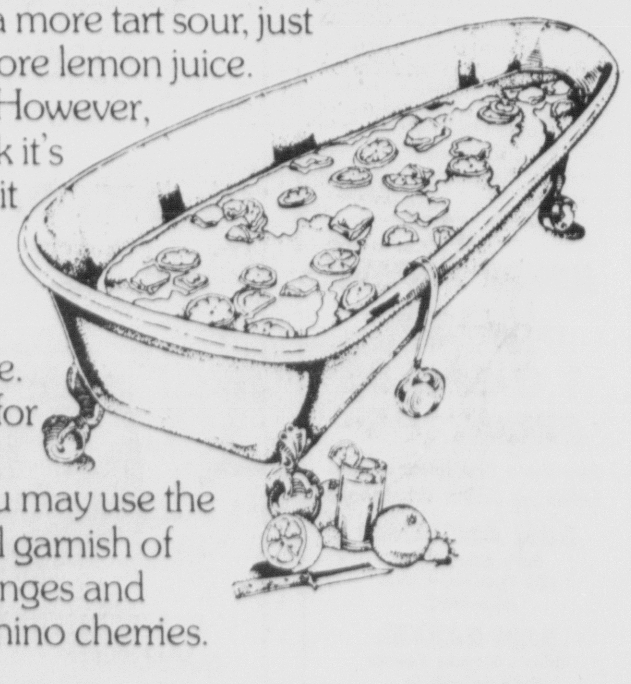
The Eighty-Drink Size.

Mix together in a two-gallon punch bowl the following: 5 cups of lemon juice — 1-3/4 cups of sugar — 2-2/3 quarts of water — 4 quarts of Smirnoff.

The Six-Hundred-Drink Size.

Mix together in a tub: 9-1/2 quarts of lemon juice — 12 cups of sugar — 5 gallons of water — 28 quarts of Smirnoff.

If you want a sweeter sour, just add more sugar. Or if you want a more tart sour, just add more lemon juice.



However, we do think it's wise to serve it in a short glass over a generous quantity of ice.

And for the final touch, you may use the traditional garnish of sliced oranges and maraschino cherries.

Rohnert Park Mayor To Seek Reelection

ARMANDO FLORES
Seeks reelection

Armando Flores, mayor of Rohnert Park, has announced his candidacy for another term on the city council in the election to be held March 5.

Flores, 32-year-old educator, was appointed to fill a vacancy on the council in December, 1971. He was elected mayor by his fellow councilmen last April.

In addition to his service on the city council, Flores has served on the Sonoma County Grand Jury, the Rohnert Park Cultural Arts Corporation and as a coach for boys baseball in the community and also has worked with the cub scouts.

Flores is an administrator-teacher in the Sausalito School District. He holds a bachelor's degree from the University of San Francisco and a teaching credential from San Francisco State College. He has served as president of the Sausalito Teachers Association.

In announcing his candidacy, Flores said he planned to work toward two major projects in Rohnert Park, a permanent library and a fire substation, if elected in March.

In a campaign statement, he said "controlled residential development has enabled commercial enterprises to expand and become competitive" in Rohnert Park. He said he hopes that "continued growth of commercial and light industrial businesses will alleviate the tax burden on homeowners."

He cited a 12-cent per $100 of assessed valuation tax rate drop this year in the city.

His fellow councilman, Arthur N. Roberts, whose term also expires this spring, has indicated he, too, plans to run in the March election.

No other candidate for the two vacancies has filed papers yet.

Plea Is Planned To Little League

The Mill Valley Human Rights Commission will write to national, regional and local Little League offices to ask them to start a pilot boy-girl baseball program in Marin County next summer.

Chairman Edith Freeman said the commission decided Tuesday that besides writing the letters it will go to the county human rights commission in January to ask for help in getting the Little League to integrate girls and boys.

The actions came one week after the city council decided to allow the boys-only Little League to play in Mill Valley parks for one more year in hopes that the national office of the baseball group will begin allowing girls to play in its games soon.

Birth Defects Blamed On Spray

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A suburban Philadelphia couple has filed a $7.2 million damage suit against the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. (3M) of St. Paul, charging its spray adhesive caused birth deformities to their son last year.

Ralph and Susan Hill, of West Chester, Pa., claimed that the spray they used in their hooe caused genetic damage to their son during the mother's pregnancy. Their son, Christopher, was born Sept. 2, 1972.

The suit said the child was born without a lower left leg and had defects of the nervous system and five sensory functions.

Detective Stinson Is Top Officer

Detective Barxdal W. (Bart) Stinson of the San Rafael Police Department is Marin County's "Peace Officer of the Year," chosen by the Marin County Peace Officers Association.

H. Eric Newlin, 17-year-old Larkspur youth who trailed a pair of robbery suspects and was shot twice in the pursuit, is the association's "Citizen of the Year."

The meeting also included election of officers for next year. Sgt. Henry W. Ingwersen of the San Rafael Police Department was elected president, succeeding Arthur S. Olson of the California Highway Patrol. Detective William G. Palmini Jr. of the Sausalito Police Department was elected first vice president, and Sgt. Charles Newman of the Corte Madera Police Department, second vice president. Arthur H. Fellows, retired San Rafael police sergeant, was reelected secretary-treasurer.

Detective Stinson was named "Peace Officer of the Year" for "sustained superior performance." The association's nominating committee for the award reported that within the last three years, Stinson has cleared 100 burglaries, numerous forgeries, and a robbery for other jurisdictions, in addition to those solved for the San Rafael department, of which there were 19 this year alone.

"A specific example of the tireless manner in which Detective Stinson pursues all assigned tasks," said the award letter, "is demonstrated in his recent clearance of a series of residential robber-rape-burglaries occurring in Marinwood, Terra Linda, and the Dominican area of San Rafael. This case is particularly noteworthy since there were little or no investigative leads upon which to initiate the investigation; however, through perseverance and thoroughness, Detective Stinson successfully concluded the investigation and ultimately relieved the tension which existed within the community."

Young Newlin performed the act for which he was honored on Oct. 27, when he went to Swensen's Ice Cream Parlor in Greenbrae to pick up a friend and saw two men behaving suspiciously. When the pair drove off, he pursued. Near the Hutchinson Quarry, he was shot twice and seriously wounded. But he returned with the license number of the car and gave it to police and only then learned that the pair had held up and robbed the ice cream parlor.

A runner-up for "Peace Officer of the Year" was detective Donald Luther of the Novato Police Department for his role during a holdup of the Central Bank in Novato last June 12, in which he disarmed a robber at risk of his life.

Runner-up for "Citizen of the Year" was Jami R. Allen of Sausalito, whose calmness during an attempt to hold up the Sausalito branch of Bank of America, where she was a teller, was credited with leading to capture of the robber without violence.

The 1974 officers of the association will be installed at a dinner meeting Jan. 19 at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club.

SLOWDOWN SIGNED — Gov. Ronald Reagan signed "energy crisis" legislation to roll back the California speed limit from 65 to 55 miles an hour effective Jan. 1. Reagan signed the bill immediately after returning to the Capitol from a two-and-a-half week absence, during which he visited Australia.

Governor Signs Bill To Cut Speed Limit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday signed "energy crisis" legislation to roll back the California speed limit from 65 miles an hour to 55 m.p.h. effective Jan. 1.

"I don't think it is too much of a hardship on people," Reagan said of the speed reduction. "I think they're willing. If we don't take action, we are going to wind up with things that are far more restrictive than we don't like."

Reagan signed the bill (AB1969) by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, at a hastily called mini-ceremony immediately after returning to the Capitol following a two-and-a-half week absence.

The bill, passed last week by the legislature while Reagan was on a tour of Australia, Singapore and Indonesia, is aimed at easing the fuel shortage by reducing total annual gasoline consumption in California by 300 million gallons, or 3 per cent.

Reagan, in response to newsmen's questions, declined to comment directly on a pending Democratic-sponsored bill that would establish state Resources Secretary Norman B. Livermore Jr. as a powerful state energy "czar" with vast authority to allocate fuel, administer car pools, and impose gasoline rationing.

Reagan said he opposed creating a new state agency to deal with the energy crisis because "new government programs have a way of becoming permanent." The bill would use existing governmental structure.

Speed Cut Said Unlikely To Reduce Crash Rate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski today warned motorists not to be "lulled into a false sense of security" when the state's maximum speed limit becomes 55 miles per hour.

Forecasts that traffic accidents and deaths will fall dramatically when the limit becomes 55 m.p.h. could prove false, Pudinski said.

"Several factors indicate the accident decline could be slight or even non-existent — but the most damaging aspect may be that drivers hearing these optimistic statements will be lulled into a false sense of security," Pudinski said.

"On freeways, the potential for more severe rear-end accidents may be increased," Pudinski said. "The speed differential between the willful violator — the driver who operates far above the legal limit — and the 55 m.p.h. traffic flow will be that much greater, meaning rear-end and side-swipe accidents could be more serious."

Pudinski also cited the following:

"The vehicle mix is shifting. The small car population is increasing and accidents involving small cars tend to be more severe."

"The expected trend toward car pooling, putting more people in each vehicle, can result in more injuries when a car is involved in an accident."

"Fatigue, a major cause of single vehicle crashes, will be increased on longer trips because the lowered maximum speed will extend travel times. And single vehicle accidents already represent nearly 40 per cent of California's accident problem."

Pudinski said the patrol was "not distributing gloom — simply realism."

Nixon, Ford Ask Businessmen For Support On Energy Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With President Nixon leading the way, Vice President Gerald R. Ford went before many of the nation's most influential businessmen last night to personally and privately appeal for their support in the face of the energy crisis.

Nixon spent about 20 minutes visiting with about 100 members of the prestigious Business Council, a private group of corporate executives, to enlist their backing in the fight to cut down on energy consumption. Ford made his plea later and came away saying he thought he got "a reasonably good" reception.

Reporters were barred from all the proceedings, on grounds that the Business Council has a long tradition of prohibiting press coverage of its meetings. White House officials provided no advance notice of Nixon's plans to drop in at the session in a downtown Washington hotel.

Also on hand to present the administration's position were Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent, Budget Director Roy Ash and top White House officials, including presidential counselor Melvin R. Laird and chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Ford, in a brief news conference afterward, said his remarks "were primarily aimed at asking the business community to continue their sacrifice and cooperation" in the energy crisis.

"I indicated that all the evidence I had seen was persuasive that business had done a fine job in this area, but we were only starting down the road and we had a lot more to do," he said.

The vice president said that he did not think the executives showed any strong fears of an economic recession despite widespread forecasts of a downturn because of the fuel shortage.

Beyond that, Ford said "I saw no evidence" that the business leaders had lost any confidence in Nixon's ability to deal with the energy situation as a result of problems with Watergate or other allegations of scandal within the administration.

David Packard, chairman of the council and a former deputy secretary of defense under Nixon, appeared to share Ford's impressions and said he was certain the government could count on continued cooperation from the major corporations.

"The business community is concerned and we want to do our part," said the founder of the Hewlett-Packard Co., a West Coast electronics firm with many defense contracts.

Two Arrested At Construction Site

Booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court were officer Christopher John Panagotacos, 28, of 266 Flagstone Terrace, San Rafael, and fireman Robert Louis Vergano, 28, of 32 Geary Avenue, Fairfax.

Panagotacos, booked on suspicion of burglary, joined the Berkeley department in 1968, took disability leave last February and went off the force's payroll on Aug. 3 while awaiting disability retirement, according to Berkeley Capt. Darrell Hickman.

Hickman said he views Panagotacos as a former member of the department since he is "in limbo."

Vergano, booked on suspicion of burglary and conspiracy, joined the San Francisco Fire Department in 1967.

Ross police said the two were arrested after an officer heard noises behind a home under construction at 110 Laurel Avenue, saw three men flee and discovered a pickup truck loaded with four glass doors, four ladders, boards and construction insulation.

Police said Vergano was arrested after he emerged from a nearby bush, and said Panagotacos was arrested on Laurel Avenue after he ran down the roadway ringing doorbells and telling residents his truck had been stolen.

Panagotacos told officers he was visiting a friend next door to the home under construction, police said.

Panagotacos and another man, Bruce K. Knoles of San Rafael, were charged with battery in October 1972, following an Aug. 26 brawl at a San Anselmo tavern.

Panagotacos, charged with battery against Knoles, was acquitted after a nine-day jury trial last May in Marin Municipal Court.

Knoles was convicted of battery against a woman involved in the fray, and acquitted of charges of battery against Panagotacos. He was fined $315 and sentenced to three years probation.

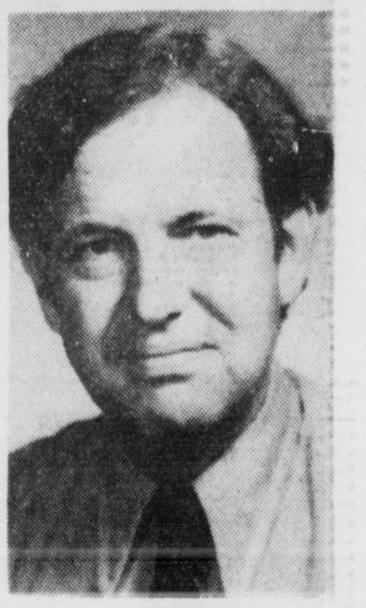
Tiburon Has First Council Candidate



E. BRUCE ROSS
Will run for council

Tiburon Planning Commissioner E. Bruce Ross today became the first to announce that he will run for the Tiburon City Council next spring.

Three council seats will be open in that election. Mayor Branwell D. Fanning and councilman M.Carlisle Becker have said that they will not run again. Councilman Albert H. Sennett has not stated his plans.

The 37-year-old Ross, who has been on the commission for 18 months, is a past president of the Tiburon Peninsula Advisory Committee.

A partner in the firm of Backen, Arrigoni and Ross Inc. in San Francisco, he earned his degree in architecture at the University of Oregon.

He, his wife and three children reside at 1807 Centro West Street in Tiburon. He also has coached Little League.

Ross acknowledged that the extensive downtown development project proposed by Sequoia Pacific of Santa Ana probably will be a major campaign issue in Tiburon.

Recently, he urged the city to review and update its downtown plan adopted in 1969 which serves as the basis for Sequoia Pacific's proposal. He is one of the leaders of a series of planning commission workshops at which the public is being asked to respond to the downtown plan and the Sequoia Pacific project.

"Once those 36 acres downtown are developed, it will change forever the nature and quality of life in Tiburon," he said. "I want people to feel good about it afterwards."

Ross had belonged to a group of residents who submitted a downtown plan to the city a few years ago which was turned down in favor of a plan done by architect Philip K. Buskirk, who subsequently participated in preparing the railroad development plan.

Marin Open Space Group Purchases Fairfax Land

Officials of the Marin County Open Space District have signed an agreement to buy the 481-acre Elliott property in the Cascade Canyon area of Fairfax.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said the purchase will be ratified by the open space district board Tuesday.

The property cost $405,000. Of that, $372,182 came from the district and $32,818 was donated by the property owner Floyd Elliott, according to Arrigoni.

He said the district board plans to ask the Fairfax City Council to contribute toward the acquisition.

The property is the largest parcel of land yet purchased by the district, he said.

FREEDOM GRANTED — George Metesky (center), the man initially dubbed "the mad bomber" smiles as he leaves a New York court after charges against him were dismissed, paving the way for his release from a mental institution. The judge told him yesterday "not to do it again" before dismissing charges.

(UPI Telephoto)

New York's 'Mad Bomber' Gets Freedom From Mental Hospital

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Metesky, an aggrieved expower company employee who planted a series of bombs that injured 22 people and terrorized New York during the 1940s and '50s, was declared a free man yesterday after nearly 17 years in a mental institution.

"Sixteen years ago, you caused a great deal of turmoil in this city," Acting Supreme Court Justice Joseph Martinis told George Metesky, 70. "I remember it well. Many of us had sleepless nights because of the terror you were causing. I expect there'll be no repetition."

Metesky said, "I think the judge is right. There won't be any repetition."

The forty-seven criminal charges against Metesky were dropped under the provisions of a law that calls for prisoners who have been locked up in mental hospitals to be released after they have been held longer than they would have been had they been convicted on criminal charges.

After the court hearing Metesky was sent back to Creedmoor State Hospital, where doctors have ruled him harmless and officials said he would go home today.

Metesky was accused of placing more than 20 homemade bombs in buildings and phone booths in New York City for 16 years until he was caught in 1957.

He was charged with multiple counts of attempted murder, damaging a building by explosion, possession of a bomb and related offenses, but found mentally incompetent to stand trial.

He spent 16 years in Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminally Insane. Seven months ago he was transferred to Creedmoor.

Metesky said he started planting bombs because of an industrial accident in 1935 which caused him to develop tuberculosis.

He tried to collect compensation from his employer, United Electric and Power Co., which was later taken over by Consolidated Edison, but failed, and decided to plant the bombs to dramatize his case.

A psychiatrist on the Creedmoor release committee said Matesky's formal release could come as early as Thursday. The committee recently decided Metesky "was able to function in society without danger to himself or others."

Metesky said he planned to go to Waterbury, Conn., to care for his crippled sister Mae, 77, the only surviving member of his family.

Dam Swap Proposal Made To Bolinas Utility Board

An exchange of dams owned by Point Reyes National Seashore and the Bolinas Community Public Utility District was proposed last night as a means of easing the town's water shortage and cutting back on high maintenance costs.

Director Paul D. Kayfetz told the utility board that officials from the U.S. Department of the Interior and the seashore had agreed at a meeting held Tuesday that swapping its Pepper Dam for the district's Arroyo Honda Dam would serve the interests of both.

Directors voted unanimously to hire a consulting engineer to evaluate Pepper Dam, located approximately 200 yards from the seashore's southern access road.

Pepper Dam could add more than 2 million gallons to district reserve capacity, according to Mark Ireland, engineer and former director.

Point Reyes Superintendent John L. Sansing said the exchange could be worked out quickly under a special use permit.

The directors, however, indicated they want a permanent trade.

Appraisals of the two sites must be made to determine the dollar values involved. Both lie on an Arroyo Honda creek.

Director Lewis P. MacAdams Jr., was absent.

The Bolinas Public Utility Board also:

SEWAGE — Heard that engineering plans for the proposed sewage treatment project were sent that day to the state Water Quality Control Board for preliminary approval.

ENVIRONMENTAL — Received a letter from Kirker, Chapman and Associates, design engineers, replying to a complaint by Stephen A. Warkentin that a 1972 environmental impact report on the sewage project was inadequate. The engineers said seven alternate sites were investigated and that criteria for the project were established "with the high probability of a major earthquake in mind."

PERSONNEL — Agreed at a closed session to grant a three-month leave of absence to Charles A. Alexander, assistant maintenance man, with the promise of a comparable job when he returns; to advertise for a permanent maintenance assistant; and to hire Lucy Rose as temporary replacement for Patricia Tassa, assistant secretary, who will go on leave for two months.

WATER — Heard that the district is losing about 20 per cent of its water in leaking pipes against an average loss in other districts of about 6 per cent.

Emission Rules Power Granted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an intramural battle, the Atomic Energy Commission has won sole power to set preliminary radiation emission standards for nuclear power plants.

The Environmental Protection Agency said yesterday they have been told by the Office of Management and Budget not to set leakage standards on a plant-by-plant basis. The EPA will still have authority over environmental impact statements when power plants are built and will still be able to set general standards governing radiation emissions from such plants, a spokesman said.

Malvino Will Seek Council Reelection

Alfred J. Malvino, Larkspur city councilman since 1966, today said he will seek reelection in municipal elections in March, relying heavily on his past record.

"We have accomplished a lot in the last eight years and there is room for improvement in the future," he said.

Malvino said he will continue to judge each issue before the council without prejudice if he is reelected.

The 57-year-old Malvino served as mayor in 1968 and was renamed mayor earlier this year.

He is the owner of Malvino Furniture Co. in San Francisco and has lived in Larkspur 18 years.

He was a member of the Corte Madera Flood Control Advisory Board, represented the council at the Association of Bay Area Governments. He has also been involved with several projects for youngsters in Larkspur.

Council seats of Malvino and Neil R. Brixon will be available in the municipal election March 5. Brixon has announced that he will not seek reelection.

Operation Candor Said Helping Nixon's Image

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — President Nixon's popularity climbed four points during the past month and "Operation Candor" was a contributing factor, according to the latest Gallup Poll.

The poll released yesterday showed that between Nov. 2 and Dec. 3, the number of persons approving of the way the President is handling his job rose from 27 per cent to 31 per cent. In contrast Nixon enjoyed a solid majority approval of 68 per cent last January, before disclosure about Watergate and his personal finances.

The Gallup Organization said one factor in November's upswing was believed to be Operation Candor in which Nixon made several public appearances to bolster his image. Several of Nixon's appearances were in the south where his percentage of popularity increased seven points, three above the national average.

In conducting the nationwide poll, the Gallup Organization asked 1,550 adults "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling the job as President?"

Special Holiday Masses Tomorrow

The choir of the Portuguese Cultural Center and two Portuguese missionaries of Turlock will present a series of Portuguese Christmas programs tomorrow at St. Raphael's Church.

Revs. Jvo Rocha and Jose Carlos will hear confessions from 6 to 8 p.m. and hold high masses at 8:30 and 9:30 p.m. Portuguese Christmas carols, recitations and a live nativity scene will be presented after the second mass.

Error Blamed On Oil Group

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — An official of the Central Ohio Gasoline Dealers Association claims pressure from the oil industry forced the federal government to suddenly announce it made an error in calculating the ordered cutback in gasoline production.

"I think the government actually did want a 25 per cent reduction," said David Pickney, vice president of the association, "But I think the oil companies told (the government) it would get a 5 per cent and that's all."

Officials in Washington announced Wednesday a 25 per cent cutback effective Dec. 27, but then hours later said an error had been made in calculation and only a 5 per cent curtailment was necessary.

Commuter Telethon Will Close Tonight

Tonight is the last chance for commuters to register for car pools by telephone, according to Marin Sierra Club chairman Gilbert Deane.

Last night, he said, the club registered another 150 commuters in its telethon effort which ends tonight. About 150 registered on Tuesday night.

"Besides the ones we've counted, we have found that a large number of registration forms are coming from the 39 businesses which are distributing them, as well as from our post office box address," Deane said this morning.

"We'll contact everyone who registers within the next several weeks, regardless of whether we can match them up with a pool," he said.

Tonight commuters can register by calling either 461-3000 or 456-7830 between 5 and 11 p.m., Deane said.

Water District May Not Cut Service To Outside Customers

Marin Municipal Water District customers outside the district may not lose their water service after all.

The district board yesterday voted 3-to-2 to give users of surplus water formal notice that their water service will be terminated next July. But, at the same time, directors asked the district staff to meet with the customers to try and find a way to make the shutoffs unnecessary.

Last spring the board declared that a potential water shortage exists in the district and imposed a moratorium on new water connections. At that time its attorney, Tom Thorner, said the district would find it difficult to defend its connection ban in court if it continued to provide "surplus water" to users outside the district.

In July, the board voted to cut off water to almost all customers outside the district, including the Muir Woods National Monument, Forts Barry, Baker and Cronkhite and about 20 homes on Sausalito's Wolfback Ridge.

Now this may be unnecessary, since the North Marin County Water District has offered to serve these users "on a surplus basis" until the connection ban is lifted.

The northern water district is willing to provide Marin Municipal with 320 acre feet of water a year through an intertie near Hamilton Air Force Base.

Yesterday the board asked representatives from the monument, forts and Wolfback Ridge Homeowners Association to see if some agreement could be worked out so that they can continue to be served using North Marin water.

Not all the outside customers are now willing to go along with that arrangement. "We do not want to get surplus water from North Marin, because they might cut off our water at any time, as you are trying to do," said Helen Vander Male of the Wolfback Homeowners group. She said ridge property owners are also unwilling to annex to the district at this time.

The group presented the board with a letter from its attorney, Richard H. Breiner, threatening legal action if Marin Municipal moves to stop water service to their homes. Breiner said there is no other source of water on the ridge and added: "Should service be discontinued . . . all 25 homes in the area would have to be abandoned and destroyed."

"We're extremely upset about this," Mrs. Vander Male told the board. (Representatives from the forts and monument also said they would go to court to fight any attempt to shut off their water.)

Board member John M. MacPhail Jr., who has consistently voted against halting service to outside customers, urged Mrs. Vander Male to adopt a more conciliatory attitude in her dealings with the district.

"You are throwing down the gauntlet and issuing a challenge to the board. You are saying 'we won't do this and we won't do that'," MacPhail said. "That is no way to reach a solution. The board intends to do everything possible to see that you continue to get water," the director added.

"I feel that we're morally, if not legally bound, to continue to serve them," said board president Jordan L. Martinelli Jr.

Attorney Thorner recommended that the board still send notices of termination, while the district works out a way to continue the service.

MacPhail and Martinelli voted against Thorner's suggestion. "It would be against the best interest of the district and the community," MacPhail said. "There must be other solutions."

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

RECYCLING — Agreed to let Survival Inc. include a pamphlet on recycling in district water bills.

DENIAL — Denied requests for variances to the connection ban from Gary Weaver for seven single-family homes in Sausalito and from J.A. Rider for a home in Mill Valley.

EXTENSION — Granted a request for a variance to obtain a pipeline extension to L. Bodian for seven homes in the Ville Moderne subdivision, Tiburon.

ANNEXATION — Voted to proceed with annexation of property around Santa Margarita School in Terra Linda and the Nunes Ranch in Lucas Valley and set a hearing on the annexations for Jan. 23.

WARM SPRINGS — Asked for a copy of the environmental impact report on the controversial Warm Springs Dam in Sonoma County and decided to request that the Environmental Protection Agency not act on the report until there has been adequate time for review by local persons and agencies. The EPA is to consider the impact statement early next month.

COMMENDATION — Commended Paul Grimes, district senior engineer, for a recent article he wrote about the district's computer program to monitor its water system. The article, "What to do Before the Computer Arrives," was published in the American Water Works Association Journal.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to Dec. 21 at 11 a.m. in the district office.

TAKING THE TOP CHAIR

Three Face Charge Of Bus Theft

Three Petaluma teen-agers found in a big red, white and blue bus in Vallejo early yesterday were returned by police to their hometown later in the day on suspicion of stealing the vehicle.

Booked into county jail in Santa Rosa were: Daniel Paul Hollingsworth, 19, of 116 Maria Drive; David Arthur Peacock, 18, of 1252 Glenwood Drive, and Richard James Lehnherr, 18, of 2260 Ely Road.

Vallejo police said they became suspicious when they saw the big bus parked behind a gas station at 2:30 a.m. The three youths were inside, officers said.

A telephone check with Arthur Norton of Petaluma, the bus's regular driver, showed that Norton had parked the bus outside his home at 711 McDowell Boulevard in the evening and did not know it was missing.

The three youths were to appear in municipal court today.

Long-Sought Burglary Suspect Is Captured

A Santa Cruz man on the loose more than three months while Marin authorities mistakenly hunted his brother in connection with a $20,000 burglary was arrested yesterday.

Santa Cruz police took into custody Larry Lee Weaver, 29, of that city, and he was brought to Marin County Jail, where he was held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Following the June 21 burglary at the home of William Ambrose, two Oakland men were arrested and a warrant was issued for a third man.

But it wasn't until October that the Marin District Attorney's office discovered an error had been made.

Ambrose mistakenly identified the third burglar from photographs as Earl Francis Weaver, but authorities found out the man they actually wanted was his brother, Larry Weaver.

A third Weaver brother, Richard Anthony Weaver, 20, and another Oakland man, John Robert Prater, were convicted in separate trials in Marin Superior Court.

Larry Weaver was to be arraigned today in Marin Municipal Court.

BART To Buy Safety System

OAKLAND (UPI) — Bay Area Rapid Transit District directors awarded a contract of up to $1.3 million yesterday for the installation of safety computers on its trains.

The contract was awarded to Westinghouse Electric Corp. although developed by Stewart-Warner Corp.

Because original controls on the underground trails failed, the state Public Utilities Commission has refused to permit BART trains to operate in a tube connecting San Francisco and Oakland.

NEW YORK AT NIGHT

Kissinger, Tho To Meet In Paris Week From Now

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, who negotiated the cease-fire that led to U. S. withdrawal from Vietnam, will meet in Paris Dec. 20, presumably to discuss the greatly increased military activity in Indochina.

A White House announcement this morning of the meeting between the U. S. secretary of state and North Vietnam's chief negotiator said only that the meeting was for a discussion of "matters of mutual interest in the present situation."

Gerald L. Warren, deputy presidential press secretary, declined to be more specific on the reason for the meeting but it apparently was arranged because of widespread violations of the cease-fire and stepped up fighting in Vietnam and Cambodia.

Warren said that the meeting was arranged by mutual agreement. He declined to say whether it was initiated by Washington or Hanoi.

The meeting will be the 28th between Kissinger and Tho, who negotiated the fragile cease-fire agreement that went into effect last Jan. 27 and was followed by the total withdrawal of U. S. combat forces from Vietnam.

The United States fulfilled its pledge to pull out within 60 days but the agreement between Kissinger and Tho did not require North Vietnam to withdraw its troops. Hanoi never publicly acknowledged it had any men in South Vietnam.

In recent weeks, there have been increased clashes in South Vietnam between government forces and the Viet Cong. Tank and large-scale infantry warfare has been raging in the Central Highlands 100 miles northeast of Saigon.

Scores of casualties have occurred in the Mekong Delta, and South Vietnamese warplanes have been bombing regularly.

White House and Pentagon officials have privately expressed growing concern of a renewed full outbreak of fighting, and Saigon reports of a possible major offensive by the Communists.

Kissinger and Tho last met June 11-13 when cease-fire violations were also rampant. As for the Dec. 20 meeting, Warren said:

"I am unable to be more specific at this time. The meeting was arranged by mutual consultations through mutual channels."

Kissinger is expected to fly to Paris after his current swing through the Mideast in an attempt to get peace talks going between the Arabs and Israelis and to solidify the cease-fire there.

Firefly Sought As Official Insect

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A bill designating the firefly as Pennsylvania's official insect was introduced yesterday.

The proposal originally came from third-grade students at the Highland Park Elementary School in State Rep. Frank Lynch's district. Lynch, who introduced the bill, also had supporting petitions signed by more than 2,000 voters.

Police Warned To Be Alert

BELFAST (UPI) — Authorities warned police today to stay on guard during off-duty hours because of a recent rash of attacks against officers across Northern Ireland.

In the latest attack against security forces, extremists set off a bomb last night in front of a police station in the town of Omagh, 25 miles southwest of Belfast.

Authorities said nobody was injured, but the police station was badly damaged and a block of office buildings and homes was set on fire.

Nixon Bares Tough Energy Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced today tough, new energy conservation measures ranging from cutting down office building lights to an edict requiring government officials to give up their limousines.

Making an appearance at a White House news conference held by his new energy adviser, William E. Simon, Nixon said he was encouraged by initial reports on the effect of energy conservation measures now in effect.

Gasoline consumption has dropped 15 per cent over the last three weeks, Nixon said.

Simon called the news conference to elaborate on the fuel allocation program he announced yesterday — including a morning announcement that gasoline production would be cut 25 per cent and a correction 10 hours later revising the reduction to 5 per cent.

The government expressed "total embarrassment" over what it said was a typographical error that went uncorrected throughout the day while stocks plummeted.

Nixon told reporters during his appearance in the White House press room —during which he did not submit to questions —that if cooperation among Americans continues, the nation will be able to deal with the energy crisis. These were among new conservation measures he announced:

Cutbacks in lighting for all commercial and industrial buildings including retail stores, factories and offices.

Highway lighting will be cut by half except for ramps and freeways.

Establish an industry energy audit committee to find ways to cut consumption.

By Jan. 1 use of limousines will be halted by all government officials, except for Nixon and Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

Federal agencies will be required to use "fuel efficient" cars and cut by 20 per cent the number of miles driven in connection with government work.

Thermostats in government buildings will be set at 65 to 68 during working hours and cut back to 55 degrees when the buildings are closed.

Simon said that the federal government reduced its energy consumption by 20 per cent during July, August and September and gasoline use by 27 per cent. Fuel oil use was trimmed by 15 per cent.

According to Simon the nation in the three weeks ending Nov. 30 was able to cut its use of crude oil by 1.1 million barrels a day. The latest figures on gasoline consumption showed a 15 per cent drop. The overall three week total for gasoline, heating oil, diesel fuel and jet fuel reached 29 per cent, Simon said.

"Everyone will sacrifice something but none will have to suffer," Nixon said. After appearing with Simon, Nixon met with a delegation of governors to push his energy program.

Nixon said he was optimistic about chances of approval shortly by Congress of emergency energy legislation. He predicted the bill would be passed before Congress recesses, possibly one week from today, until Jan. 21.

In other energy-related matters:

Shotgun blasts in Ohio and rock throwing in Pennsylvania punctuated an attempt by truckers in those states to stop work in protest of rising diesel fuel prices. The incidents involved truckers who continued to roll while others were involved in a "park-in."

British industry was placed on a three-day work week by the government in a bid to save dwindling fuel stocks in one of the gravest economic crises to hit England since the depression of the 1930s.

Some airline pilots were reported considering a protest strike during the heavily traveled weekend before Christmas to protest reduced fuel allocations which have caused layoffs that the airlines say will go over 25,000.

The airlines asked the government to reconsider its cut in jet fuel, saying the administration had "overstated" the shortage and in any event had shortchanged them.

Chrysler Corp said. 2,100 workers at two large assembly plants would be laid off beginning in early January, partly because of the energy shortage.

Thomas W. Gleason, president of the International Longshoreman's Association, said members of his union would refuse to load cargo on ships bound for Arab countries during the oil boycott.

Federal employes will be given four-day weekends over the Christmas and New Year holidays, making it possible to conserve some energy in federal buildings.

Ford asked American businessmen to "continue their sacrifice and cooperation" with the administration's fuel saving program.

William T. Slick, vice president of Exxon, told the resources committee of the National Governors' Conference in Washington that conservation and controls were fine to meet the temporary energy crisis but in the long run the United States had no choice but to boost production in its "oil and gas economy."

Belgian government sources said the European Common Market would discuss Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's call for a transatlantic crash program to ease the oil shortage when the market's leaders meet in a summit conference tomorrow and Saturday.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) authorized five Consolidated Edison power plants in New York and New Jersey to start burning heating oil and coal with higher sulphur content to meet temporary energy needs.

Closed Session

A closed meeting to discuss picking a new principal for Old Mill School will be held by the Mill Valley School District board tomorrow at 7 a.m. at Howard Johnson's restaurant on Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

$3.4 Million Ransom Payment To Getty Kidnapers Completed

ROME (UPI) — A $3.4 million ransom has been paid to the alleged kidnapers of J. Paul Getty III, grandson of the American oil billionaire, police sources said today.

"All of the money has now been paid," the sources close to the investigation said. "They are waiting from one moment to the next for him to be freed."

The ransom was paid in several installments to the alleged kidnapers who have kept young Getty more than five months and at one point sent a human ear to a Rome newspaper saying it would be followed by other parts of his body unless the ransom was paid.

Gail Harris, mother of young Getty, refused to comment on the report of the payment, insisting: "Nothing has changed. Everything is just as it was before."

Official police spokesmen refused to confirm or deny the final payment.

"I simply can't comment," Flying Squad Chief Fernando Masone said.

However, sources close to the investigation said that both the family and police were now awaiting word when and where young Getty would be released.

"The family has done its part," the sources said. "They have paid all the money and followed all the instructions. They are just waiting."

Mrs. Harris, the first wife of J. Paul Getty II, was described as confident that her son would be released soon.

The ransom is the highest ever paid for an individual, surpassing by more than $1 million the ransom paid almost exactly two years ago for West German supermarket owner Thomas Albrecht.

It was paid in installments since the very bulk of so large an amount of money in small notes would have taken a small truck to deliver.

The payment brought to the final stages one of the most bizarre kidnapings in modern memory and came just five months and four days after the 17-year-old J. Paul Getty III disappeared from a Rome piazza after arguing with three of his hippy friends.

The alleged kidnapers first asked for $17 million but later reduced the figure, first to $5.1 million and finally to $3.4 million.

Getty Sr., one of the world's wealthiest men, said throughout he would "not pay one cent" toward the ransom of his grandson. He said yielding to kidnapers would open his other 14 grandchildren to the danger of abduction.

Winds In Nevada

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — High winds in Western Nevada, with gusts up to 60 miles per hour last night and early today uprooted trees, broke windows and damaged roofs.

Strike Fund Voted Down By Miners

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Delegates to the United Mine Workers (UMW) union 46th constitutional convention yesterday voted down a plan to establish a strike fund and allow $50 per year emergency assessments to rank and file members.

Rejection of the dual fund raising tactic, which was engineered by the reform administration of union president Arnold Miller, left the membership dependent on the union's $64.5 million general fund for benefits in the event of a strike when the current coal industry contract expires next November.

Miller's administration suffered another serious setback Wednesday night when the convention demanded a change in the constitutional clause which disbands locals containing less than 10 active miners.

Under that clause, Miller has already ordered disbandment of pensioner or "dead" locals, many of which supported incumbent W. A. (Tony) Boyle in the union's international elections last December.

The resolution to form an eventual $100 million strike fund was defeated after two attempts to make it more palatable to the money conscious convention, which had approved Tuesday a dues increase of over 100 per cent to $12.

The $50 assessment measure was intended to allow the international to raise emergency funds without a secret ballot. The ballot is required by provisions of the Landrum-Griffin Labor Act unless waived by the membership.

Neither measure would have provided sufficient funds to weather the six-month strike Miller has predicted, but their defeats raised serious questions about support for Miller's administration.

However, many delegates indicated they rejected both economic resolutions because they feared their constituents, already stung by the dues hike, would rebel openly at any further assessments.

Berkeley Man Takes Fifth On Park Ranger's Slayer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Berkeley man on trial charged with bank robbery took the Fifth Amendment yesterday rather than tell jurors the name of the person who killed a park ranger.

Alan W. Veale, 24, had testified previously that he was present Aug. 5 when Kenneth Patrick, a National Forest Service park ranger, was slain at Point Reyes National Seashore.

Paul Harris, defense attorney, had told the jury in an opening statement that his client became so upset by the slaying that he robbed the Bank of America branch in Berkeley and gave away most of the money.

Judge William T. Sweigert, in U.S. District Court, had told Veale that constitutionally he didn't have to answer questions that might incriminate him in charges beyond the robbery.

Veale and Veronza Bowers, Jr., 27, are scheduled to go on trial Jan. 7 in the Patrick slaying.

Anderson Linked To Boys' Home

Kenneth A. Anderson, suspended Tamalpais High School teacher fighting in Marin courts for reinstatement, helped run a controversial home in Corte Madera for delinquent boys, it was learned yesterday.

The youth program, operating without a permit in Anderson's residence at 122 Willow Avenue, was stopped late last month by William McBride, town zoning administrator, when he learned of the operation, latest in series of controversial activities at that address.

In 1971, neighbors had complained to the city administration that the house on Willow Avenue was being used as a commune and headquarters for the revolutionary White Panther Party and later a distribution center for the Food Conspiracy, a marketing operation intended to get food to the poor at lower-than-market cost.

The program for delinquent youths operated by Anderson and his brother, Bruce, came under fire Monday, when Bruce Anderson went before the town planning commission to get the required permit. Met by neighborhood protest that the program amounted to importing problems and McBride's expression of doubt as to any benefit to the community, the permit application hearing was continued to Jan. 14.

The planning commission declared it wanted more information as to the purposes, staffing and background of the operation, known as the Fern Hill Group Home.

Bruce Anderson told the planning commission the Corte Madera operation was an adjunct to Fern Hill School he operates at Booneville, Mendocino County, a state licensed rehabilitation center for boys. Only youngsters who have successfully completed their stay there would move on to Corte Madera, he said.

McBride told the commission he had "grave doubts" as to the Andersons' "capacities, based on their histories." He said they "have not furnished recommendations or records of success with the delinquents.

The Tamalpais High School District has been trying for more than two years to fire Kenneth Anderson, an English teacher, and that effort is now under way in Marin Superior Court.

Testimony — categorically denied by Anderson — has been given that the teacher played a significant role in a series of bombings perpetrated by a student of his in the spring of 1971.

The student, Bruce P. Lohmann, in a deposition read in court this week, said Anderson knew he had bombed three buildings, including Tamalpais High School, and set two fires. According to Lohmann, the teacher merely cautioned him not to get caught.

Other testimony referred to alleged improprieties with a female student and detailed his sharing a cabin in Yosemite with a 15-year-old girl student, whom the 32-year-old teacher subsequently married.

The United States is Canada's principal trading partner. Each country is the other's best customer.

Anderson Evidence Compiled A Year

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Tamalpais High School District spent a year accumulating evidence to be used in the firing of teacher Kenneth A. Anderson, an administrator said yesterday.

The testimony of Raymond J. Bell, former principal at Tamalpais High School where Anderson taught English, came in the third day of a civil suit to fire the suspended instructor.

In some cases, Bell acknowledged minor infractions by Anderson were recorded but not for similar offenses by other teachers.

Bell said the district closely scrutinized Anderson from May 1970 to June 1971 to gather evidence to fire the tenured teacher.

In testimony supporting the district's contention that Anderson violated rules and policies, Bell said the teacher:

1. Gave his students "F" grades at midterm, then "A" grades for finals.

2. Showed a film and invited speakers into his class without first obtaining administrative approval.

3. Had a master key to the school, although teachers were not supposed to possess such keys.

During cross-examination by Anderson's attorney, Carl B. Shapiro, Bell acknowledged that giving "F" grades at midterm to shock students into improving their work wouldn't necessarily violate school policy.

But Bell said he never would have done the same thing when he taught shop, physical education and social studies.

An Attack Attempt Is Reported

A man, who matches the description of a rapist already sought in Southern Marin, tried to rape a 23-year-old Tiburon woman last night.

Tiburon Police Lt. Michael Manick said the woman was walking near the entrance to the Hilarita housing development about 9 p.m. when a man approached, threatened her with a three-inch knife and wrestled her to the ground.

The woman told police that she told the man she was an epileptic and needed to take a pill, but he ignored her. She said she then squirmed away and started screaming and he ran off.

Mannick said that police think the man may be the same one who raped another woman in Tiburon a few weeks ago. The man was described as white, with long brown hair, in his late 20s and about 5 feet, 8 inches tall.

Man Held For Attack On Woman

Sausalito police arrested a Daly City man last night in connection with the kidnap and rape of a 22-year-old cocktail waitress.

John Charles Spencer, 27, was held in county jail in lieu of $25,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

The woman identified Spencer as the man who offered her a ride Friday night from her Richardson Street home in Sausalito to her job in San Francisco, then forced her at gunpoint to drive with him to Mendocino County, police said.

She said she was raped repeatedly and forced to commit other sexual acts while she was a captive from 7:45 p.m. Friday through late Saturday, according to investigators. She said Spencer had previously made advances to her at the bar where she works, but was rebuffed.

Estudillo Elected

The Tiburon Fire Protection District board last night elected new officers for 1974 and selected Charles T. Estudillo as chairman, William J. Carter as vice chairman and Fred C. Hannahs as secretary.

Lester Flatt Is Alive And Well

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Grand Ole Opry star Lester Flatt says he is alive and well, despite reports indicating his death in the November issue of Esquire Magazine. Flatt has filed a $500,000 damage suit against the magazine for a paragraph his suit quotes as saying:

"(Earl) Scruggs and his partner, the late Lester Flatt, kept the banjo in the public eye with their tours, recording and the themes for 'The Beverly Hillbillies' and 'Bonnie and Clyde.'"

Flatt's attorney, Grant Smith, wrote Esquire after the issue appeared on newsstands, "advising the defendant that the reference to 'the late Lester Flatt' is absolutely false and defamatory," the complaint said.

Car Pools Will Still Pay Tolls

A proposal to exempt commuter car pools from tolls on the Golden Gate Bridge was shelved indefinitely today by a committee of bridge district directors.

The finance-auditing committee agreed unamiously the proposal should not be considered until tolls are hiked and it can be seen whether gas shortages will increase car pooling without eliminating the toll.

The proposal made last week by the district's transportation committee calls for free tolls for cars carrying three or more persons between six and 10 a.m. on weekdays. The transportation committee had urged a six-month test, figuring it would cost about $120,000 in lost tolls.

The staff reported that in a recent count of more than 20,000 cars crossing the bridge southbound during commuter hours, only 606 carried three or more persons and 306 four or more.

Local Tax Exemptions Take Welfare Beating

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state welfare exemption for certain nonprofit hospitals and religious and charitable properties cost local governments $107.3 million in tax revenues during the current fiscal year, according to the state Board of Equalization.

The board yesterday said the value of property exempted "has increased over the last 10 years at an annual rate of 18.4 per cent and it urged the Legislature to review the exemption amendment.

The increase was attributed to "the tendency of the courts to interpret the language of the welfare exemption very liberally, so that certain nonprofit activities that would have been considered as less than charitable when the people approved the 1914 amendment" now qualify.

In a unanimously passed resolution, the board said that due to the court decision it and county assessors "find it impossible to administer the welfare exemption according to the original dictates of the people."

The resolution also noted that with the annual increase in the property tax burden on property owners, "a restructuring of the welfare exemption is appropriate and necessary to assure an equitable distribution of the tax burdens of the state."

The board said the properties in question had a real and personal property market value of $3.85 billion, which if taxable would produce $107.3 million of revenue for the use of local government.

The board also asked the legislature to "define the scope of exemption" by listing what it considers of a religious or charitable nature and defining the amount of property necessary for the operation of the organization.

Planning Group Picks Chairman

The results of the election by mail ballot sent to members was announced at the group's meeting Tuesday night.

Troop Cutback Session In Recess

VIENNA (UPI) — East-West negotiators on mutual troop cutbacks broke for Christmas and New Year vacations today and announced they would resume efforts to reach agreement Jan. 15.

The official announcement was the first by either the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) or the Warsaw Pact since discussions on cutting forces in Central Europe began Oct. 30.

Release Of School Fund Is Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has lost another round in his attempt to cut federal spending by refusing to spend Congressionally ordered appropriations.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson yesterday ordered the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to release to state elementary and secondary schools $20 million in funds impounded by the administration.

Nixon last January impounded funds for education, water pollution control, highway construction and other congressional appropriations as a stated move against inflation. Yesterday's action was the latest in a series of court rulings holding Nixon's impoundment of funds is illegal.

Robinson, in a 20-page memorandum outlining a summary judgment, ruled that HEW must apportion to the states all funds Congress appropriated for state elementary and secondary schools for fiscal 1973.

Robinson said he had fully reviewed HEW's arguments for withholding the funds and found "they are without merit and do not warrant further discussion."

Interim Financing Suggested For Mental Health Facilities

The Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin yesterday called for interim financing to keep more mental health facilities from foundering.

Joan Ripple, council executive secretary, said council members discussed "at length" the financial problems that resulted in closing the Marin Mental Health Foundation clinic in Ross and other facilities. The problems arise from nonpayment or delayed payment of funds from supporting public agencies, which now require an individual contract for service to each patient. Former "block grant" financing has been discontinued, she said.

The council also adopted priorities for future projects, giving first attention to the need for more services for patients who no longer need acute care, but still need a lower level of care. This could include convalescing elderly patients, whose financial plight was reported in an Independent-Journal series in November.

The council will also study the need for more children's medical services in Marin, and continue planning for emergency neighborhood care, Miss Ripple said.

The council changed the date of its next business meeting to Jan. 16, to make way for the annual meeting Jan. 9.

Live Christmas Trees Wanted

The Belvedere Parks and Recreation Commission has asked that live Christmas trees which are no longer wanted be donated to the city after Christmas.

Shirley Backen, commission secretary, said the potted trees can be taken to the city's corporation yard.

She said the commission is also seeking the donation of a used stove to use in a Chinese cooking class being organized as part of a joint Belvedere-Tiburon adult education program at Tiburon School.

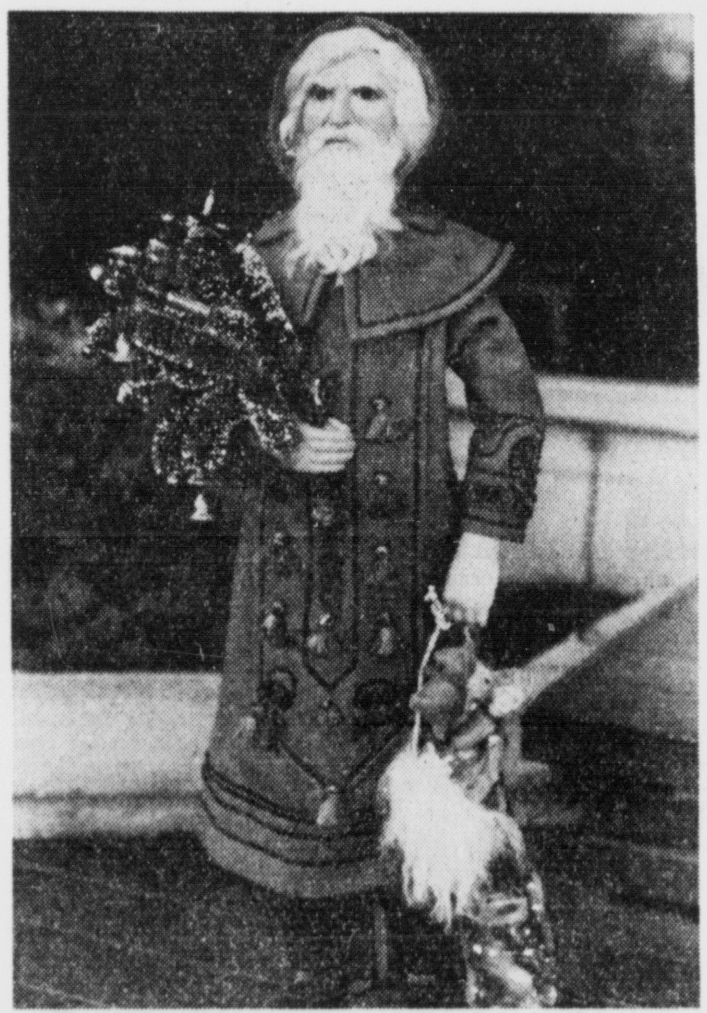
Marin Women

THE CHRISTMAS SEASON AGAIN

Nurses Marian Weber (left) and Marcia Dalbey decorate a Christmas tree in the intensive care unit of Ross General Hospital. The tree was donated by the family of nurse Linda Sheppard, and the ornaments were brought by other nurses. In the past the nurses have done little decoration in the intensive care unit but this year wanted to add color and cheer, according to nurse Regina Rosen. They will have a party Tuesday for staff and patients who have gone home.

ONE OF Marin's long-time Christmas event, the Marin Festival of Trees, opened the holiday season the first weekend in December. The two-day event attracted approximately 8,500 persons and netted more than $22,000 for the Boyd Marin Museum of Science. The tree in the foreground was decorated by Suzanne LaNoue of San Rafael and sold to a motorcycle shop in Corte Madera for $300.

LAST MINUTE preparations have been done by members of the Decorations Guild of the Marin Art and Garden Center (from left) Mmes. Charles E. Behrens, R. L. Tuckey and Norbert J. Mages for the guild's 26th annual Greens Sale to be held tomorrow through Sunday at the center in Ross. The women have made wreaths, swags, plaques, kissing balls, yule logs and centerpieces and accent pieces out of dried cones, pods, seeds, grasses, shells and other natural materials.



ST. NICHOLAS was at the 101 Doll and Study Club show earlier this month in the form of a wax doll. Clutching a Christmas tree and a sock full of toys, the 29-inch doll has a wax head and hands with inset glass eyes. The doll was made five years ago by Lewis Sorenson of Los Angeles, who makes figures for wax museums. Peeking out of the sock (right) is the head of an English wood doll made about 1870.

Lily Tomlin To Be Feted On Sunday

An open house for guests to meet comedienne and actress Lily Tomlin will be held Sunday from 2:30 to 5 p.m. at the home of Frankie Brown, 70 Via Cheparro, in Greenbrae.

Sponsor is the National Women's Political Caucus-Marin. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served and tickets will be available at the entrance, said Jean Wasp, press coordinator.

HELEN HELP US!

Younger Sister Who Lost One Knows What Older Sister Is

RAP: ——————

I wrote this when I couldn't sleep the other night:

WHAT IS AN OLDER SISTER?

An older sister is a little girl who awaits your arrival and is glad you're a girl so she'll have someone to play house with.

She is someone you fight with all through grade school.

An older sister is one you protect when someone is picking on her, even though you are smaller.

She introduces all her junior high friends to you as "My bratty sister," but with pride.

She's the one who takes you to the movies, even if she's with her boyfriend, and lets you know it's fun having you with them.

. . .And when she and her steady guy break up after two years, you feel guilty and bad.

. . .And when she makes the choir you are prouder than she.

An older sister is a senior who introduces you as a sophomore "Mickey Mouse" sister — and sees to it they accept you.

She is the one you wait up for so she can tell you all about her date.

. . .And then you wait up half the night, only to discover that she is in a coma at the hospital. There was a bad accident on the freeway. . .

It's not showing your emotions when trying to calm your parents, but the minute you get to your room, crying your eyes out.

It's waiting in the hospital, praying she will live.

Then. . .

Getting the news that she never felt any pain, just died in her sleep.

It's her many, many friends, crying at the funeral.

And finally, it's her friends trying to make you smile again, and you not wanting to, but trying. . .just because you know your older sister would want you smiling again. — A YOUNGER SISTER, KAREN

RAP:

Is there room for one more opinion on why graduates of the seething '60s were "different." I feel the big reason wasn't drugs, but the Vietnam War. Students lost respect for an America that sent them to die (or to jail) for no justifiable cause.

The late sixties generation lived in an illusion that they could create a total peace and love society if they could overcome "the establishment." When they learned it wasn't possible, they became apathetic. They felt overpowered and manipulated, and whenever they tried to rebel, the tear gas — even the guns — came.

They were reacting because they had so much awareness and feeling —at first. But when they realized their dreams were illusions, there was nothing left but empty shells and apathy. I know, because I've — "BEEN THERE"

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My husband graduated in 1969 — from college. He was a pacifist, an activist in student rebellion, the works. And he became the best darn teacher around!

Since he and his college generation won most of their battles with society —and considerably changed many elders' ways of thinking — they came out of the turbulent sixties in good shape.

But it was the high school kids during the period who took the beating. They weren't old enough to be noticed, yet were old enough to face the draft; they discovered the college crowd's drugs, and abused their use; they felt all the powerlessness and got very little of the action —and by the time they were old enough, the action was over. I know how it was because I was one of them, but luckily I met my husband and now everything's — OKAY AGAIN

New Idea For School Gift-Giving

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Some months ago, this writer asked readers to tell what they had done about holiday gifts for teachers. Some weeks later we reported the responses.

Teachers were in favor of receiving gifts. Parents favored giving gifts to those teachers who either needed or deserved them. The pupils who wrote in were generally not in favor of the practice.

A number of teachers wrote that the giving of gifts to them (as teachers) was really a lesson for the pupils in the joy of giving.

It was not surprising that the pupils who wrote in saw through that logic. But many indicated that the withholding of a gift from such a teacher could make school life pretty rough for the remainder of the school year.

SOME READERS said there was a no-gift-giving policy at their schools, or that children and teachers provided gifts for needy families. As one would suspect, there appears to be more gift-giving in the elementary grades than in junior-senior high schools.

Neighborhoods differ. And the sensitive, loving teacher makes a considerable effort to help all the children feel comfortable about gift-giving. But it would seem that a teacher who has been in the habit of receiving a class gift or individual gifts might re-examine her or his motives and possibly forego this "token" of appreciation.

One teacher wrote in that she gave every pupil a "gift certificate" which could be redeemed once during the remainder of the school year in lieu of a completed homework assignment. And from each child in her classes, she expected some special assignment to be done and labeled "a gift for the teacher."

We like that. The gifts in that exchange really are more blessed to give than receive. And they don't cost money. They don't pit one pocketbook against another. In each case, it's the student, individually, who decides what to do.

Here are some more gift ideas which cost little or no money, yet which help children learn to be unselfish and thoughtful:

TWO CLASSES, including the teachers, might exchange gifts. For example, there might be an exchange between a third and fourth grade. Bobby, in Grade four, would choose or be assigned to make a gift for Tommy in Grade three. Bobby would make up a story, illustrate it, put a cover on, be sure that the words weren't too hard for a third-grader, and give it as a gift.

Tommy, for his part, might offer to help Bobby with a homework assignment — for example, sometime when Bobby has to find, mount and correctly label 10 different kinds of leaves.

And to make the exchange complete, the fourth-grade teacher might teach an art lesson for her colleague while the third-grade teacher is taking the fourth-grade class on a nature walk.

The children might offer to help workers one day at the firehouse or Salvation Army when they are preparing toys as gifts to families in need.

The teacher and the pupils in a class might do something to make the school building itself more useful or more beautiful. They might clean up one of the storerooms or a corner of the playground or help the secretary with an inventory of the supply room.

A class might offer to read to patients in a nursing home or to folks in a retirement home. The children might send cards to charity patients in state and local institutions. The possibilities are legion.

Science Kits Great Gifts For The Young

NEW YORK (UPI) — That young person on your gift list leans to things scientific? There are lots of choices in toyland.

For children ages 6 to 12 there is a magnetic science kit from Electronic Data Controls Corp. "The How and Why of Magnets and Magnetism" includes do-it-yourself experiments.

Included are materials to build an electromagnet, a 40-pound bar magnet, plus an assortment of magnets and magnetic materials with detailed experiments and directions.

It's hard to go wrong with the science gift classics — such things as: engine kits, anatomical kits, botany science kits, insect and reptile kits, nuclear submarine kits, aircraft carrier kits.

The kits from Renwal, a division of The Learning Aids Group Inc., also include the visible auto chassis. The most famous of these kits are the visible man and the visible woman.

Long considered one of the finest and most popular hobby kits ever devised, the visible man owes his perennial popularity to faithful detailing. At least one model of the "man" can be found in most schools. Adults also can learn a lot about their innards when there's a visible man or woman on the premises.

Another good kit is one called The Senses. Actually it is five assembly kits in one: two transparent eyes and the muscles that move them, two ears, showing details of the inner ear, and a model that shows the tongue and the organs of the throat.

The throat organs include esophagus (food pipe), the trachea (wind pipe) and the vocal cords, the strong muscles surrounding these organs and the thyroid glands.

Secrets of plant life are revealed to the student in a botany science kit that shows in large detail the many layers of cells which manufacture the food needed by the plant.

Plight Of Women In Today's World

By JOAN HANAUER
U.P. International

In the Soviet Union a woman can become an astronaut, but in Sicily and Sardinia she's lucky if she is allowed out of the house to do the marketing.

In some parts of Asia, women are so liberated they do the heaviest work at construction sites, but Japan remains a man's land.

And Latin America still is the home of "machismo," although in Mexico, at least, the government wishes men wouldn't measure their manliness by the number of children they produce.

Around the world, women's liberation is a mixed bag, complicated by religion, custom and in some cases lack of interest on the part of the majority of women.

WESTERN EUROPE, where the society most closely resembles that of the United States, also has a Women's Liberation movement most like that found here. And some progress is being made.

There are three parts to the women's movement in Europe. There is the demand for equal job opportunity and equal pay for equal work. Then there is the controversy over childbearing, with both contraception and abortion controversial in strongly Roman Catholic countries. And there's the comparatively simple issue of the right to vote.

While women's suffrage has been accomplished in all the major countries, progress comes slower in the tiny principalities, as in Liechtenstein last February when the men defeated women's suffrage by a vote of 2,128 to 1,675 in a national referendum.

In the matter of job equality, on Nov. 27 the European Common Market called for an end to existing discrimination against women and directed its nine member nations — Britain, France, Belgium, West Germany, Holland, Luxembourg, Ireland, Italy and Denmark — to pass equal pay laws by next April 1.

Last July the market had singled out Holland and Luxembourg for particular criticism because of pay inequality. But the fact remains that in every country west of the Iron Curtain women receive less pay than men. In Finland, a pioneer country which granted equal rights to women in 1906, 42.1 per cent of the work force is female but a woman's paycheck often is only 75-80 per cent of her male counterpart's.

In Britain, an equal pay act goes into force Jan. 31, 1975, and women who believe they are not receiving equal pay will be able to take their case to the Ministry of Employment. Income Data Services, an organization that monitors industrial pay, reported recently that of 84 British industries polled, 49 were paying women less than 90 per cent of men's wages.

THE FEMALE work force varies greatly from country to country — 46 per cent in France, 33 per cent in Belgium and Germany, down to 13 per cent in Spain.

While women still are scarce in the professions in Europe, an increasing number are finding careers as lawyers, doctors, economists and engineers, and most governments include several women as members of parliament, cabinet ministers, deputies and mayors.

Abortion is a sensitive subject in the European women's movement — it is legal only in non-Roman Catholic England, sometimes called "the abortion capital of Europe," and more recently in Austria. A few countries do permit abortion if the mother's life is in danger and similar laws are pending in others.

Lili Boeykins, a guiding light of several Belgian women's organizations and herself the mother of three children, said, "We must have a free choice to have children or not have children," but she adds, "All Belgium movements agree to a point that abortion is a solution in emergencies only. You must try with contraception."

Custom and tradition go a long way toward limiting women's rights, particularly in rural areas and in the traditionally patriarchal countries of southern Europe.

In rural France, some husbands won't let their wives learn to drive cars and forbid them checkbooks. The men of Sicily and Sardinia often lock their women up at home and do the marketing themselves because of a jealousy-based custom. And in Portugal a tile often hangs in the home which reads, "The woman rules the home, the man rules the woman."

NO SUCH male chauvinism exists in Eastern Europe, where discrimination against women is outlawed and which boasts some of the highest percentages of female professional workers receiving equal pay in the world.

But even in the Soviet Union, on the face of it a woman worker's paradise in which opportunities in male strongholds from ditchdigging to doctoring are unlimited, the Russian working wife is expected to do the household chores as well as hold down her equal job for equal pay.

In the world's other Communist giant, the People's Republic of China, Chairman Mao Tse-tung spoke of the need to liberate women in 1927 and equality of the sexes is incorporated in the state constitution.

At the 10th National Congress of the Communist party, held last August, about 20 per cent of the 1,249 delegates were women. When the Congress elected a 319-member central committee, 33 were women, two of whom were elected to the 25-member Political Bureau.

In the rest of Asia, contrary to popular myth, are some of the most liberated women in the world. Two of the world's three female heads of state are Indira Ghandi of India and Sirimayo Bandaranaike of Sri Lanka, Ceylon. The third is Israel's Golda Meir. Women hold cabinet positions in nearly every Asian government, a woman sits on the Supreme Court in the Philippines, and the male-female enrollment at most Asian universities is 50-50.

Top Award For Agnew Story

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jerry Landauer, the Wall Street Journal Washington reporter who broke the story on scandals which led to the resignation of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, has been named winner of the Drew Pearson Foundation's award for excellence in investigative reporting.

Landauer was invited to receive the $5,000 cash prize today at an awards luncheon at the National Press Club.

In addition to the Landauer award, two $1,000 honorable mention prizes will go to Robert Pierpont and Ed Fouhy of CBS for their reporting of the Charles (Bebe) Rebozo Key Biscayne bank charter story and to Ward Sinclair of the Louisville Courier-Journal for his reporting of the United Mine Workers scandals.

Another $1,000 award for "general excellence in reporting" will be given to Clark Mollenhoff, White House correspondent for the Des Moines Register.

Santa Pulled By 'Fish On Brooms'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three-year-old Danielle Luzzati was asked about Santa's reindeer yesterday in a man-in-the-street interview.

"Santa don't have no reindeer," she replied. "His sleigh is pulled by three fish riding on four brooms."

Young Ted Kennedy Hears From Fellow Leg Amputee

SHELTON, Conn. (UPI) — "Dear Ted," the letter reads.

"My name is Michael Bourque and I'm 11 years old. I had my right leg amputated Oct. 9 because of bone cancer."

"Ted" is Edward M. Kennedy Jr., 12, and he also had his leg amputated because of bone cancer.

Michael, who returned to his sixth-grade class this week on crutches, said he wrote the letter to the son of U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to "cheer him up" following his operation last month.

"I'm getting along real good on my crutches," the letter said. "The doctor also gave me the good news that I can have an artificial leg."

Michael's mother, Grace Bourque, said the boy becomes discouraged sometimes and his leg hurts when it rains, but "he tries to hide his feeling by being boisterous.

Michael learned he had bone cancer this fall. He spent two weeks at Yale New Haven Hospital.

His mother said Michael climbed the stairs at home within three hours after coming home.

"Michael makes it easier, he's so outgoing," said Mrs. Borque, whose husband Joseph works at a lumber company.

"He accepted it right away. The fact that his uncle lost both legs and is using two artificial legs successfully has helped a great deal.

"Sometimes, I cry when I go to bed at night, but Michael helps a lot. He brings out the best in people. He cheers me up. He doesn't let this thing stop him. He won't let it stop him."

Innis, Shockley Finally Stage A Debate On Black Mentality

Shockley said his conclusions were only tentative, but urged that they be tested by "modern scientific methods."

He cited statistics which he said indicated a relationship between the amount of white blood and average IQ. Blacks with a greater percentage of white ancestry — as indicated by skin color and blood tests — are more intelligent than those with a lesser percentage, Shockley said.

And, he said, poorer blacks, with lower average intelligences, are reproducing in greater numbers than black college graduates, he said, causing the gap to widen further, to the detriment of future generations of blacks.

Innis attacked Shockley as the heir to racist theories of the past. What is "questionable", Innis said, is not the intelligence of blacks but the intelligence of those who question it.

Innis conceded that lighter skinned blacks of "obvious mixed ancestry" do form "a disproportionate share" of black American leaders and intellectuals. "But it is a social environmental phenomena and has nothing to do with inherited intelligence," he said.

Blacks score lower on IQ tests because they have been deprived by their environment, Innis argued, especially in the area of political power. He repeatedly returned to the view that black IQ test scores are affected not only by cultural and economic deprivation, but by "sociopolitical deprivation" — lack of power over their own lives and communities.

Shockley, a Stanford University physicist, won the Nobel Prize for his part in developing the transistor. His critics say that he is outside his field of expertise in discussing genetics.

Shockley answers that he has brought a scientifically trained mind to research into a subject shunned as too controversial and dangerous by other investigators.

A scheduled debate at the Harvard Law School Forum was canceled because officials feared demonstrations, and Innis refused to take part in a debate at Princeton when he learned it would be closed to the public.

Shockley again repeated his proposal that persons with IQs below the average, 100, be offered cash payments to be sterilized, but said the program should be voluntary.

Innis called the proposal "genocidal" and said the figures, statistics and IQ tests cited by Shockley were the work of "pseudo scientists, politically motivated scientists."

FUEL NO WHIRRY

The driver of this little electric van has no worry about the fuel shortage as he whirrs along the streets of Los Angeles in his battery-powered vehicle. But the van is not a child of the energy crisis. It has been used by its builder, American Smelting and Refining Co., since 1969. It's nonpolluting, doesn't contribute to the gasoline shortage and costs only about a penny a mile to operate.

Phone Tax Protest Ruling Set

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Antiwar Marin County residents who refused to pay a federal telephone tax during the Vietnam war, have taken their legal battle to the appellate division of the U.S. District Court here.

A three-judge panel consisting of Chief Justice Richard Chambers and District Judges J. Clifford Wallace and James Carter, yesterday heard oral arguments in the case and said a decision would be issued later.

The war tax challenge earlier was thrown out by U.S. District Judge Robert E. Schnacke, who held the group had no legal standing for a class action. His ruling was appealed to the higher panel..

In 1971, several hundred Marin County residents — and others throughout California, — refused to pay a 10 per cent excise tax on their phone bills. They said the tax was unconstitutional because it helped finance a war that hadn't been legally declared.

Marin spokesmen at the time reported that $23,000 had been placed in a trust fund instead of paid to the Internal Revenue Service through Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. Charles Wallace of San Anselmo, one of the spokesmen, protested in 1972 that the IRS was harassing him by questioning neighbors about him; others reported that IRS officials had slapped liens on their bank accounts and wages to collect the taxes claimed due. Federal tax agents confirmed the reports.

Offspring Must Help Needy Parents

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Adult offspring have a legal responsibility to contribute to the support of their needy parents, the California Supreme Court declared yesterday in a 4 to 2 decision.

The opinion upheld validity of parts of the Old Age Security Law, which requires such contributions on a fixed schedule and which gives counties granting aid to parents legal authority to collect any amounts due.

A class action filed by two San Joaquin county widows and their children stemmed from a 1971 Welfare Reform Act which sharply raised the scale an adult child must pay towards the parent's support.

Illia Huntley, 88, and her son, Howard, 60, and Bieuky Dykstra, 78, and her son Julius, challenged the validity of sections of the Old Age Law requiring such support. The sons contended they couldn't afford to pay the higher support fixed by the 1971 law.

Huntley said he and his wife had a net income of $656 a month and he couldn't pay the required $70 a month toward his mother's support. Dykstra said he couldn't afford a $75 payment after paying family bills, including a $180 a month child support and a $145 a month rent.

Before the welfare reform act went into effect Oct. 1, 1971, a two-member family with $651 to $700 net monthly income had to contribute $10 support to an aged needy parent. After Oct. 1 the contribution was set at $70. On March 21, 1973, after the suit was filed, the scale was decreased a bit for lower income categories.

Justice Raymond Sullivan, in the majority opinion, said relatives' responsibility laws have a longstanding history in California. He said the duty to support poor parents first was codified in the state in 1872 and can be traced back to the 1601 Elizabethan Poor Law.

The duty, he went on, existed before and was independent of any duties arising out of state aid to the aged. Laws imposing liability upon adult offspring of persons getting aid, "merely selected a class of relatives who were otherwise legally responsible for the support of their parents," he said.

Ram Replaces The Two Slain

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An adult bighorn sheep ram has been released in the special 1,100-acre bighorn preserve in Lava Beds National Monument after being captured in Nevada by biologists.

The animal will replace in the enclosure two other rams shot and killed by vandals and hopefully will be able to mate with some 15 ewes, state fish and game officials said today.

Firing a tranquilizer dart from a helicopter., biologists captured the ram 135 miles east of the monument in the Sheldon-Hart Antelope Refuge.

Yanks Sign A's Williams

The move by the Yankees appeared to be designed to force the hand of Oakland A's owner Charley Finley, who has been threatening to sue if the New York team signed Williams without giving him compensation.

"We have waited long enough," said Yankee club president Gabe Paul, "to wait further would jeopardize the Yankees' chances of success in 1974 and therefore would be unfair to our fans."

Williams still has two years left on his managerial contract with Finley and the A's but he publicly resigned on national TV after the seventh game of the World Series last October. Williams claims that Finley thus publicly gave him his release from the contract, but Finley says he did not.

Williams signed a contract with the Yankees for the next three seasons to become the 19th manager in the club's 72-year history. He succeeds Ralph Houk, who resigned after the final day of the regular season and later signed with Detroit.

Finley must now decide whether he'll make good on his threat to take the Yankees to court.

Paul said, "after many delays caused by our attempting unsuccessfully to obtain a ruling from the American League office on Houk's signing with the Tigers and the Yankees desire to obtain Williams as its manager, our club felt it was in the best interest of the Yankees to obtain Williams without any further delay."

The Yankees are the third team Williams has managed. His first major league managerial job was at Boston in 1967 when he was given the job after two seasons at Toronto of the International League.

In his first season with the Red Sox, he led the team to their "impossible dream" of '67 when they jumped from ninth to first in one of the great comebacks in baseball history and carried the St. Louis Cardinals to seven games in the World Series before losing.

In 1968, the Red Sox slipped to fourth and in 1969, when the club came in third, he was replaced on Sept. 23 after having his differences with owner Tom Yawkey.

After spending the 1970 season as a coach under Gene Mauch at Montreal, he was hired by Charley Finley in 1971 to manage the Oakland A's.

He enjoyed much success with the A's, piloting them to three straight Western Division titles and two straight World Series. No other manager has lasted three consecutive years with Finley and his contract was renewed for two more years during the summer.

Williams, who was born in St. Louis, graduated from high school in Pasasdena, Calif. and now lives in West Palm Beach, Fla.

He started his playing career in 1947 with Santa Barbara, Calif., and came up to the Dodgers in 1951. Williams was on the bench when Bobby Thomson hit his famous homer to beat the Dodgers in the playoffs that season.

A shoulder injury ruined his chances for a standout major league career and he wound up with a .260 lifetime average in 1,023 games with the Dodgers, Orioles, Kansas City A's, the Orioles a second time and finally the Red Sox. He spent the 1963 and 1964 seasons with Boston before retiring as a player and starting his managing career at Toronto in 1965.

Cappelletti Wins Pair Of Honors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Running back John Cappelletti of Penn State, the catalyst behind the Nittany Lions' undefeated season, today added two more awards to his growing collection when he was named the United Press International's college football Back and Player of the Year.

The 6-foot-1, 206-pound All-America senior, who earlier this month won the Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding player, is the first Penn State player ever to win either UPI honor, but unlike his one-sided victory in the Heisman voting, he received some stiff competition in each category.

In a balloting of 150 sportswriters and sportscasters from across the nation, Cappelletti received 52 votes for Back of the Year to beat out sophomore Archie Griffin of Ohio State by a mere 14 votes. Junior Roosevelt Leaks of Texas was third with 26 votes and freshman Tony Dorsett finished fourth with 16 votes.

Cappelletti's margin of victory in the Player of the Year voting was equally as slim. The Penn State star got 38 votes while linebacker Randy Gradishar of Ohio State finished second with 24 votes. Offensive tackle John Hicks of Ohio State, winner of UPI's Lineman of the Year award, finished third with 14 votes and Leaks and running back Kermit Johnson of UCLA tied for fourth with 12 votes.

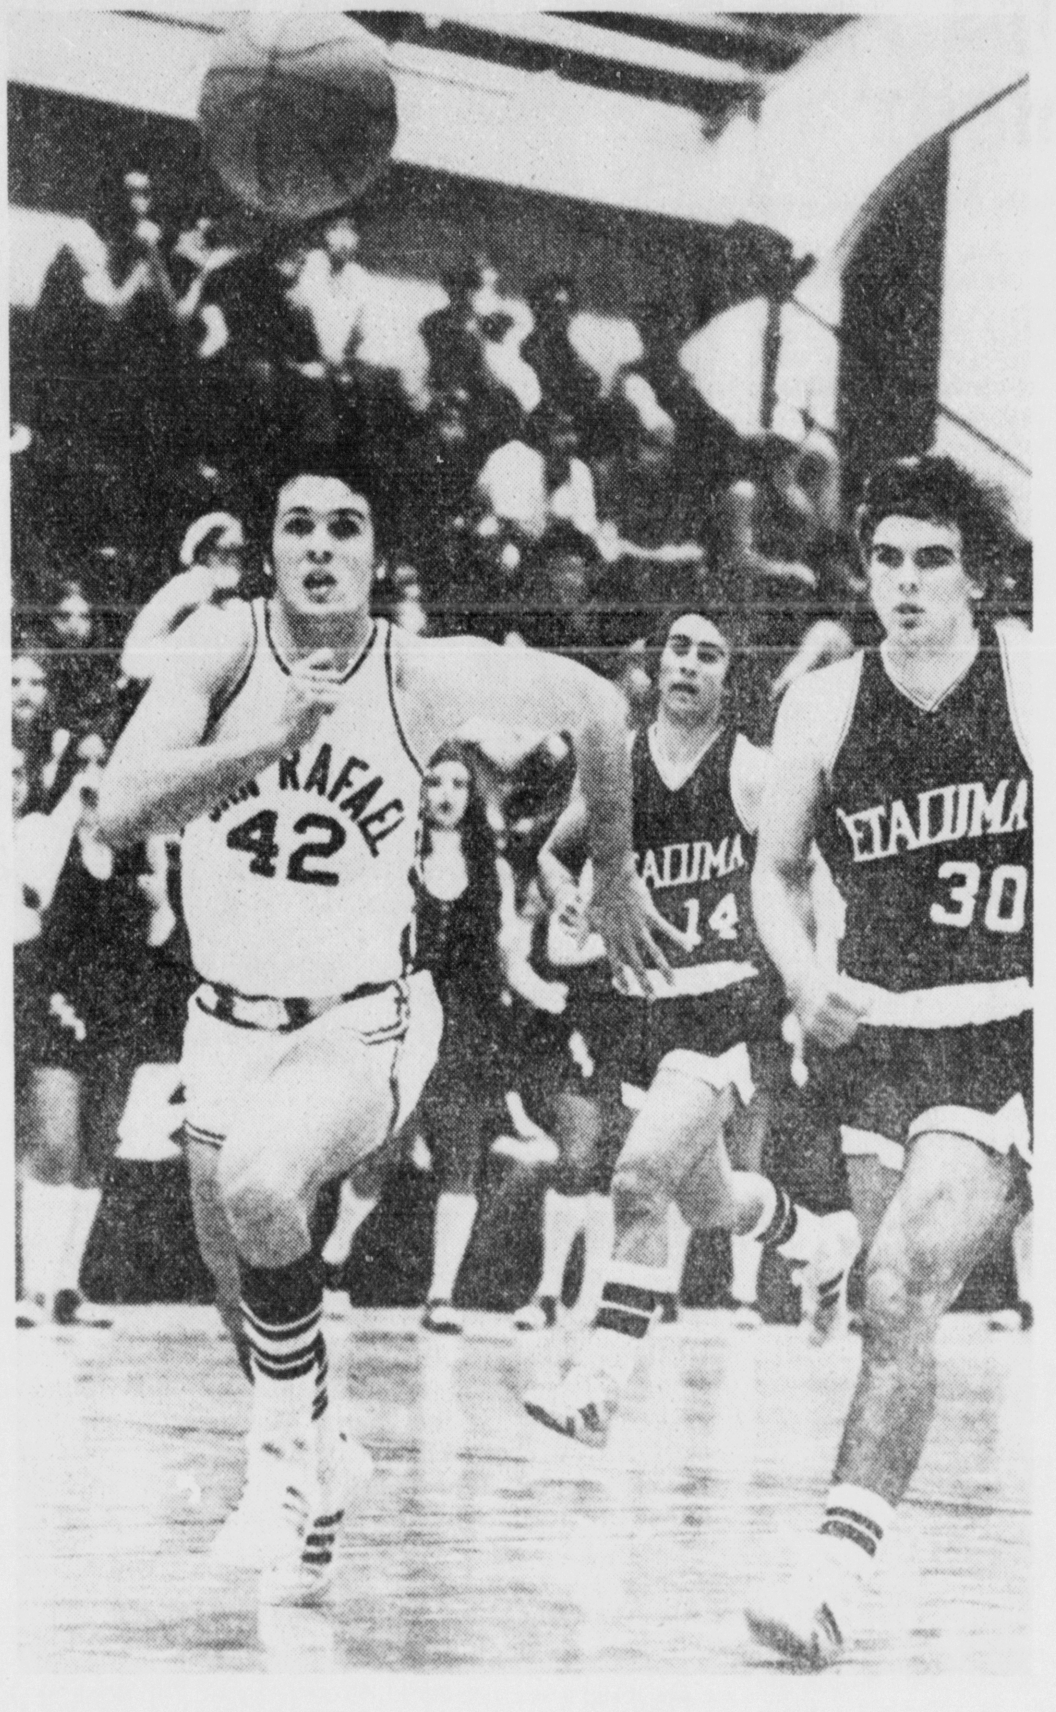
Cappelletti, called by his coach Joe Paterno "the best football player I've ever been around," finished fifth in the nation in rushing this season with an average of 138.4 yards per game and was fourth in scoring with 17 touchdowns and an average of 9.3 points per contest.

The husky fullback from Upper Darby, Pa., gained more than 100 yards in eight of Penn State's 11 games and three times went over 200 yards. His best effort came against North Carolina State when he rushed for 220 yards and three touchdowns.

Cappelletti was a defensive back in his sophomore year, but in his two seasons as a running back he gained 2,639 yards, caught 22 passes for 207 yards and scored 30 touchdowns. The Nittany Lions, undefeated in 11 games this season, have lost only two games in two seasons with Cappelletti at fullback.

"John Cappelletti is the best football player I've ever been around," Paterno said earlier this year.

San Rafael, Novato Victorious



THE CHASE — San Rafael High School Steve D'Ambra (42) last night led Petaluma rivals Dan Pacheco (14) and Rick Schroeder after a loose ball during a Drake Pirate Classic basketball opener in San Anselmo. San Rafael won, 65-46.

More First-Round Cage Play Tonight

By TOM THOMPSON

The Drake Pirate Classic basketball tournament began last night with two Marin teams surprising out-of-county opponents by impressive margins.

Novato High School opened the tournament by whipping Richmond's Harry Ells, 71-61, and San Rafael followed by dumping Petaluma, 65-46.

Tonight, opening-round action continues, with Terra Linda taking on San Marin at 5 p.m., and Napa challenging defending champion and host Drake at 6:30.

San Rafael's defense proved to be the difference, holding the high-scoring Trojans under 50 points. Petaluma had averaged 75 points in its first four games, which were all victories. San Rafael won its second game in five non-league starts.

"It was all defense: super defense," beamed winning coach Bret Tovani. "Everybody did a hell of a job."

The Bulldogs also dominated the boards, bringing down 40 rebounds to Petaluma's 16. Center Byron Stewart tallied 22 caroms while scoring a game-leading 18 points.

The first half was nip and tuck all the way with neither team leading by more than a basket, and San Rafael taking a 29-27 edge into the locker room. It was a different story after that however, as the Bulldogs, substituting heavily, began pulling away in the third quarter.

After San Rafael's Gary Paterson sank a field goal at the buzzer to end the third period, making the score 44-33, the Trojans couldn't get any closer. Petaluma struggled in the second half, shooting only 27 per cent from the floor, while San Rafael shot 60 per cent. The Trojans got only six rebounds after intermission.

Led by George Diruscio's 24 points, Novato (5-0) kept its undefeated record intact by overcoming Falcon Willie Washington's 26 points and Ell's physical play.

Diruscio, a junior guard playing as a starter in place of injured Dave Brazell, received praise from his coach, Jim Caranica, "He did a good job of filling in for Brazell.

Novato made the key baskets against the Falcons, who never led but stayed close before the final moments. The Hornets held a seven-point halftime lead

Brodie Goes All Way Vs. Steelers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Coach Dick Nolan has changed his mind and now says John Brodie will start and go all the way at quarterback Saturday when the San Francisco 49ers host Pittsburgh.

Nolan had announced on Tuesday that Brodie, playing the last game of his 17-year career, would only play a series or two and then give way to Steve Spurrier.

Yesterday, Nolan said "my first thought was to play John briefly, which would give the fans a chance to give him the recognition he deserves, and also would not expose him to injury or the possibility of a bad performance that would mar his retirement.

"I later found out that John was interested in playing the whole game, and if that's the way John wants it, that's the way it will be.

"Also," concluded the San Francisco coach, "I figure what does John have to prove anyway. He's had a great 17 years."

Full Day's Pay For A Full Day's Work

Forty-Niner quarterback John Brodie now has a chance to bow out of football in grand style and it is only fitting he was granted his wish to go all the way Saturday against the Pittsburgh Steelers at Candlestick Park.

When coach Dick Nolan's decision to allow Brodie playing time in only the first two series of the game hit the radio airwaves Tuesday evening the boos started gurgling from the throats of fans who have watched John throw passes up and down the field at Candlestick and at Kezar Stadium before that. Seventeen years is a long time.

Nolan had planned to allow fans some cheering time by sending in Brodie for two series and pulling him out midway in the second one. The nearly unanimous reaction from fans was anger. They wanted Brodie to have his day on the field, a full day. The cheering could come later, say late in the fourth quarter.

The story broke just before the last meeting of the Marin Chapter, 49er Goal Rushers, and there was a lot of shaking of heads when it was discussed. About the only man in the banquet room at New Joe's who agreed with Nolan was the evening's guest speaker, middle linebacker Jim Sniadecki. As defensive captain, Jim most certainly agrees publicly with any decision Nolan makes. It's not nice to fool Mother Nature, and it's not nice to publicly put down your boss.

When Brodie told Nolan he would rather play all the game, his wish was granted and yesterday Nolan announced Brodie would get his chance to earn a full day's pay for a full day's work in his last game before his retirement becomes effective.

Nolan made a wise decision in calling an audible on John's behalf. If his original plan had been put into effect, I'm sure the fans would finish their cheers for Brodie with a boo for Nolan.

TOUGH LUCK KID: Tim Hennessy, former Redwood basketball star now playing for the Oregon State Beavers as a sophomore forward, broke an arm and will be in a cast for about a month. Oregon State coach Ralph Miller will probably try to red-shirt Hennessy to save his year's eligibility. A player who suffers a serious

The Seals Goalies Are Bombarded

The Pittsburgh Penguins blasted eight goals past Bob Champoux of the Seals last night and got another off substitute Bob Tucker for a 9-1 romp in the National Hockey League.

That snapped a seven-game winless streak for Pittsburgh and saddled the hapless Seals with a 1-15 record on the road this season.

And the immediate future doesn't look too promising because the Seals must play the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens twice in the next five days with the Boston Bruins sandwiched in between. The Canadiens come to Oakland tomorrow night before the Seals head East to meet the Canadiens and Bruins on Sunday and Tuesday.

California was in the game only during the first period against the Penguins. Ron Schock opened the scoring for Pittsburgh but Joey Johnston tallied on a power play to tie it up before rookie Ron Lalonde netted the first of two goals to put the Penguins ahead for keeps.

Then Pittsburgh erupted for five goals in the middle period and added two more in the third.

Score by periods:

California	1 0 0—1
Pittsburgh	2 5 2—9

First period—1. Pittsburgh, Schock 6 (Lalonde, Watson) 6:16; 2. California, J. Ston 13 (McKay, McKechnie) 13:51; 3. Pittsburgh, Lalonde 3 (Schock, Snell) 18:26. Penalties—Watson 12:24.

Second period—4. Pittsburgh, Lalonde 4 (Schock, Snell) 7:25; 5. Pittsburgh, McDonough 11 (Beverley) 8:24; 6. Pittsburgh, Snell 3 (unassisted) 12:25; 7. Pittsburgh, Pronovost 12 (Hextall, Bignell) 16:15; 8. Pittsburgh, Burrows 1 (Schock, Snell) 19:30. Penalties-Watson 0:51.

Third period—9. Pittsburgh, Apps 10 (MacDonald, McDonough) 2:40; 10. Pittsburgh, Apps 11 (McDonough, Burrows) 18:23. Penalties-Snell 7:04; J. Johnston 7:56, Stewart 8:28, Lukowich 14:57, McKechnie 19:36.

Second Night In Jail For Astros' Star

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (UPI) — Cesar Cedeno, the star centerfielder of the Houston Astros, spent a second night in jail last night, charged with "voluntary homicide" in the motel shooting of a 19-year-old girl.

Magistrate Socrates Diaz Curiel continued Cedeno's preliminary hearing today after interrogating Cedeno and the first of four other witnesses called yesterday. The hearing is closed.

Cedeno, 22, was charged with the pistol slaying of Altagracia de la Cruz, 19. The police report termed the killing accidental. Police said the girl took the .38 caliber pistol in her hands to examine it and it discharged when Cedeno tried to take it from her. The weapon was legally registered by Cedeno.

Dominican legal sources saw two possibilities for Cedeno: that magistrate Diaz will remand him to a criminal court for trial on the " voluntary" count, which is roughly equivalent to second degree murder in the United States: or that Diaz will reduce the charge to "involuntary manslaughter" and turn the case over to a "correctional court," a lesser tribunal than the criminal one.

There may be no opportunity for bail if Cedeno is tried for "voluntary manslaughter." If he is tried for involuntary, he may be freed on bond pending trial. The voluntary count carries a three-to-10 year sentence. The maximum sentence for "involuntary manslaughter" is three years, and the judge may even absolve the convicted defendant.

Spec Richardson, the Astros general manager who flew in from Houston, visited Cedeno yesterday in La Fe jail. He said:

"I came to cheer him up and give him confidence and to find out for myself what state the boy is in."

Cedeno's Houston wife, Cora, 21, who was in the couple's winter home here at the time of the motel shooting, accompanied Richardson and head Astro scout Pat Guillick on the jail visit.

District Attorney Maximo Henriquez Saladin, who filed the charge against Cedeno, said he had grounds to believe that the stiffer " voluntary" count was justified.

EX-COACH PROTHRO

An Old Friend Helps UCLA Select Vermeil

DICK VERMEIL
Aide moves up

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Only one week after Pepper Rodgers abruptly resigned, UCLA has a new football coach, thanks to some help by an old friend of the family—Tommy Prothro.

Prothro, who coached the Bruins from 1965-70 and then spent two less successful terms as head coach of the Rams, was credited with bringing Vermeil and the UCLA athletic department together.

"I didn't apply for the job," said Vermeil. "Tommy called me (shortly after Rodgers resigned) and asked me if I would be interested. I said I would be and that was the extent of it."

Last Friday, Vermeil, hard at work as Chuck Knox's offensive backfield and special teams coach, was contacted by UCLA Athletic Director J.D. Morgan. The deal was finalized over the telephone during the next few days, without any face-to-face meetings. Vermeil credits his former boss with making the offer come about.

"I'm sure that Prothro is the key to my being offered the job," he said. "He has always treated me great. Probably because I worked for him at UCLA and with the Rams he must have felt I'd be interested."

Vermeil, a native of Calistoga, Calif., who now resides in Huntington Beach, insists he doesn't have time to think about college football yet. The Rams, now 11-2, meet Cleveland here Sunday in a tuneup for their NFC playoff game agsinst either Dallas or Washington. Vermeil will remain with the Rams until the season ends.

"My No. 1 responsibility is here with the Los Angeles Rams," he said. "I'm trying to direct all my thinking to winning the next four games. When my obligation to the Rams is fulfilled, then I'll devote 110 per cent of my energy to UCLA."

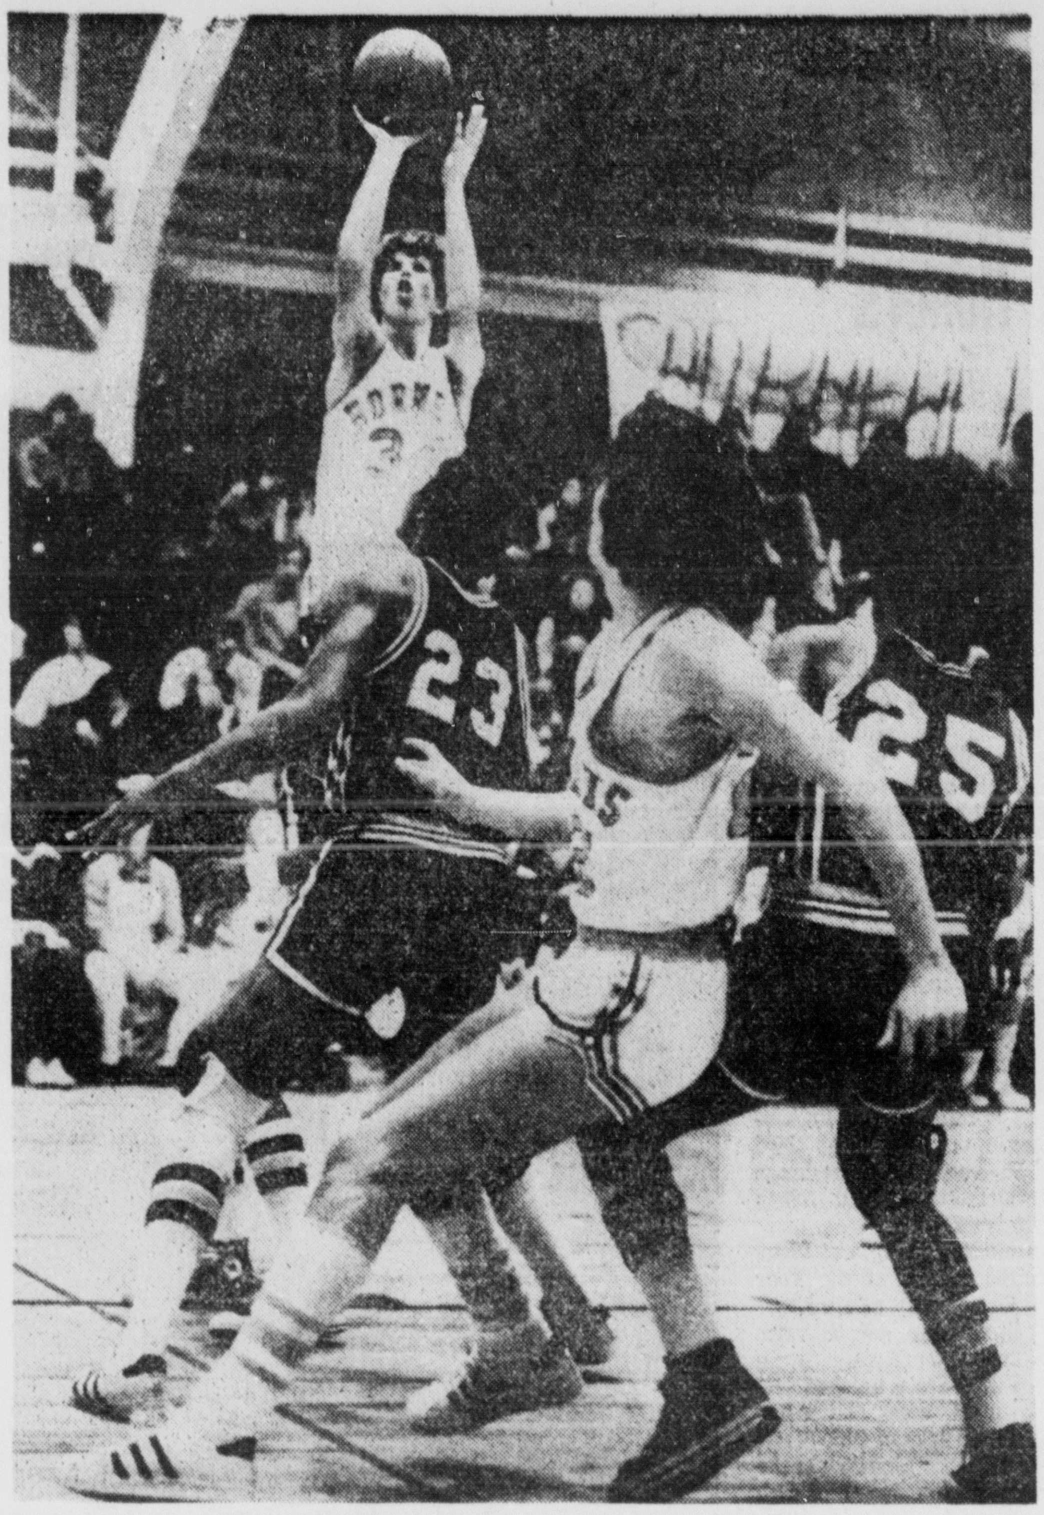
A former quarterback at San Jose State, Vermeil broke into the college coaching ranks at Stanford under John Ralston in 1965.

He remained there until George Allen lured him into the Rams' organization in 1969, where he served as a special teams and kickers' game coach.

In 1970, he joined Prothro at UCLA as the offensive coordinator. He followed Prothro back to the Rams in 1971-72 and remained with the team under Knox after Prothro was fired following a 6-7-1 season in 1972.

"Our loss is UCLA's gain," said Knox of his assistant. "We're losing a real fine football coach who has done a fine job for the Rams. I'm sure he'll do the same for UCLA."

Rodgers' 1973 Bruins, operating in a high-powered Wishbone offense, were 9-2, losing a shot at the Rose Bowl in a 23-13 loss to Southern California. Vermeil, who has never coached a wishbone team, says he favors a more passing-oriented offense.



RISING TO THE OCCASION — Novato High School's Mike Moroski (34) put up this jump shot over Harry Ells' Willie Washington (23) and Willis Alcutt. Novato's Tim Jordan moved in for a possible rebound during the opening round of the Drake Pirate Classic basketball play last night in San Anselmo. Novato prevailed, 71-61.

Namath Hints About Future

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath could be in a new uniform next year. Or he could be in no uniform at all.

Namath, who has been riddled with injuries for the last three years, will probably start at quarterback for the New York Jets Sunday against the Buffalo Bills at Shea Stadium. But yesterday he indicated that might be it for him.

"I don't know if I'll be back," he said, choosing his words carefully. "It could very well be. It's all according to how I feel and right now I can't say whether I'll be back or not next year. Right now my immediate goal is doing a good job this week. I'm not looking past this week. I don't have to make that decision right now."

Namath has just completed the final year of a two-year contract estimated at $250,000 a year.

Grinding his hands and fingers nervously, Namath also discussed what was once unthinkable—a trade.

"There's also the possibility that someone might not want me to play here. If I do get traded, it would have to be to a contender or a warm weather team. At this stage of my career, I'm not about to go somewhere where they're rebuilding.

"Like for instance, I wouldn't go to New England. Not that I have anything against the people up there but they're not a contender—and it's too cold. I wouldn't go to Buffalo or St. Louis or a few other places. But what's the difference. You're not able to pick anyway.

There could be a choice next year, however, and Namath could be the major factor in getting it off the ground. It's the newly proposed World Football League and Namath's attorney, Jim Walsh, has been talking with officials of the new league for more than two months.

"I haven't talked to anybody and I don't know anything about it," Namath said. "It's none of my business. My lawyer is talking with them. I have a job right now. The big thing is that I want to play for a winner. I don't want to go to a new team just to play."

Winning is something that has come hard for Namath since he led the Jets to their much-heralded Super Bowl victory over the Baltimore Colts in January, 1969. Since then, he has been unable to defeat a winning team. He missed a good portion of the 1970 season with a broken wrist and most of 1971 when he injured his knee in a pre-season game. In September, he suffered a separated shoulder.

Tam Cagers Beaten By Lincoln

Tamalpais High School's basketball team could only sink eight of its 17 shots from the free throw line and lost to powerful non-league opponent Lincoln of San Francisco, 61-54, yesterday in Mill Valley.

Shooting 51 per cent, the Indians led in scoring from the floor, canning 23 field goals to Lincoln's 22. However, the Mustangs scored 17 points from the line to win.

Lincoln took an early lead, opening it up to 10 in the middle of the second quarter before Tam (1-4) closed it to five at halftime. After an even third period, the hosts got to within one point with four minutes left in the game but missed two opportunities to take the lead and the Mustangs pulled away again.

Mike Dinehart topped the afternoon's scorers with 20 points, while Lincoln got double figure scoring production from three players.

Detroit Franchise In World Football

DETROIT (UPI) — The New World Football League announced today that Detroit has been granted membership in the new pro circuit and will field a team when play begins next fall.

Gary L. Davidson, president and founder of the new league, said the new team's ownership is a racially integrated group of Detroit civic, business and professional leaders.

The team, the first new professional sports team in the Motor City since the Detroit Pistons transferred from Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1958, has not been named.

The presence of three black owners marks the first time in Detroit that a professional team's ownership includes minority leaders.

Davidson said New York, Chicago, Southern California, Toronto, Boston, Florida, Honolulu, Birmingham, Ala., and Washington, D.C., also were expected to field teams in the league's first season.

The Detroit Lions of the National Football League are in the process of building a new stadium in Pontiac, about 20 miles north of Detroit, and hope to vacate Tiger Stadium, their present home by 1975.

The WFL will open a draft season in January of all current pro players, graduating college seniors and "players who have proved themselves capable professionals in recent years but were unable to land jobs in the National Football League because of a lack of open positions."

Davidson did not say where the team would play.

Mayor-elect Coleman A. Young called Detroit's membership in the new league "a great Christmas present" for the city.

Moore: Broncos Prepared

OAKLAND (UPI) — Tight end Bob Moore of the Oakland Raiders knows what the Denver Broncos are going through this week.

Moore caught 100 passes from Jim Plunkett in helping Stanford win two consecutive Rose Bowls under John Ralston a few years back. Now Ralston is preparing the Broncos for their American Football Conference Western Division title match against the Raiders at Oakland Sunday.

"I'm sure Ralston is driving them nuts this week," said Moore. "He's going to get them so crazy, they'll think they can do anything. He gets you feeling that on that day you can beat anyone. In a one-game situation, he can really get a team ready to play."

George Buehler, offensive guard of the Raiders who also played under Ralston in the pre-Rose Bowl years, looked at his old coach a different way.

"John was always emotional," said Buehler. "But to me he wasn't that much different than most coaches."

Moore is one of Ken Stabler's favorite receivers. He has caught 33 passes for 365 yards. But Moore noted records are meaningless in the regular season finale.

"I don't care if I go without a catch this week," he said. "If we win, I'll go out and celebrate. But if I catch 10 and we lose, there won't be anything to celebrate."

Former Pro Gridder Staley Files Suit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former defensive tackle Bill Staley of the Chicago Bears and Cincinnati Bengals, filed a $65,000 suit yesterday charging that the Bears cut him from the payroll after he was injured.

Staley, 27, said he had a two-year contract with the Bears for the 1972 and 1973 seasons. But after he suffered "incapacitating knee injuries" in 1972, he was dropped from the team without pay before the start of the 1973 season according to the suit.

The same thing happened to former Redwood player Jerry Piro who was red-shirted after suffering an injury early in the season during his sophomore year at University of Santa Clara. Piro is currently captaining the Bronco's team and playing with a broken nose.

THE RETIRING BRODIE

A Most Valuable Player Nearly Each 49er Year

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

Over 17 years, the San Francisco 49ers star wrote his name in the record books on numerous occasions and once was named the National Football Conference's Most Valuable Player.

To the 49ers, he has been their MVP nearly every year since he replaced Y. A. Tittle as the No. 1 quarterback way back in 1961. In the years since, he has passed for more than 30,000 yards to rank among the game's all-time best—fellows such as Tittle and the legendary Johnny Unitas, who is playing out the string these days with the San Diego Chargers.

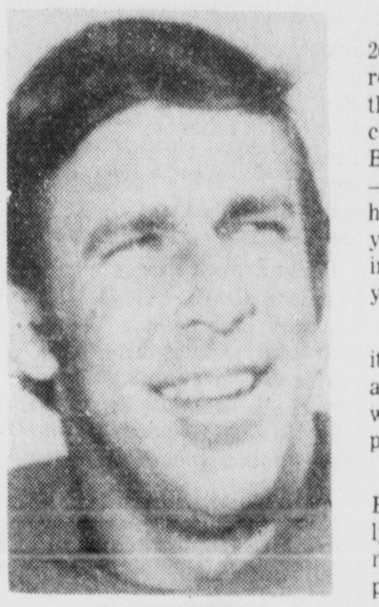
He has had five 300-plus yard games with the best being a 356-yarder against the Los Angeles Rams in 1969. He ranks fifth among NFC passers, 10th in the NFL and fourth in the Hall of Fame All-Ttime rankings.

Additionally, he has been All Pro twice (1965 and 1970) and has had only three seasons in which he has completed under 50 per cent of his passes.

Still, for all his accomplishments, including a brilliant college career at Stanford, Brodie more than likely always will be remembered as the man who triggered the merger of the NFL and the American Football League.

The pay wasn't all that great in Brodie's early years and just when he was starting to make good money as a pro, along came his big break—the one that has made him a millionaire.

The lucky day arrived in 1966 when the American Football League, then being run by Al Davis, offered him a big bonus to jump the 49ers and join the Houston Oilers of the "new" league.



JOHN BRODIE
Colorful career

John was at least interested enough to listen to an offer from Don Klosterman, the Oiler general manager. So, accompanied by his lawyer brother, he met Klosterman in a Houston restaurant. After some talking Brodie agreed to terms with signatures on a napkin.

A short time later the merger of the NFL and AFL became an accomplished fact. With Davis, now managing general partner of the cross-bay Oakland Raiders, calling the shots, the AFL had managed to "steal" some big name NFL players.

While never putting it in so many words, Davis has admitted on several occasions "that's what brought the NFL around."

Davis never was that excited about the merger (he since has had to pay the 49ers $1 million a year for "invading" their territory and has 13 years to go on the agreement). He was one of several AFL owners who voted against merger on the theory that without star quarterbacks the NFL was in trouble.

Be that as it may, merger did follow and that's what made Brodie a wealthy man. He claimed he still had that now famous napkin with Klosterman's signature on it and that unless he was "taken care of", a suit would follow against every club in the new merged NFL.

So money collected from all 26 clubs was placed in escrow—reportedly $1 million although the amount never has been confirmed by either the NFL or Brodie—and starting next year—Brodie's first in retirement—he will start collecting $50,000 a year, plus all the accumulated interest, for an estimated 20 years.

In many respects, it is worth it to Brodie, now 38, to retire and go on to spend more time with his wife and five children plus other interests.

"I'm ready for retirement," Brodie said recently. "My family is ready for it, too. Sure, I'll miss football. Heck, I've been playing the game since I was 11 years old. You can't be involved in a game that long and not miss it."

Brodie says he never set in his mind a certain year when he would quit.

"I always felt I would know when the time was right," he said. "That time is now. What more can I say than that."

Brodie has been a "Gamesman" all his life. He started out as a baseball player and there were many who thought he could have made it to the major leagues. He also started with golf at an early age and for one year held a PGA playing card. He still plays to a 1 or 2 handicap and additionally is considered—at least by the friends—as an outstanding card player. Gin and hearts are his favorite games but he also plays dominoes and poker.

One friend recently said, more in admiration than jealousy, "no man should be so good in so many things. It's just not fair."

So when old No. 12 hangs 'em up after Saturday's game with the Steelers—a game coach Dick Nolan says Brodie will go all the way—no one should shed any tears.

"It's been a rewarding career besides the money," Brodie says. "I've had a lot of fun and made a lot of friends, and you really can't say any more than that."

NEW YORK GIANTS

Family Image Faces Changes

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the late Vince Lombardi once was asked what one compelling force he considered principally responsible for his Green Bay Packers rise to the world championship, he used the word "love" and talked about how his ball club really was more like a "family."

Almost immediately other people in the National Football League jumped on the "family" idea, which didn't actually originate with Lombardi to begin with, and before you know it everybody and his brother in the league began referring to his own team the same way.

It turns out however, one family isn't necessarily the same as another. There are families, and there are families, even in football.

The New York Giants are a good example.

The Giants have been operated by the Mara family since 1925, the year they were founded, and that in itself wouldn't be so unusual except for the fact the club generally has been run family style.

Wellington Mara, the Giants' owner, probably identifies with his players more closely perhaps than any other owner in all sports.

What other owner takes such a deep personal interest in his players after they leave the club; makes snapshots of plays during a ball game and sends them over to his coaches, acts as his own general manager to all intents and purposes and works out so often with the team?

Wellington Mara's impromptu workouts in themselves are not all that harmful, but thinking of his team in the subjective terms he does possibly could be.

Wellington Mara is a fan at heart.

All owners are to an extent, but there comes a time when they should quit letting their hearts rule their heads.

By his own admission, Wellington Mara says it nearly destroyed him to have to fire his best friend, Allie Sherman, his previous coach.

"I feel like Well is a father," said Webster, who originally joined the Giants in 1955, played fullback for them and tried everything he could possibly think of but still couldn't make them produce anything better than a 2-10-1 log this year.

In truth, Mara is an integral part of the "old guard" ownership in the NFL. George Halas of the Chicago Bears and Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers are pretty much of the same line of thinking when it comes to running a football team, except that Rooney did a complete aboutface four years ago.

Weary of losing year after year for more than 30 years, Rooney went out and hired young, individualistic Chuck Noll and told him:

"Look, it's your ball club. Take it and build it up. You won't have any interference from me."

Wellington Mara, on the other hand, continued his accustomed paternalism, naming "super nice guy" Alex Webster as his coach and staying with longtime organizational front office personnel he inherited rather than going out and trying to get such other more assertive, take-charge types as Don Shula, George Allen, Don Klosterman or Jim Finks.

In all fairness, the Giants did try to get Vince Lombardi as their head coach once after he had served as one of their assistants. They failed, and it really wasn't their fault.

That's the big trouble with the Giants. Nobody ever blames anybody although for the past

San Rafael Gymnasts Enter Meet

Ten members of the San Rafael Gymnastics Club will travel to San Mateo Saturday to compete in the U.S. Gymnastics Federation Class III meet beginning at 9 a.m. at San Mateo Junior College.

Several turned in good performances last weekend in the first of the two meets in San Bruno, including Tami Wallace, who finished first all-around in the 12-14 age bracket with a total score of 27.80 points of a possible 40. She was second in vaulting, third in parallel bars and fifth in balance beam.

The top five all-around in each age bracket, and the net 60 gymnasts regardless of age levels, will advance to the subsequent Zone II meet.

The San Rafael Club, coached by Marcia Arevalo, is Marin's only private, Amateur Athletic Union-sanctioned club. Its results last weekend:

Age 10-11 — Tammy Whelthy, third, free exercise.

Age 12-14 — Tami Wallace, second, vaulting; third, uneven parallel bars; fifth, balance beam; first, all-around (27.80). Laurie Larrieu, second, beam.

Age 15-up — Collette de Nevers, second, bars; fifth, vault; sixth, free ex; fifth, all-around. Linda Harms, first, beam; second, bars; second, free ex; sixth, vaulting; second, all-around. Michele Pelligrini, sixth, bars.

Controversy In Sonoma's Cage Setback

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Sonoma State College got its midwest basketball tour off to a poor start here last night with a 95-84 non-league loss to Southwest Missouri State University — and the men in striped shirts.

"The officiating was horrible," complained Cossack assistant coach Dave Castleberry after the game. "We just couldn't beat the officiating. I've never seen (head coach) Bill Trumbo so mad at refs before."

Sonoma, which normally gets called for less fouls than its opponents, went to the free throw line just nine times last night — four of them in the last minute of the game. By comparison, Southwest Missouri shot 25 free throws.

The Cossacks (2-3) didn't help their own cause, either, with a 41 per cent shooting effort from the field.

Sonoma had five players score in double figures, led by Bill Belander's 19 points. Steve Tiedeman was next with 18 points, Ron Johnson scored 16, Dan Heien hit for 11 and Bob LeBrun added 10.

Sonoma	39	45—84
Southwest Missouri	47	48—95

Sonoma — Belander 9-1-19, Johnson 8-0-16, LeBrun 5-0-10, Tiedeman 9-0-18, Bristol 2-0-4, Heien 5-1-11, Fitchie 1-4-6. Totals: 39-6-84.

Southwest Missouri — Garrison 9-2-20, Hill 11-6-28, Doolittle 4-4-12, Magers 7-0-14, Culbertson 1-2-4, Newton 6-5-17. Totals: 38-19-95.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

A Glove-ly Feeling

By LEE TREVINO

Trying to control a golf ball with frigid digits is like trying to thread a needle under water. It may go anywhere.

It was so cold during the 1971 Sahara Invitations in Las Vegas that there were ice caps in the ball washers. A club had all the feeling of a broom.

Anyway, I won it, and I give credit to two full-fingered gloves. My fat little fingers are more sensitive to shivery temperatures, maybe, but it's tough to concentrate on the delicate pitch shot across a bunker when your hands feel brittle.

Sure, there are a lot of Farmers' Almanac remedies for tingly pinkies. Glycerine rubbed in the palms keeps out the cold, that sort of thing. Maybe so. Hot tamales'll keep your hands toasty, too, but who can afford a tamale caddy?

Your pro shop handles full-fingered leather gloves, or you may prefer mittens with leather palms. Both are okay.

Carry a couple of hand warmers to clutch between shots. They'll keep the leather from getting stiff in the cold. It's a glove-ly feeling.

Dallas Likely To Tab Jones In 1st Round

DALLAS (UPI) — Ed Jones, a 6-foot-9, 260-pound defensive tackle from Tennessee State, apparently will be the No. 1 choice in the National Football League draft early next year, a local newspaper reported today.

According to the Dallas Morning News, Jones will be the No. 1. pick of the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys will pick first in the draft because they own the Houston Oilers' first round pick and the Oilers have already clinched the worst record in the NFL.

Jones has 4.75 speed for 40 yards. His coach at Tennessee State, John Merritt, said Jones was the best lineman he ever coached. Tennessee State is the alma mater of Cleveland's Joe Jones and Atlanta's Claude Humphrey.

Jones said he wanted to play for Dallas and hoped he was picked by them.

"We've only lost two games in the four years I've played for Tennessee State and I'm not used to losing," he said. "Neither is Dallas."

Cowboy officials had little to say publicly about the identity of their No. 1 pick, but Jones might be chosen as an understudy to defensive tackle Bob Lilly.

NFL STATISTICS

Tarkenton Gets Passing Lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Minnesota Quarterback Fran Tarkenton, who has piloted the Minnesota Vikings into the National Football Conference Central Division title, took over the top spot as the NFC's leading passer in this week's statistics by the National Football League.

Tarkenton, whose team swamped Green Bay 31-7 last Saturday to bring the Vikings their 11th victory this season, replaced Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach as the No. 1 NFC passer. Staubach's Cowboys romped over Washington 27-7 Sunday.

John Hadl of Los Angeles was third, followed by Roman Gabriel of Philadelphia and Jim Hart of St. Louis.

Dallas running back Calvin Hill, with 1,095 yards in 13 games and six TDs, remained as the leading rusher in the NFC, 81 yards ahead of Los Angeles rookie Lawrence McCutcheon.

Adams, Bollen Receive Awards

SAN FRANCISCO — Fred Adams of Tamalpais High School was among seven Bay Area athletes to win a $1,000 scholarship last night at the 14th annual awards banquet put on by the Northern California chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

Adams, who carries a 3.53 grade point average, was one of two scholarship nominees from Marin County. The other was Bruce Bollen of Terra Linda High who has a perfect 4.0 grade average.

Adams was a running back for Tam and was honorable mention All-Marin County Athletic League as a junior. Among the reasons for his nomination from the MCAL committee was his "relationship with and concern for his teammates and opponents, and for integrity."

Other winners of $1,000 scholarships at last night's banquet, held at the Hilton Hotel, were Sam Coffey (3.83 grade point average), St. Ignatius fullback; Bruce Barker (3.4) Lowell tackle; Russell Lee Willeford (3.6), Anderson Valley linebacker; Bruce Edwards (3.93), Cubberley (Palo Alto) tackle; Rick Medeiros, (3.64), St. Patrick's (Vallejo) center; and Greg Yamamoto (3.86), El Molino (Forestville) tackle.

Harry Trump was the most reasonable of bridge guests.
He demanded only two things.
New cards and Early Times.
Emil Frostbutt knew this.
On September 28, 1972, the cards in Frostbutt's posh game room were still in the cellophane.
But the bourbon..... for some never-to-be-determined reason, Frostbutt had not ordered Early Times.
That night, for the first time in years, Emil Frostbutt played bridge without Harry.

Motel-Hotel Stocks Hurt By Fuel Crisis

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Should we sell and take a loss on 300 shares of Holiday Inns (NYSE) which were purchased several years ago? We are close to retirement. — J.K.

A. In view of the highly emotional state of the stock market, this would not appear to be the time to sell this stock. Motel/hotel stocks have been particularly hard hit, reflecting the tight gasoline situation. However, some semblance of objectivity should be forthcoming in reaction to the wholesale selling which has recently been witnessed.

At its recent price, HIA is selling at 9 times projected 1973 earnings, a multiple well below the 10-year average P/E of 27. While the market will probably continue to place a lower value than former lofty levels on the entire industry, the current reduced appraisal appears overdone for Holiday in view of its good fundamentals. Should the market take a breather and this issue recover some of its recent decline, I would then advise sale.

Q. How do I find out if high-yield AA-rated hospital bonds are safe? — L.M.

A. If bonds are rated AA by a reputable national rating service, such as Moody's, Standard & Poor's or Fitch's, this is certainly an indication of their above-average security. In addition to reading the literature sent out by the underwriter describing the bond issue, it would be very wise to read the offering prospectus. Even though you may not be familiar with a balance sheet, there should be sufficient explanatory literature included in the prospectus so that you are able to satisfy yourself on the solvency of the institution.

One drawback in this particular investment area is the difficulty sometimes encountered by people desiring to sell prior to maturity date. Although the offering underwriters may maintain secondary markets in the bonds, buyers are not always available when needed. Thus, unless you have enough cash or liquid assets to meet emergencies, this attractive yield had better be by-passed.

Stocks Gain After Two Losing Days

With early bargain hunting centering on recently hard-hit glamors and blue chips, advances barely led declines, 600 to 562, among the 1,579 issues traded.

Noon volume totaled more than 7,000,000 shares, against 9,630,000 up to the corresponding time Wednesday.

Behind the market's current weakness, analysts said, are growing signs of severe economic dislocations as a result of the energy crisis and the Arab oil embargo.

In economic news, October business inventories showed a sharp increase, according to the Commerce Department, but sales also gained.

Bankshares Sells Half Of Offering

Of the 76,000 new shares of common stock offered by Independent Bankshares Corporation, San Rafael, less than one-half were purchased by current shareholders as of Monday this week, when their subscription rights expired.

Dale Sullivan, treasurer of IBC, estimated that 45 to 50 per cent of the total offering were purchased by current shareholders for $30 per share, at the rate of one new stock for each five shares held. This means total proceeds from the sale came to just over a million dollars.

The remaining unsold shares will be re-offered through security dealers in Marin and Sonoma County, with Davis Skaggs & Co. of San Francisco coordinating the re-offering. George Scott, representing Davis Skaggs, said the remaining shares will be sold for $32 per share, and this re-offering will expire on Jan. 11. Independent Bankshares stock quotations were off the over-the-counter listing for the past few days but were to reappear this week.

Prudential Loan Figures Reported

The entire amount was for city loans, according to Will J. Clardy, Jr., Northern California general manager for the company's real estate investment department.

A SERPENTINE OF BASKETS

Christmas shopping has hit Los Angeles area discount stores in full swing. And it means just one thing to employee Mike Rhodes — more work. He is practicing the art of snaking 322 shopping baskets through the parking lot for a new trip. (UPI Telephoto)

Eerie Warning — Melting Ice Caps, Boiling Ocean Waters

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American Geophysical Union was warned yesterday that man's increasing rate of energy use would warm up the atmosphere by one half degree Fahrenheit — enough to melt much of the polar ice caps in a century's time.

The result would be to raise sea levels 200 feet and flood 10 percent of the earth's land, inundating half of the world's major metropolitan areas including New York and London.

A mere half-degree change would produce such a catastrophic event because the melting process is self-accelerating.

As the polar caps shrink, so do their reflective areas shrink, and more and more solar heat would be absorbed.

Wilcox said that man's energy consumption is rising 4 per cent per year. Pressure for more energy use, especially from now underdeveloped nations, will continue, he said.

But the heat from use of fossil fuels and nuclear power plants, and even man's light bulbs, does not escape into outer space, he said. It is effectively contained by the earth's atmosphere, a near-perfect insulator.

Wilcox saw world thermal pollution as a greater danger to mankind than food shortages or thermonuclear war.

If governments do not cooperate to limit heat production — Wilcox is convinced they will — then at the present rate in two centuries the surface waters of the tropical seas would boil, he said.

To avoid catastrophe, Wilcox said man must find ways to better use solar energy that arrives on earth whether man is present or not.

Wilcox himself is involved in a $150,000 Navy experiment to use solar energy in an ocean farm to grow kelp, an algae. Kelp, already used as food in some cultures, potentially could be converted to methane, an essential ingredient of natural gas and gasoline.

Wilcox's marine farm will grow kelp suspended on nylon mesh 50 feet below the ocean surface. It is hoped that the farm will produce 40 tons per acre each year.

SBA's Loan Powers Extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite an investigation of the Small Business Administration's lending practices, the House subcoommittee conducting the probe has recommended a six-month extension in loan-making authority for the agency.

The recommendation, if followed, would raise the SBA loan ceiling from $4.3 billion to $4.875 billion, enough to continue loan and lease programs another six months.

Action on the subcommittee's recommendation is set for today by the full House Banking Committee.

Voting against the proposal were Reps. William Cotter, D-Conn., and Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex.

Rep. William Cotter, D-Conn., who voted against the extension, said he disagreed with the extension of SBA's loan-making authority in view of the serious charges against the agency.

"I feel that we're on the verge of uncovering a gigantic scandal," he said, "and in view of that I don't see how we can make this money available to them until we know what is going to be done to correct these abuses."

More Authority Seen For Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon wants Vice President Gerald R. Ford to be involved in all major foreign and domestic decisions, a White House spokesman said yesterday.

After Nixon discussed Ford's with Republican congressional leaders at an hour-long meeting, it appeared clear the new vice president will be given much more authority and responsibility than was accorded his predecessor, Spiro T. Agnew.

Ford told a group of reporters at a breakfast meeting Wednesday that Nixon had promised to meet with him every day or to have an extensive telephone conversation with him.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren was reluctant to discuss the differences in Agnew's role during his tenure and the responsibilities being shifted to Ford.

But he said "there is a difference, of course, in the individuals' experience and areas of expertise."

Ford's successor as House Republican leader, Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona, said after his first meeting with Nixon after taking over from Ford in the House: "I think the vice president is being brought into the highest White House councils because of the necessity of the rapport with Congress."

Ford also was being brought in as a participant in the energy Emergency Action Group.

Today is Thursday, Dec. 13, the 347th day of 1973 with 18 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupier.

Clark Mills, American sculptor of famous statues in Washington, D.C., was born Dec. 13, 1810.

On this day in history:

In 1642, New Zealand was discovered and named by Dutch navigator Abel Tasman.

In 1862, almost 11,000 Northern soldiers were killed or wounded in a battle with Confederate troops at Marye's Heights outside Fredericksburg, Va.

In 1918, American soldiers of the U.S. 3rd Army crossed the Rhine River at Coblenz, Germany, during World War I.

In 1937, Japanese soldiers captured Nanking, China, and began a systematic looting of the city's homes and shops.

A thought for the day: Seeing a federal charge repulsed at Fredericksburg, Va., Southern Gen. Robert E. Lee said: "It is well that war is so terrible, or we should get too fond of it."

AIM FOR NINE

West opens the seven of spades, and you must aim for nine tricks.

Suppose you play a low spade from dummy. East finesses with the eight, and you win with the queen. You lead a diamond to force out the ace.

West turns up with the ace of diamonds and leads another spade. East takes four more spade tricks, defeating the contract.

ANOTHER WAY

Let's try another way. You play low from the dummy at the first trick, and East finesses with the eight. You refuse the first trick. East continues with the ace and then a low spade.

Now you make your contract. West has the ace of diamonds but cannot lead another spade.

Don't congratulate yourself. You would lose the hand if East had the ace of diamonds. You have merely guessed right.

CORRECT PLAY

Just put up the king of spades from dummy at the first trick, and you don't care which opponent has the ace of diamonds.

If East wins the first trick with the ace of spades, he cannot afford to lead another spade. (You would allow a small spade to ride to dummy's ten). This gives you time to knock out the ace of diamonds, no matter where it may be. If East refuses the first trick, you still have the suit stopped. Either way, you are safe.

Response On Reverse Side

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Gov. William G. Milliken Brown yesterday sent a personal note to two energy-conscious girls on the back of a brown paper bag.

The girls, Cheryll K. Shaw and Cindy Weber of Grand Rapids, had written a letter to Milliken on the paper bag asking for the governor's text of a speech he gave on conserving energy recently on the radio.

The girls were so caught up in the message that they pulled the plugs on all electrical appliances in the room — including the radio—and never heard the end of Milliken's message to the public.

The girls added a post script to the note, informing Milliken that their stationery was "recycled from a grocery bag which was recycled from junk. Due to the paper shortage, you may reply on the reverse side."

Living Yule Tree Program Grows

LITTLETON, Colo. (UPI) — One of Mrs. Jackie Lembke's greatest delights is simply to walk around her yard in suburban Littleton pointing out to friends the evergreens she and her family have planted.

"In our yard, there is nothing sweeter than to go around and look at the trees and remember the times when they were planted," the mother of three said. "We have five trees now, for five Christmases. With a little bit of luck, we will have a lot more."

Mrs. Lembke is head of an environmental group called Provide for People, which wants homeowners across the nation to celebrate Christmas in a different way. They want people to buy living, growing Christmas trees — Not trees that have been cut — and then replant them when they have served their holiday decorative purpose.

"There is no more wonderful way to celebrate Christmas," Mrs. Lembke says. "I have three fine sons and they're all enthusiastic about it. They help decorate the tree and then after Christmas, plant it."

Mrs. Lembke, whose group kicked off a nationwide campaign on Thanksgiving Day, said she has been working for three years now to convince people to buy living trees. She thinks the idea is spreading.

"We were very effective last year," she said. "The first year there were over 1,000 live trees planted in Colorado alone and last year it jumped to 7,000. And we've heard that there has been a lot of good support across the nation."

Mrs. Lembke said she found it amazing the number of people who have jumped on the bandwagon to support the idea.

"It seems like an idea whose time has come," she said. "All you have to do is mention it to people and they either latch onto it and say this is a great idea or else they poo-hoo the idea and just forget it."

Mrs. Lembke said she can't accept the argument that the task is too difficult and that most of the trees planted in wintertime will die.

"We say if you get a dead tree, you know it's dead," she said. "But at least this way you take a chance. Even if only 50 per cent of the trees that are planted live, that's 50 per cent more live trees than we had to start off with."

Mrs. Lembke provides a few hints for persons buying living trees. They should never be kept in the home for more than 10 days, keep the roots moist and then leave the tree in the garage for a couple of days to get it used to the shock of moving outdoors.

"Keep your dirt in the garage, too, or some other protected area so it won't shock the roots at the time you transplant it," she said.

Mrs. Lembke, who has been sidelined much of the past year as the result of injuries suffered when struck by a car, said she felt her group was instrumental in the decision this year by the White House to have a living national Christmas tree. Her organization set up a cry last year when a tree was cut in Wyoming and then shipped to the White House as the national tree.

Mrs. Lembke said the originator of the live Christmas tree program was a woman whose name she doesn't even know. She heard the elderly woman speaking to a councilman at a political meeting and telling him how nice it would be to have evergreens up and down the main street in Littleton.

Mrs. Lembke told her organization about it and the members decided to take it on as a project.

"The first year we tried to find her," Mrs. Lembke said. "She never did step forward, so I don't know whether she died or if she just hasn't become aware. But it was really she who was the originator of this."

Falcons' Main Food Is Laced With Death-Dealing Pesticide

The endangered falcon, once common to the United States, is being killed by its need for food. The birds the peregrine preys on are filled with the poison.

"It's the food chain," biologist Dr. James Enderson said. "The peregrine feeds upon the birds and its level of pesticides is almost 200 times higher than you find in most animals.

"In 1944, there were about 450 pairs east of the Mississippi in the United States and Canada. Those are all gone now. We do know there were once on the order of 50 to 60 eyries in the Rocky Mountains. Now we're down to 14."

Enderson, of Colorado College in Colorado Springs, is now raising captive peregrines he hopes eventually will reproduce eggs that can be returned to the wild canyons in the state for hatching. Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., also is raising the falcons in hopes of saving the race.

The killer of the peregrine is a derivative of DDT which has caused the falcons eggshells to lose thickness and crack in the nest.

"The eggs don't hold up to incubation," Enderson said. "When an egg breaks the female becomes covered with it and abandons the entire nest. The adults die and there's nothing to take their place."

The endangered falcon is called the "temperate" peregrine, one of three races of the species in North America. Other branches of the peregrine are found in Alaska's Aleutian Islands and in the Arctic. But while they too, are threatened by pesticides, they are not as close to extinction as the "temperate" peregrine.

The problem is that the different branches of the peregrine do not crossbreed so once the U.S. peregrine dies off, the race is gone forever.

Pope May Cancel Mass In Basilica

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vatican Radio says that Pope Paul VI may cancel his date to officiate at mass in St. Peter's basilica Christmas Eve if the government does not lift its 11-day-long Christmas season driving ban.

The radio station said the Pope would call it off "to avoid imposing hardships on believers and an excessive mobilization of public transportation."

Nun's Photos Concentrate On The Upbeat Aspects Of Life

By ADA GARFINKEL

Very frankly, Sister Adele — who received her doctor of philosophy degree from the University of California at Berkeley in 1949 — states her case.

She contends that the world is full of photographers who portray the miseries and sadness of life. She wants to reflect the upbeat facets of life.

"Photography should not .. restrict its vision to the negative aspects of life, but ought to include .. positive and joyful aspects, also," she believes.

Sister Adele has developed a personal way of creating arresting visual effects through a process of montage which she calls "haiku photography." She has chosen this designation because the final photo is a "compressed visual form," just as haiku, the oriental verse form is a compressed verbal form.

A good deal of thought and time is spent on developing her photo-montages, concentrating on specific themes such as counterpointing the essence of the seasons in "Winter and Summer" with the marriage of a wintry sky, a barren silver birch, and a summer-blooming iris.

Sometimes it is history that dominates as in the shot of Sir Francis Drake's cuneiform-like brass plate superimposed over the spire of San Francisco's new St. Mary's Church. The cool marine-blue color suggesting the blue of the Pacific.

Or it might be a long shot and a close-up of the same scene. In "Abandoned Miner's Cabin," for instance, the darkly-toned, wooden shack is sandwiched by a macro shot of a glowing, silvery knothole found in the shack's side.

One begins to recognize other concepts such as the metallic hardness of the ornate grillwork in "Flaming Gate" taken in Paris, and the soft, golden glow of the huge flower petals asserting their organic presence in the background.

Sister Adele sums up her attitude by saying that she creates her pictures "to show things that ought to be appreciated in the world .. montage as a means of helping to see those things anew, by seeing them on more than one level . . ."

This exhibit will continue through Jan. 3, and may be seen weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Saturdays except Christmas and New Year's Day. The Ross Valley Medical Clinic is located at 1350 S. Eliseo Drive.

Prison Patrols Riding Horses

ATLANTA (UPI) — Georgia prison guards are now patrolling on horseback instead of in trucks and cars to save fuel.

Dr. Allen L. Ault, newly appointed corrections commissioner, told the Georgia Prison Board yesterday at least one warden believes the mounted patrols are more effective and wants to continue the use of horses even if energy shortages are eased.

Engineers Helped By Energy Crisis

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Dr. Nunzio J. Palladino, dean of the Pennsylvania State University's College of Engineering, says the energy crisis has produced one benefit — more and higher paying jobs for graduates of engineering schools.

Palladino said a survey by the College Placement Council showed that employment offers for males with bachelor's degrees from U.S. schools climbed by 83 per cent during 1972-73, while women received 94 per cent more job offers than in 1971-72. He said the average salary offer of $936 per month for women was slightly higher than the $929 per month offered men.

THREE TO GET READY

Madrigal singers (from left) Marjorie Telfer, Erwin Griffin and Anna Secrist try out their pitch on Edward Delap and Anna Dennison at Pacheco School. All five are madrigal singers who will be among some 75 performers scheduled to take part in a concert and arts show Sunday at Indian Valley Colleges in Novato. The colleges' chorus, community players and modern dance class are to perform, starting at 3 p.m.

Further Study Asked Of All-Year Schools

A Novato Unified School District committee has recommended further study of the possibility of having schools operate all year.

The committee asked the district board Tuesday night to allocate $5,000 for the study, but board members postponed action until Jan. 8, according to Annette Conklin, publications director.

Committee members said they "want to look at the educational benefits only," and not consider year-round school as a solution to overcrowding, she said.

The committee also recommended that its membership be expanded to include parents, students and community residents, Miss Conklin said.

If a year-round program were approved, it would take about a year of planning before it could be put into effect, she said.

Trustees also agreed to have a special meeting next month, date not set, to discuss budget priorities, when each trustee will submit his choices and top priorities for expenditures will be reached by consensus, she said.

Novato Unified School District Board Also:

ENROLLMENT — Received a report that enrollment as of Nov. 30 was 10,760, compared to 11,244 in September, 1972.

TRAINING CAR — Agreed to purchase a driver training car from Novato Datsun at a cost of $2,500.

PEER COUNSELING — Approved a family service agency program to train high school students in communication and leadership so they can serve as tutors to other students.

SINALOA NIGHT — Commended the Sinaloa Junior High School staff for its work in conducting a back-to-school night Nov. 29, when classes were held in the evening, enabling parents and students to attend.

NEXT MEETING — Cancelled the next scheduled meeting, Dec. 25, and adjourned until Jan. 8 at 8 p.m. at the Novato High School lecture hall.

TRUSTEE — James Casassa was absent.

Seeking Taxes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California is trying to collect $64,054 in state income taxes from the estate of movie star Marilyn Monroe for film profits realized since her death in 1962.

Californians May Store Their Cars

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Motor Vehicles Director Robert Cozens says he is "certain" a large number of two- and three-car California families plan to store one of the vehicles during the energy crisis to conserve fuel.

Cozens said he based his belief on the volume of questions the Motor Vehicles Department is receiving each day from "people who are thinking of storing their cars."

CLEANUP OF ESTATE SET

The historic Robert Dollar estate grounds in San Rafael will be the site of a cleanup drive by San Rafael Jaycees at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The group will weed estate grounds, trim bushes and hedges, and haul away debris, a spokesman said.

The project will be supervised by John Bryan, director of the Strybing Arboretum in San Francisco, and Marin Heritage, a citizens group seeking to preserve historically and architecturally important structures in the county.

One Way To Solve Problem

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Jim Hutchings said yesterday that because "the courts always give the woman everything", he bulldozed his $37,500 home into rubble to prevent that from happening in a divorce from his wife.

Hutchings said his wife left him, took their two children and the household furnishings and moved out of their suburban home a few weeks ago.

"The courts always give the woman everything," Hutchings said. "But I decided that my missus would not get her customary half share of the house so I borrowed the tractor and set about knocking the damn thing down."

Hutchings, 33, is a building demolition contractor.

State Insurance Chiefs Oppose Federal No-Fault

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The insurance commissioners of Oregon and Washington urged yesterday that Congress not pass legislation requiring so-called "no-fault" auto insurance.

The officials, in whose states such insurance already is available on a voluntary basis, said all states should be left free to come up with their own plans.

Commissioner Lester L. Rawls of Oregon and Commissioner Karl Herrmann of Washington also told the Senate Judiciary Committee that a federal plan would mean that policy holders in their states would end up "subsidizing" those of other states with higher accident rates.

The two state officials also contended that a federal plan would not take differences among the states into consideration.

"The problems that affect Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Illinois and California are not the ones that affect Oregon, Alaska or Idaho," Rawls said.

The Oregon commissioner also charged that a federal plan would destroy a plan that was working well in Oregon.

"This is analogous to the custom in some native tribes whereby the cure for a headache is to drive a spike through the head of the person from one temple to the other," he said.

Herrmann denounced the federal plan as "a gun-in-the-ribs approach."

President Nixon's Disturbing Disclosures

The detailed financial statement which President Nixon made public last week end amounts to an indictment of present-day political morality in this country.

Mr. Nixon presented figures compiled by the General Services Administration (at a cost to the taxpayers of $313,582, according to an accompanying White House statement) to prove that it was untrue that $10 million in public funds had been spent on his homes in San Clemente and Key Biscayne.

Only $205,000, it claimed, was spent on the president's houses (note the change from "home" to "house"). But $905,000 was spent on the grounds of those houses, according to the statement.

The rest of the $10 million — $8.9 million of it — was, according to GSA figures, for "administrative and protective support of the president." This included office complexes built at both locations, on property adjoining Mr. Nixon's (and in Florida, bought by the government for the sole purpose of providing these offices), plus extensive security installations.

UNFORTUNATELY, this begs the question.

The entire $10 million in public funds was spent to enhance Mr. Nixon's properties and give him "private White Houses" for his convenience. None of the office buildings, none of the security installations was necessary for the conduct of the presidency. But they provided Mr. Nixon with comfort, conveniences, and in the case of Key Biscayne, the presence of his closest friend.

The statement justified Mr. Nixon's $576,000 tax deduction for "contributing" his senatorial and vice presidential papers to the National Archives because six other presidents, it claimed, took deductions for similar contributions. Named as the six were Hoover, Roosevelt (apparently Franklin D.), Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, and Johnson.

IN NAMING Mr. Hoover, the White House made a blunder. Far from benefiting financially from the presidency, Herbert Hoover refused to accept any salary for filling the office.

John F. Kennedy's papers were put in the archives after his death. Lyndon B. Johnson, while himself taking a deduction for giving some of "his" papers, supported and signed into law a bill outlawing such deductions thereafter.

Whether Mr. Nixon's senatorial and vice presidential papers are worth $578,000 is beside the point. All of them were prepared by government personnel in a government office for a government official. The great majority undoubtedly are public records. Mr. Nixon took a deduction for "giving to the people" what they already owned — and for which they had already paid.

It is true, however, that several predecessors in office had done the same thing — although Mr. Johnson at least recognized its unfairness.

And it is true that some government funds — though far less than $10 million — were spent on Mr. Johnson's Texas ranch, and that some $35,000 of federal funds was spent on Mr. Kennedy's Hyannis Port estate.

SO WHAT we have here is evidence of declining morality in public office — far removed from that of Mr. Hoover, who served as president without salary; or, more recently, of Mr. Truman, who kept no "second White House" and retired to the same home (never improved with public funds) in which he had lived as a county judge in Independence, Mo.

The lack of rectitude displayed — and made plain in Mr. Nixon's financial statement is not that of Mr. Nixon alone. It has infused the whole government establishment — including the Congress that allowed it to happen without protest, giving a series of presidents "blank check" funds to spend as they wished.

This lack of rectitude, this trifling with the public trust, has brought the "Watergate morality" which has so shocked the nation in this year of 1974.

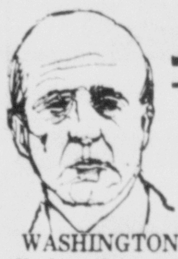
CRISIS

Seven Pillars of Wisdom? The Christian Science Monitor



JOSEPH C. HARSCH

Kissinger's Trip May Influence Future Of Western World

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger is off for the second major task of his diplomatic career. Can he bring about a settlement of the old Arab-Israel wars before serious damage is done to the American economy, the U.S. alliance with Western Europe and the U.S. detente with the Soviet Union?

Having spent his first four years of high diplomacy on the Far East, he now is overwhelmed by all the ramifications of the Middle East problem.

No man can say that this second task is more or less difficult than the first. One can say that its successful conclusion is more important. The United States could lose a battle in Vietnam. It can lose its world role over the Middle East, because the health of the American economy is fundamental to that role.

MR. KISSINGER'S TRIP starts in Brussels with an exercise of novel nature for American diplomacy.

Although Washington was the intentional father of a united Europe, the fact that the United States must begin to deal with the members of the Common Market as a unit instead of as individuals has only just begun to enter the American thought process. The change is upsetting to old habits.

His second stop is London, where a major repair job awaits him. The old "special relationship" with Britain has suffered more from neglect and carelessness than any other feature of U.S. foreign policy.

Through the Middle East crisis, Washington has let its irritation with London show. It has scolded and complained.

Mr. Kissinger took British support for granted and got instead precisely the same treatment from the British that they got from Washington when the roles were reversed during the Suez crisis of 1956.

The British didn't like being involved without consultation. They particularly don't like now being scolded because they didn't want American planes to carry bullets to Israel through British bases — and all at the expense of their oil supply.

FROM LONDON the Kissinger road runs first through all of the Arab capitals, including two days in Riyadh where King Faisal keeps a deft hand on the wheels which control all the oil the United States and its allies so much want for their economic well-being.

Also on the list is Damascus, which Mr. Kissinger has never before visited, and which doesn't even have diplomatic relations with the United States.

From the Arab world, the American traveler approaches the last two vital stages of his journey — Tel Aviv, and then Geneva.

So much rides on this journey. As he takes off, traffic gets lighter every day on American highways. Truckers are in truculent protest over slower speeds. The stock market has reached a new three-year low. Japan and the West European allies are in rebellion against American policies which are injuring their economies.

THERE IS NOTHING here that a quick Mideast settlement would not mend — at least in part. Nothing, of course, will ever be quite the same again, but the changes will all be manageable provided there is that much-to-be-desired quick settlement.

The trans-Atlantic relationship, for example, has been strained — but strained largely because the West European allies are in fact suffering from oil shortages resulting from U.S. policies which they did not approve and had no share in executing.

They are the unwilling victims of American one-man diplomacy. But if the oil flows again, their economic prospects improve, and Mr. Kissinger promises no more crises without consultation, the essential and vital importance of the relationship both to Europe and to the United States will again emerge. The damage can be managed — when the oil flows again.

MARQUIS CHILDS: Hikes 'To Save Energy'

WASHINGTON — In all the backing and filling within the administration over the energy crisis, one small grain of truth is visible in the mountain of rhetoric. If they can get away with it, the ideologues of free enterprise in command mean to let rapidly rising prices of gasoline and heating oil ease the fuel shortage. This will insure the greatest hardship on those least able to bear it.

To talk about free enterprise in fuel is to live in the fantasy of a vanished era. The big oil companies own 30 per cent of coal production and 72 per cent of natural gas. The industry is cartelized, with supply and demand a myth, superseded by tight controls exercised by a small number of very large corporations.

ONE OF THE MISSIONARIES of free enterprise is Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, who apparently interprets his role as that of evangel to the untutored. He pops out like a cuckoo out of a cuckoo clock every hour on the hour to announce that all is for the best in the best-possible-of-worlds.

His latest chirp was before the Economic Club of Detroit, where he said the most constructive course is to allow prices to rise, because that works most in the direction of the long-run solution, which is to bring about an expansion of supply. He made a further statement which will be news to a great many people:

"Retail prices of gasoline have risen over 10 per cent in the past year. This has helped to make our present problem less than it would otherwise be. We shall surely see further increases in the price of gasoline."

Along with the policy, if indeed it can be called a policy, of allowing prices to go through the roof is the move to discard most pollution standards. These hard-won standards for motorcars and industrial plants had only just begun to take hold, with a noticeable improvement in the environment. Now this is apparently to go overboard as news reports from around the country tell of switches to high-sulphur oil or coal.

THE HAPLESS ENERGY czar (and what a misnomer that was) Gov. John Love, back in Colorado after an exercise in futility, did make one critical decision. He announced on Sept. 8 that his office would move to seek the relaxation of state and local emission standards. In a stern protest, the National Resources Defense Council described this as "a shocking attempt to make Americans' lungs bear the burden of the administration's failure to take meaningful steps to improve our short-term energy situation."

The auto companies are pushing hard to cut back or eliminate entirely pollution controls, present and future. They argue this will conserve fuel, although that is a doubtful argument.

Letting gasoline and heating oil prices spiral upward will contribute to inflation, as the latest report on the wholesale price index for last month showed. The rise was a whopping 1.8 per cent, most of it due to increases in the cost of fuel. And that is only the beginning.

The Wall Street Journal said the other day that we are in not for stagflation — stagnation of the economy along with inflation — but stinkflation — meaning dirty air, smog-laden atmosphere, all the abuses the drive against pollution had promised to clean up.

WHATEVER THE BRAND of inflation, it is serious enough as prices go up in cartelized industries, such as fuel, and these are prices that never go down. They are an assurance of continuing profits throughout the great corporate oil structure, as little independents at the filling-station level are squeezed out.

Powerful forces are underway that mean some fuel saving along with substantial unemployment. The gas guzzlers are on the way out. The failure of the auto companies to come up with a small car like those out of Germany and Japan that get from 20 to 28 miles a gallon is beginning to tell.

The conservation measures taken thus far are well and good. They are a brake on the reckless, high-speed motorized economy that has seen the United States consuming 35 per cent of the world's resources with six per cent of the population. But they cannot be stretched far enough to resolve the crisis. That can be done only by measures meaning equity for all.

Public Records Act Needs Thorough Overhauling

By EARL G. WATERS

The fracas with the University of California regents over the Hitch contract has served to delineate the necessity for amendments to the Public Records Act if the "fundamental and necessary right of every person in this state" to have "access to information concerning the conduct of the people's business" is to be a reality.

It is now evident that Assemblyman William T. Bagley, author of the Public Records Act, leaned too far in being "mindful of the rights of individuals to privacy" and included too many exceptions to the people's rights to public records.

For example, it is difficult to understand why the applications of those seeking a bank, savings and loan or insurance charter should not be public. They are asking the state for the right to take and hold in trust the public's money. Should not the public then have the right to know who these applicants are and what surety they have for such a trust?

Why, when the law requires a showing of financial ability to qualify for certain state licenses as a protection to the public, should the facts of such qualifications not be known to the public?

THE OPPORTUNITY for public officials to show favoritism, to grant charters and licenses improperly, is too great to permit such data to be secret.

And should not memoranda exchanged between public employees relating to the conduct of government business be open to view without the necessity of proving that the public interest in such disclosures outweighs the need for withholding?

And what reason can there be for providing that library materials acquired "solely for the purpose of reference or exhibition" can be withheld from public view?

But the impact of these exceptions is minor contrasted to that of "personnel, medical or similar files." The language is so vague as to be meaningless. As the court appropriately observed in the Hitch case, the law should not leave it to a judge to decide what records come under the meaning of this provision.

The need or desirability of privilege for personnel records must be challenged. One who aspires to an elective public office must be prepared to disclose everything about himself, including his personal life and finances. He must lay bare his soul. Why, then, should his appointive subordinates enjoy a protected status?

When a school board employs a bus driver, do not the parents, whose children's safety must depend upon that driver, have the right to know all about that person? Lacking that right it is possible that a board member may get the job for his epileptic brother-in-law. Or a child molester. Or, as in Texas, someone who not only didn't have a driver's license but had three times failed the examination for one.

Public employees are just that. They are not the employees of an agency; they are the people's employees.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY: Letters To The I-J

Display Lighting Should Be Reduced Too

In response to article in Saturday's (Dec. 8) paper, "PG&E Out To Educate Customers To Cut Back" — why lay it on the homebodies? It states lighting accounts for 15 per cent of average household electric consumption. How about these decorators' stores? I name specifically W. and J. Sloane, who has had every light in their store ablaze. Daytime, nighttime, makes no difference. I'm adding Lights of Rafael to my peeve list, having observed their Santa Rosa store Saturday evening — not only all display lights on (perhaps essential for vandalism protection) for every hanging and standing lamp in the store is on. What does it benefit a customer to see an illuminated lamp if they can't illuminate it in their home? Let's see how these lamps look with the lights off.

Also on my peeve list are highway billboards — again, some are informative and necessary, but milk and cigarette ads? Once seen in daylight, who needs an evening neon reminder?

So, I repeat, as a homebody I'm trying, so let's see it on the outside. Do the car lots need all those lights? Misery loves company, you know.

Philosophic Thoughts At Christmas Season

As Watergate draws to an end and the old year draws to a close, these quotes we can say of ourselves and those people who feel as of Gods or angels thereof, and we all share in that, the spiritual sum of the parts:

"That to admit a greatness immeasurable by the rule of right and wrong is but to accept one's own nothingness and immeasurable littleness" — Tolstoy, "War and Peace." "In order to discover what is authentically individual in ourselves, profound reflection is needed; and suddenly we realize how uncommonly difficult the discovery of individuality in fact is" — Carl Jung.

The historical Christmas message as it always resurfaces as gleamed from above quotes is, "The path of greatness is always through humbleness; we are not less than, nor greater than that power which permits an existence for a while upon this earth shaped by all, circumstances and events."

Let us embrace the New Year with conscious optimism as we are enlightened by the facts, and turn aside our prejudices, make impossibilities into possibilities, and thus if not in body, in spirit remain young, learning is part of life.

No Siree, Bub, You Can't Beat Progress

I recall them there primitive days before zip codes, and airplane delivery, and computers, and wonderful sorting machines (and Wall Street type offices for the new businessman type executive), when I could drop a letter in the box across the street from my house in Iowa at 8 o'clock at night and it wouldn't be delivered to a residential address in Chicago, only 300 miles away, until maybe the second (afternoon) delivery the next day. Now, with all these wonderful new gidgets I can be almost sure of getting a letter across the bridge in a week. (It's a long bridge, you know.)

Yes siree, I recall how that ole Burlington "fast mail" train used to creep through town, maybe not doing more than 80 m.p.h., about two o'clock in the morning, and grabbing mail bags off the hooks on the fly. We just didn't know how durn primitive we were.

And I recall old Ed Ellis' old swayback nag dragging a two-wheeled cart around the mail route twice a day. I suppose there are some old fogies around that don't appreciate progress, that would rather be smelling a pile of horse manure than the nice clean invisible residue that dandy little truck puts out as it rattles by once every single day (except holidays, Sundays and maybe a few others).

Me now, I say, you can't beat progress; can you?

Energy Crisis Carries Threat Of Dictatorship

The reaction, of the Congress and the public, to the energy crisis and its portents is natural and to be expected. Nevertheless, this reaction seems to me to contain grave dangers for a free and republican form of government. . .

The willingness of the Congress to grant great arbitrary powers to a president it neither likes nor trusts is the same sort of panic reaction to crises by which all dictators have come to power. The willingness of the public for the president to have these powers is also an essential element in the rise of a dictator. It will be said that the emergency permits of no other solution, but so was it said when a Napoleon or a Hitler became the dictator.

Some of the specific powers being assumed by the Congress and delegated to the president seem to lack a basis in our federal Constitution. Where does the Constitution grant the Congress the powers to set speed limits or ration energy supplies? Is this an exercise of the police powers of sovereignty? The Constitution also says: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution . . . are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people." So it would seem that these powers belong to the sovereign states, or to the people.

The problem here is over-centralization of power in the federal government, and the danger of dictatorship in the very central government which has the constitutional duty to guarantee a republican form of government to the states. If we don't challenge the constitutionality of the assumption of these powers, the Constitution cannot protect our freedom.

Opposition To Council Sabotages Electorate

The spectacle of political naivete unrolled in your editorial column and letters from some readers seems a reverse image of the deadly circus we see in the national arena. Those who deplore the unhorsing of Jorgen Lunding as chairman of the San Rafael Planning Commission are either engaged in a shadow show or are wilfully feigning ignorance of the functioning of a representative form of government.

The city councilmen are elected and are responsible to the citizenry. The planning commission is appointive and is responsible to the council. A commissioner insistently espousing aims and procedures contrary to the sense of the council is, in effect, sabotaging the will of the electors. He must be corrected or dismissed as an impediment to the proper functioning of our representative form of government.

No Need Anymore To Pray For Rain

I remember — some 60 years ago I lived with my very religious parents. No rain for so long, no crop of wheat without rain. My parents and I went to church and prayed for rain. Several weeks later it did rain, but too late. No crop that year, but we all went back to church and thanked for the rain. He answered our prayers. Now you don't have to do that. Why pray? Call the welfare.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Dec. 13, 1963

Sen. Jacob K. Javitz, R.-N.Y., introduced a bill proposing a constitutional amendment to require that in event of a vacancy in the vice presidency, Senate and House jointly elect a vice president to complete the term.

The California Board of Education urged that the state's public schools teach about religion, pointing out this was not outlawed by the U.S. Supreme Court decision against prayer in schools.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 13, 1953

French troops prepared for a showdown battle with Vietminh at Dien Bien Phy, last French stronghold in the mountains of Indochina.

Mercury Division of Ford Motor Co. unveiled its "car of tomorrow" with 161 horsepower.

Nature Foils County 'Experts' Attempting To Alter Lagoon

It not only is not nice to fool Mother Nature; a lot of times it doesn't even work.

Ever since the Civic Center lagoon was scooped out of bay mud, county officials have been plagued by a battle of two forms of life, one desirable (to man, at least), the other not so desirable.

Welcoming a nice shallow pond where they could feed and live, ducks and other waterfowl thrived in the lagoon.

Also, unfortunately, did a lot of thick, gummy algae. It grew so thick, in fact, that the entire ecology of the lagoon was disrupted.

A dose of chemicals helped the situation temporarily, but soon the algae was back again, as thick as ever.

So last month officials decided to drain the lagoon for the winter and make the water too shallow for the algae to survive.

But no sooner was that done than torrents of rain came, and pretty soon the lagoon was as full as ever.

Now it has been drained again, greatly increasing the duck density (planning department take note), but if the forecasts of a wetter-than-usual winter hold true, there's bound to be just as much algae come spring as there was when the officials began tinkering with the ecology of the lagoon.

SOME OF THE SPECTATORS who daily go to the Hall of Justice to view the San Quentin Six trial have been unhappy to discover a photographer busily snapping their pictures as they stood in front of the courtroom.

One spectator, a San Francisco law student, even went so far as to file suit to halt the picture-taking. He got nowhere.

It turns out, according to the sheriff's department, that those films aren't even developed and aren't likely to be.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos said the films are "solely for the confidential use" of his department.

In the event of a disturbance, the photos would be used to identify spectators who may have taken part, hc said.

Otherwise, the pictures never would see the light of day. "They're not scattered around to other law agencies," Mountanos said.

THIS EXPLANATION isn't likely to satisfy many of the spectators, who say they object to the principle of being photographed without their permission, regardless of what use is made of the films.

Still, it may rest their minds to know their pictures aren't being circulated to police departments as "known troublemakers" — a fear expressed by more than one of the supporters of the San Quentin Six.

One Santa Can Spot Kickers A Mile Off

"I can tell now what's going to happen when they come up to me," Calao said. "I've been kicked a number of times. The 4-and 5-year-olds are bad for that.

Calao, 42, an audio-visual specialist at Denver's educational television station, put on his Father Christmas suit for the first time in 1965 to do a benefit for crippled children.

Each year since, the Friday after Thanksgiving, Calao bleaches his beard, picks up his bag and starts "working" private parties, schools and hospitals.

"I get the satisfaction of pleasing the kids," Calao said. "Basically, I give the kids the notion that they haven't been forgotten."

Calao blames the materialism of so many children who perch on his knee nowadays on the impact of television commercials. Religion, he says, and the spirit of the birth of Christ, rarely are mentioned.

"The kids talk strictly about material items," he said. "For the merchant, it's good. But it's a bad thing for the average spirit of Christmas."

Calao also said that a child's requests reflect the status of the family.

"Upper-income girls are very, very big on dolls," he said. "The lower-income girls like gadgets — things like toy ovens and play dishes — that sort of thing."

According to Calao, the majority of children stop believing in Santa Claus, his reindeer and late night visits on Christmas about the age of 6.

"The children begin to go to school and the other kids tell them Santa Claus really doesn't exist, or their parents do," he said.

Calao said one of the toughest questions asked by children who still believe is why they see so many Santa Clauses on streetcorners and in stores during the Christmas season.

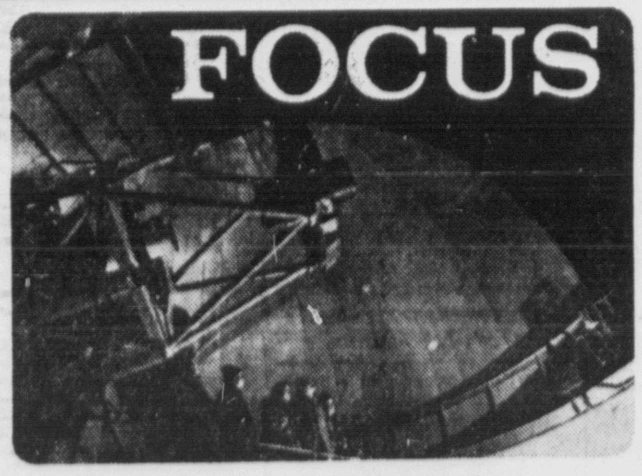
"That's a problem, but I just tell them the other Santas are helping me out and that I can't be everywhere at once."

Alderman Cleared In Chicago Case

CHICAGO (AP) — Two Chicago aldermen have been acquitted of charges that they profited illegally from city business.

Thomas E. Keane, leader of Mayor Richard J. Daley's City Council forces, and Edwin P. Fifielski were found innocent Tuesday by Judge Daniel J. Ryan in a Circuit Court bench trial.

FOCUS



Photographing Kohoutek

Astronomers are using large telescopes to track Comet Kohoutek, but you can photograph the "Christmas Comet" without any telescope at all. All it takes is a tripod, fast film, and a camera with a fast lens that can be set to take time exposures. Use one of the black and white or color films with an ASA rating of 400 or more. Open the lens wide open and make a series of exposures ranging from 60 seconds to 1/60th of a second, cutting the exposure in half each time. You will have to do it soon, for before long Kohoutek will get too close to the sun to photograph. However, you will be able to try again in January, when the comet will be visible in the evening sky.

DO YOU KNOW — Who discovered Comet Kohoutek?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Nairobi is the capital of Kenya.

Freedom Bell Has Rung For More Than 10,000

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — In the past 12 years more than 10,000 "prisoners of conscience" have won their release with the help of an organization that began as an experiment.

It is "Amnesty International", founded in 1961 in London where it still has its headquarters directing offices in 32 countries. It operates on a small budget of about half a million dollars a year and concerns itself with the rights and welfare of prisoners in more than 60 countries.

Amnesty International crosses ideological and bloc lines. The prisoners it is concerned with are equally in the Communist, the capitalist and what Amnesty prefers to call the "third" non-aligned-world.

They range from the Soviet dissidents — on whom Amnesty International aims to produce a report shortly — to prisoners of the Greek military regime, those caught in the Chilean anti-Allende upheaval, victims of South Africa's apartheid and draft-dodgers in the U.S.

Amelio Augustus, the American representative of Amnesty International, said the organization works to help all those who "are forgotten by governments, who are not criminals, not violent, but whose civil and political rights have been violated — the true prisoners of conscience — under the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights" that is 25 years old this month.

"Those" she said. "who are subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention without trial, forced marriage, conscription because of reasons of race, religion or nationality."

Amnesty International was founded by Peter Benenson in London in 1961 as an experimental committee for one year. Now it is a permanent organization with consultative status with the United Nations, the Organization of American States, the Organization of African Unity, the Council of Europe in Strasbourg and the U.N. Education and Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

Mrs. Augustus, a graduate of Columbia University, who says she was attracted to Amnesty three years ago when one of her Greek relatives was tortured, said six of Amnesty's workers were jailed in South Korea recently.

Asked what Amnesty could do about it, she was optimistic, saying "we pretend we can move mountains. We know from past experience that Amnesty has influence totally out of its proportion."

Some 30,000 men and women work for Amnesty around the world, but only 80 to 90 are salaried.

In the case of the Koreans, appeals were made to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim of the United Nations, to the U.S. State Department and to foreign ministers of countries urging them to exercise their influence on the Korean government.

In the U.N., Amnesty works through delegations. One of its achievements was the recent adoption by the General Assembly of a resolution outlawing torture of prisoners.

This will be the main subject at a UNESCO-sponsored conference in Paris Dec. 10 commemorating the 25th anniversary of the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights.

In the Soviet Union, Mrs. Augustus said, Amnesty was "awfully concerned with the practice of labeling a political dissenter as insane and then detaining him in a mental hospital and administering drugs." She estimated the current number of persons so detained in the Soviet Union at 10,000 "as a conservative estimate."

Amnesty works closely with the U.N. Commission for Human Rights, submitting reports on cases, including recently names of 472 officials accused of committing torture in Brazil.

One of the biggest successes of Amnesty was the release in the spring of 1973 of thousands of politically held Indonesians as a result of a postcard campaign to government officials and intervention with the government.

"They (the prisoners) then sent us jewelry made of food cans as a token of gratitude."

THIS HOME NEEDS A FAMILY TO SPEND CHRISTMAS WITH

The owners of this well-maintained family home in Mariner Highlands are being transferred East & reluctantly have had to put this on the market. They tell us they'll miss the life style it gives them: nestled into the hill, a block (by path) to Granada School, the tree-lined street with underground utilities, formal living room & paneled family living are (where the fireplace is), 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, built-ins in the kid's room - a relaxed easy sort of life. It's been good for them. If this style seems like it might fit you, be sure to see it. $48,950 (and worth it).

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Indigestion, Abdominal Pain Not Necessarily Sign Of Ulcer

A.T. writes: "My husband has been troubled with indigestion and upper abdominal pain for several months, and our family physician has not been able to pinpoint the cause even though he suspects a peptic ulcer. Barium X-rays on two occasions failed to show an ulcer. John's gallbladder is normal. Eighteen months have gone by, and he feels better, but I know that he panics whenever his stomach acts up. Should he be re-X-rayed or is it best to let well enough alone?"

This question should be answered by the physician who known your husband's medical, physical, and emotional status. In my opinion, additional X-rays are not needed because he has improved during the last 18 months.

DYSPEPSIA IS a common symptom that often follows dietary indiscretion or emotional upheavals. On the other hand, if his original symptoms return and persist, another series of X-rays are in order.

There are many reports in medical journals on the high incidence of peptic ulcer in followup studies. Forty per cent of a group of 174 hospitalized persons who were followed for 27 years finally developed a peptic ulcer, as demonstrated by followup X-rays. In another followup study of 102 patients over a six-year period, 12 had developed peptic ulcer. It is well to remember that these people were sick enough to be hospitalized.

A MORE recent study involved 102 persons with dyspepsia who, in 1964, had normal findings on barium stomach X-ray examination. When interviewed in 1970, 85 of them (83 per cent) were improved. Only three of them had developed peptic ulcer during the six-year period. These individuals had abdominal distress for three years before the first barium X-ray study. The Welsh investigators concluded that the outlook on "X-ray-negative dyspepsia" was good when the victims were not sick enough to require hospitalization.

Since 1964, 65 of these 85 individuals have shown definite improvement. Fifteen have not improved, and five have gotten worse. Of the latter, one had gallstones, another had an hiatus hernia, but the other three still had no evidence of peptic ulcer.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

END OF LINES FORECAST — Small cities, which are serviced by propeller driven aircraft such as these, face loss of service early in the new year due to the energy crisis. So far passengers have only experienced less frequent service and fewer empty seats.

Flight Pinches After Holidays

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — For many U.S. airlines passengers, the real pinch in the jet fuel cutback may not set in until Jan. 7, well after the holidays.

On that date some from small cities served by a single airline just might wake up to find that their air service has disappeared altogether.

(Under the new fuel allocation program announced yesterday, big domestic air carriers would be allotted 95 per cent of their 1972 use until Jan. 7 and 85 per cent after that. Small regional airlines would get 95 per cent until Jan. 7 and 90 per cent afterwards and international carriers would receive 100 per cent until Jan. 7 and 85 per cent after.)

Some 1,000 flights a day have been cut already as part of the mandatory 25 per cent cutback in jet fuel use, which must be fully implemented by Jan. 7.

So far, for most passengers, the slice has meant only slightly less frequent service and fewer empty seats aboard their flights. However, the next few hendred flight cuts could spell a crucial difference in service for some passengers.

It could, for instance, prompt a 30 to 100 per cent service reduction in 185 of the 408 cities served by regional carriers such as Ozark and Frontier, according to the Association of Local Transport Airlines.

Such less-than-rosy predictions also have been voiced lately by the chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB). Stressing that the nation's airlines are being asked effectively to cut one-fourth of their service in a 90-day span, Robert D. Timm has asserted in recent speeches that the "thrill is real" and that some markets probably will have to be suspended.

Just how much advance warning anyone will have or how much opportunity there will be to influence important cutback decisions are questions that concern many communities and individual travelers.

CAB has had in hand since Dec. 1 a report from each of the 19 major airlines on their precise plans to meet the fuel cutback requirement.

Those who may be affected are eager to see the plans.

The CAB has no intention of releasing them at the moment. In requesting the information by telegram last November, the agency pledged confidentiality, a promise some contend it had no right to make. Another reason why the plans must be kept inhouse, according to the regulatory agency, is that they are still tentative and could be altered.

Ralph Nader's Aviation Consumer Action Project (ACAP) requested that the reports be made public and may well take the issue to court.

Heath Orders British Industry On A Three-Day Working Week

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath said today the government was putting British industry on a three-day work week in a bid to save dwindling fuel stocks in Britain's gravest economic crisis since the depression of the 1930s.

He spoke after Britain announced its worst two-month trade deficit in history and as British newspapers were speaking of a "national disaster" because of an oil and energy crisis.

Heath told Parliament that industry will be allowed to use electric power for a total of only five days between Dec. 17 and Dec. 31—the traditional Christmas holiday period.

After that, he said, industrial and commercial plants will be limited to three days of electric power each week.

Heath said plants which use electricity for continuous processes will be restricted to 65 per cent of their normal electric consumption.

He announced that Britain's two national television networks will close down nightly at 10:30 p.m. to save electricity instead of the usual 12:30 a.m. closedown.

He appealed to Britons to use electricity for space heating in only one room in each home.

"Unless we can save electricity and all fuels in every aspect of our daily lives," Heath said, "we shall have to impose yet further restrictions on business."

"I must warn that if we fail to achieve the necessary savings in electricity consumption, frequent periods of electricity disconnection will become unavoidable," he said.

Heath said there will be no gasoline rationing before Jan. 1 but it can be introduced "at short notice" if necessary.

Heath said electric power stations now are receiving only 40 per cent of their normal coal supplies as a result of a month-hold overtime ban by the country's 260,000 coal miners in support of a pay boost claim.

Heath said Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber will announce new belt-tightening measures Monday to deal with the crisis.

It stemmed from the overtime ban by coal miners coupled with a slowdown by railroad locomotive drivers coming on top of the Arab oil embargo against Western countries.

Earlier, the government announced Britain's worst two-month foreign trade deficit in history.

Economists generally agree Britain's worst economic crisis occurred during the great depression of the 1930s when unemployment soared to 3 million workers. By comparison, Lord Kearton, a top industrialist, said today he could foresee the country's current level of almost 500,000 unemployed jumping to four to five million in the current crisis.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, significant air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Astronauts View Comet Kohoutek

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab 3 astronauts saw Comet Kohoutek for the first time without magnification today and said the comet appeared clearer and brighter as it neared the sun.

"Kohoutek has really got a significant tail now," pilot William R. Pogue reported. "I can see it with the naked eye. It's significantly brighter and longer and more distinct than it was yesterday morning. I was able to keep it in view even as the sun came up."

Pogue said the tail of the comet extended about two to three degrees across the night horizon, the equivalent of five or six million miles.

Although not expected to be as bright as first predicted, the comet is still being touted as the "comet of the century" and might be brighter than Halley's famous comet.

In better spirits than they have been many mornings, the spacemen played a loud piece of rock music, "Eli's Coming," by the Three Dog Night, for ground controllers shortly after the crew was awakened for the day. Previously only the controllers have used music to greet the astronauts in the morning.

One thing that might have helped the pilots' spirits was a second chance they'll get to take pictures of certain targets on the earth.

Like the proverbial tourist who blows his once-in-a-lifetime chance by putting his thumb over the lens, Pogue forgot to put a filter in an earth photo camera and may have overexposed a number of pictures.

Mission control told Pogue, Gerald P. Carr and Edward G. Gibson yesterday they will be able to take more pictures of everything that might have been photographed on the camera without the filter.

"We can pick all of those up with no problem," ground communicator Robert Crippen told the crew. "As it turns out, it doesn't look like it's going to be that big an impact afterall."

"That's very nice to hear," Pogue said. "I'm really sorry about that. It takes a terrific load off my mind."

The astronauts fired up their engines in the Apollo ferry ship for 16 seconds yesterday to shift the giant station's orbit nine miles west. Skylab flies 300 miles a minute around the Earth and, because it has to maneuver for better camera angles to take pictures of the Earth and Comet Kahoutek, it drifts slightly off its course. yesterday's firing was one of many scheduled during the crew's 84-day flight.

The attitude control firings were expected but used about 50 per cent more stabilization gas than desired.

The pilots also learned about the short, unhappy cruise of the Queen Elizabeth 2 which spent three nights in the Atlantic hoping those on board, including the man who discovered the comet and for whom it was named, could see Kohoutek.

Clouds obscured the comet during the first and third nights and on the second night it rained. The comet's discoverer, meanwhile, rarely ventured out of his cabin because of seasickness.

Tam Of Hayakawa Buried In Capsule

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A capsule has been buried in the foundation of a new student union building at San Francisco State University and contains various items noting the current campus life in recent years.

One of the capsule's contents is a tam o'shanter worn by S.I. Hayakawa, who recently retired as president of the school after holding the office during years of violent student unrest.

Cards Mailed For Impeachment Poll

Double post cards asking how many voters in each household are for or against the impeachment of President Nixon have been mailed to all postal patrons in the Inverness zip-code area, Thomas C. Chase, Inverness Association director, announced yesterday.

Chase said the association board which recently voted to conduct the impeachment poll, had sent out 513 cards and will forward the results to national legislators.

Each card has a postage-paid return for householders to fill out. Deadline for the return is Dec. 31, according to a message on the card which also states, "impeachment does not mean conviction or dismissal, but the bringing of formal charges by the House of Representatives for a hearing before the Senate."

Pot Charge Conditions

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — A judge told James Riggs, 20, son of tennis hustler Bobby Riggs, yesterday he would dismiss a marijuana possession charge against the youth if he demonstrates good conduct during the next 12 months.

Nassau County Court Judge Anthony Barbiero told young Riggs, of Manhasset, N.Y., that the charge of possessing a marijuana cigarette, plus three traffic charges, will be dismissed pending good behavior. The younger Riggs' cousin, Robert Crimi, 24, of Upper Brookville, N.Y., who was also accused of marijuana possession, was given similar treatment.

The pair was arrested on Dec. 4 by a Nassau County, N.Y., detective who said he saw them passing the cigarette back and forth while seated in a parked car in Manhasset.

An Hour Later Opening Studied

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — If national Daylight Saving Time goes into effect, Metro schools will open one hour later for "safety reasons."

"Many of our students who have to be at school at 7 a.m. are already leaving home in the dark to catch the bus or to walk a mile to school," Director of Schools Dr. Elbert Brooks said yesterday.

Legislation for year-round Daylight Saving Time is expected to pass both houses of Congress this week and go into effect by Jan. 6.

Rules For Use Of School Given

The Reed School District board has set standards for groups which wish to use the now-empty Tiburon School and insisted that noncommercial, nonprofit, community-oriented organizations have first crack at it.

Board members told Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello Tuesday night that interested groups should apply to him or the district business manager. They set rental for the building at $2 per hour per room.

Giovanniello said he already has applications from three groups — the Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission, which hopes to hold adult education classes in the school; the Marin Senior Citizens Coordinating Council, which would meet there twice a month, and a women's group dealing with the environment.

Greece Will Free Rioting Students

ATHENS (UPI) — The Greek government announced today it will release all 300 persons, most of them students, arrested during last month's bloody demonstrations against the Greek government.

Education minister Panayotis Christou said today he considered students who took part in the demonstrations against President George Papadopoulos were "misled."

TV MOVIES ARE BACK

Thanks to advances in computer science in the Independent-Journal composing room, television movies once again are listed in the I-J's daily television log as well as in the Weekly TV Watch section each Saturday.

New computer programming has made it possible to integrate the movies into the daily log in readable type without wasted space.

Nissen Said Top Choice As Planner

Donn E. Nissen, president of the Terra Linda Homeowners Association, is the frontrunner among eight candidates for appointment to the San Rafael Planning Commission, the Independent-Journal learned yesterday.

Nissen, chairman of Councilman Jack G. Nixon's council campaign last April, emerged as leading contender for the post during a closed session Monday.

City councilmen yesterday confirmed Nissen appeared to have the backing of a majority of the council, but said no decision on the matter has yet been made.

The council will fill the seat vacated by the firing of Jorgen V. Lunding in open session at 8 p.m. Monday in city hall.

Other candidates mentioned as possible appointments are James D. Mahoney, president of Mahoney Steel; Richard C. Fox, a senior research chemist for Standard Oil and an unsuccessful council candidate, and Richard P. Rodrigues, chairman of the city's citizen's advisory committee on the general plan.

Nissen lives at 607 Tamarack Drive.

Hopeful Seeks Business Help

By FRANK FARRARA

(First of eight articles on candidates for appointments to the Novato Planning Commission).

C. SHANNON MURPHY
Seeks commission seat

C. Shannon Murphy, a 47-year-old Novato businessman seeking appointment to the Novato Planning Commission, believes recent planning decisions have "stultified the business community."

Murphy, proprietor of the Novato Art Center, 808 Grant Avenue, said "city officials have not allowed a lot of things to take place that should have taken place."

For example, he said, the owner of the building where his shop is located wanted to improve its looks and "was arbitrarily told he couldn't."

Murphy, who also travels as a salesman, said businessmen are now reluctant to locate in Novato "because it's too much trouble."

In the controversy about permitting a Taco Bell restaurant in Novato Square, "they've done everything possible to not let this guy (Ben R. Ostlind) build," Murphy said. "I'm glad I'm not building anything. I wouldn't like to go through that hassle."

Murphy said he isn't sure where the problem lies,'"in the planning commission, city council or city manager, but they're sort of limiting what happens in town. I figured I might was well get into this and find out."

Murphy said he isn't bothered that commissioners are making decisions, but "all I've heard so far is what you can't do. Consequently no one is going to do anything."

He said the city's policy of limiting growth to 500 dwelling units a year is unconstitutional and "also stupid and I don't think you can dictate what should be allowed as long as its reasonably well planned. I'm a believer in laissez faire."

Murphy said Novato is losing "most of its business out of town" and he would "like to see a program that would unite the business community so that the residents of Novato felt that their needs could be filled within the city limits."

Some want Sears and Macy's in the city, "but if you can't get them, you have to deal with people interested in coming to town," Murphy said. "Business in this town, I think, is in bad shape."

Murphy, a resident of Novato for seven years, his wife, Barbara, and three children, live at 19 Carisa Court. He has been promoter of the Oldtown Festival and a member of Big Brothers and a Presbyterian Church elder.

Scholarship Contest Is Announced

An opportunity for a free college scholarship is available to two youngsters in Marin and Southern Sonoma, according to M. N. Illich and R. C. Williamson of Hobby Tree in the Corte Madera Shopping Center.

Two $5,000 scholarships will be given away by Revell, Inc., world's largest manufacturer of plastic model kits, in its annual contest. This year the contest is known as FutureStakes or the "Win A $5,000 Scholarship Contest", since the grand prize can mean a brighter tomorrow to two lucky young people.

"All you have to do to enter is write an essay in 200 words (or less) on 'What A College Education Means To Me.' Send it, along with a Revell kit end panel and an official entry blank, to Revell. Official entry blanks are now available at our store," said Illich.

Williamson said essays will be judged by a panel of four nationally known educators. Judging criteria includes originality, aptness of thought, neatness, directness of purpose, apparent truthfulness, and general impression of ideas. Entries will also be judged with consideration to age.

Besides the two scholarships, other top prizes in the contest include a Muskin Dune Cat, the mini-dune buggy with maxi appeal; 10 Muskin Mini-Bikes, custom styled movers; and 12 Magnavox Odyssey TV games.

In addition 1,000 Revell assortments will be given away.

The contest is now open and will run through May 31, 1974.

Contest Blanks are available at the Hobby Tree.

CORTE MADERA STORE ONLY

MUCH TO CHOOSE FROM — Shoppers at the Hobby Tree in Corte Madera Center are baffled by the over 22,000 items to select from. Gifts, Arts and craft items, trains, planes and hobbies from every corner of the world keep shoppers from all over California busy.

The Hobby Tree An Unusual Shop

People plant trees so they grow and serve a purpose. Marin County had grown and grown with a lot of creative people, and there was a big void — mainly that of a complete, one-stop hobby, arts and craft and model shop to supply most of the needs of today's families and modern hobbyists; something for creative people of all ages.

That void led to the planting of the Hobby Tree, the largest store of its kind in the Pacific Northwest, carrying not only beginners kits, but the bits and pieces that make hobbying fun for the advanced and or more creative hobbyist. In addition the store carries puppets and marionettes and supplies, magic, hand-spun yarns and a selected grouping of gifts, games and stuffed toys.

The idea of a store such as the Hobby Tree was born in July, 1972. The founders started talking about the concept to friends and fellow hobbyists, asking what they would like to see in such a store.

Then they wrote to over 700 manufacturers, manufacturing representatives importers and wholesalers — and we interviewed them and then went to visit as many of them as possible — to become thoroughly familiar with what they had to offer in the way of service and supplies.

The result was a store of 4,000 square feet, providing shoppers with the best quality merchandise at reasonable prices and one-stop hobby service.

With several hundred suppliers to choose from, the owners selected four major ones and are currently dealing with 52 minor ones. Six months from the date of the idea, with the assistance of neighbors and suppliers the Hobby Tree opened with some 8,000 items, the day after Thanksgiving, 1972.

In the past year a lot more has been learned about arts and crafts by listening to customers and sharing ideas and experiences with them as well as suppliers and by experimenting with the merchandise as it came in.

As of the last inventory, the store carries well over 22,000 separate items.

That is quite a bit, (the purchasing catalog is over eight feet long) and yet the store carries only about one-third of what is totally available.

Though the owners don't have all the answers, the average in being able to answer craft questions runs over 91 per cent.

The staff is made up of people who the owners felt were specialists in two or more areas, and who were willing to learn about other areas and not remain stuck in their own world.

Most of customers and friends say they now visit the Hobby Tree first as they have learned that if the store doesn't carry it or know of a referral source, they probably won't be able to find it.

Christmas Trees Date Back Many Centuries

READING, Pa. (AP) — In 1804, the first Christmas tree in this country was set up by soldiers in Fort Dearborn, Ill. This year, Americans will use nearly 35 million trees during the holiday season, reports Robert Sullivan, president of the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Assn. and director of the national association.

The use of trees for celebrations began even before the Christian era, according to the U.S. Forestry Service. Ancient

Wards Helping To Save Energy

Montgomery Ward, the first national retailer to take action in the growing energy crisis, has followed up its consumer education and company-wide power cutting efforts with an internal program that will produce a 10 per cent kilowatt savings!

"We set out last spring to do what we could to make a meaningful contribution to an anticipated crisis," explained J. C. Engelman, Ward's store manager. "We discovered that there also was an economic benefit to both our consumers and our stores that was worthy of attention."

He explained that the conservation of kilowatt units in Ward's 2,200 retail and catalog facilities also produced significant dollar savings.

"We realized that with a stronger effort we could save additional power and at the same time offset some of our soaring operating expenses," added Engelman. "If we can do it in our stores, all of us can realize the same benefits through a little effort at home."

Wards has set the 10 per cent power reduction as the goal for all of its facilities. "We're confident we will achieve the goal and many have already enacted the steps that will assure more than 10 per cent savings," Engelman said.

In addition to the following company-wide measures, all stores have initiated other specific power-saving steps:

Ward President Edward S. Donnell on May 8 announced Ward's "Save Energy-Save Money" campaign and the availability of brochures that would help consumers reduce energy consumption.

All Ward stores and buildings have reduced internal and external lighting. No exterior lighted decorations will be used during the holidays.

Speed has been reduced on all company trucks and other vehicles.

Heating temperatures have been reset to 68 degrees and air conditioning to 76 degrees.

Employees are being encouraged to form car pools or use public transportation.

Store lights and escalators are not turned on until 20 minutes before store opening. They are being turned off immediately following store closing.

Many Ward stores have reported significant kilowatt savings during the past six months through extra efforts to respond to the growing energy crisis.

Locally, Wards has followed through on the company-wide program to conserve energy.

Egyptians used date palms to celebrate the winter solstice, or the shortest day of the year. From this day until summer, daylight increases daily.

To these ancients, the tree was a symbol of "life over death" — just as the sun is "reborn" in winter and begins to provide more light each day.

By 354 A.D., after Christianity became an accepted religion, church leaders had established Dec. 25 as a day for exchanging gifts, expressing goodwill, for merrymaking and feasting. Part of this feast included raising an evergreen bough to celebrate — as the Egyptians had — the return of the sun.

Through the ages, people all over the world have revered the evergreen tree. Norsemen, Celts and Saxons used these trees to ward off witches, evil spirits and ghosts.

Although this country is considered by many to be the originator of the Christmas tree custom, the "true Christmas tree" has been traced back to the 16th century in Germany.

Since its earliest appearance it has always been decorated — at first with fruit, paper, cloth, sugar and wafers, later with cookies, stars, bells, angels, hearts, candles, ribbons, polished nuts, animal likenesses and beads. Popcorn, thought to be used at first to simulate snow, was a popular decoration in the 1800s. Toys, dolls and gifts were eventually added.

In this country, trees were first trimmed in the "German fashion." Bacon and hams were added — or if the tree could not support the weight of these real items, pictures of the foods were attached to the branches.

Today most of the food and candles have given way to electric lights, gaily-colored balls, artificial snow, tinsel, birds, miniature sleds and reindeer.
